HOOVER BUDGET CUTS EXPENSES HALF A BILLION

Adds 355 Million in Sales Tax.

Asks More Money

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—In his annual budget submitted to congress today President Hoover proposes a combination of economies, a general sales tax, and continuation of the gasoline tax to meet a federal deficit which he estimates would otherwise add more than 1 billion dollars to the public debt in the present fiscal year and 307 millions in the next fiscal year.

This estimate of the deficit is arrived at by excluding from consideration the 500 millions required for sinking fund and other debt retirement provisions. Actually, the estimated deficit is more than 1½ billions for 1933 and almost 850 millions for 1934.

Hoover Fiscal Program.

Revenue from gasoline tax for 1934	137,000,000
Revenue from general sales tax for 1934	355,000,000
Total	$970,463,200

Notwithstanding the statistics adduced by the President in his annual message yesterday to demonstrate that the country turned the corner of the depression last August the budget discloses the total dissipation of official confidence that there is sufficient improvement in business to yield the 1 billion 118 millions of additional taxes which the revenue bill of the last session was calculated to produce for the balancing of the budget.

Why the 1932-revenue act has failed to measure up to the expectations of its authors is revealed in the annual report of Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills which was made public concurrently with the submission of the budget.

Tax Source Drying Up.

Mr. Mills shows to what extent the source of 97 per cent of income tax revenue—incomes of $10,000 and over—is drying up. There were less than half as many such taxpayers in 1931 as in 1928. Those with incomes over $100,000 dropped from 15,780 in 1928 to 3,142 in 1931 and are even fewer now, though the later figures are not yet available.

Aggregate incomes above $5,000 fell off from 16 billions in 1928 to 6½ billions in 1931. For the present fiscal year the revenue from income taxes, Mr. Mills estimates, will fall short of expectations by 176 millions, from customs 60 millions, from brewers' wort 72 millions, bank checks 33 millions, from amusement admissions 23 millions.

Mr. Mills recommended that the "relatively unproductive" excise taxes of the 1932 revenue act be repealed and a 2¼ per cent general manufacturers' sales tax be imposed substantially in the form that the house rejected last session.

Sinking Fund Inoperative.

The Hoover budget and the Mills report showed that the sinking fund and other debt retirement provisions are to continue inoperative indefinitely. The aim is to balance the budget exclusive of the sinking fund. That on the basis of the expenditures proposed and the revenue from the taxes now in force the public debt would be increased more than 1 billion dollars this fiscal year and 307 millions in 1934 is shown by a tabulation in the President's budget message.

"From this tabulation," said Mr. Hoover, "it will be seen that in spite of the large reduction in expenditures the revenues under existing laws are expected to fall short of providing sufficient money to avoid a further increase in the public debt in the fiscal year 1934 by about $307,000,000.

Makes Recommendations.

"To meet this situation I recommend:

LEAGUE CRIES FOR U. S. AID IN FAR EAST CRISIS

Big Powers Dodge Manchuria Issue.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Dec. 7.—The first bid to the United States to share responsibility in a settlement of the Manchurian quarrel was made today at the extraordinary assembly of the league of nations by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary.

"I will make a very bold observation, and I hope I have not produced any diplomatic inconveniences," said the distinguished British barrister in a speech urging the league itself to go slow. "It seems to me that a committee, to which I suppose these matters may be referred at some stage, would be more effective for the purpose if means could be found to add a representative of each of the two great countries vitally interested in the far east who are not themselves members of the league—namely, the United States and the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics."

Wants "Practical" Solution.

"What Britain wants," Simon said, "is a practical solution, and the league must act wisely and prudently. No one can conciliate who is not conciliatory. We must act and speak with restraint and respect for the feelings of others, with recognition for the pride which mounts in every patriotic man's breast when his country's action is under criticism."

He closed with a rendering of the "malice toward none" passage of Lincoln's second inaugural address. At the same time he professed Britain's loyalty to the principles of the league, which he said is "the hope of the world."

The Japanese were elated. "Splendid, splendid," said Yosuke Matsuoka. Joseph Paul-Boncour, French war minister, gave veiled support to Simon's attitude.

Little Nations Object.

The block of little fellows, however, including Spain, Sweden, the Irish Free State, and Szechoslovakia, were indignant. They see Britain as designing to take the responsibility out of the hands of the league, undermine the Lytton report on Manchuria, and avoid any offensive condemnation of Japan.

The little nations tonight drew up a stiff draft resolution which they may present tomorrow. They would have the assembly declare in the verbiage of the Lytton report that Japan's military operations in Manchuria cannot be considered as self-defense; that without a declaration of war Japanese troops seized and occupied territory indisputably Chinese; that disguised war has been going on, and that no peace attempts have been made, and that Manchukuo cannot be regarded as the outcome of a spontaneous independence movement and could not endure without the presence of Japanese troops.

Would Refuse Recognition.

They want the assembly, moreover, to declare that recognition of Manchukuo would be "incompatible with existing international obligations," and would solicit the collaboration of the United States and Russia on a commission to settle the controversy, but in accordance with the above mentioned principles.

Washington has already intimated that before it would consider sitting on a committee of settlement the league itself would have to make some commitments.

Prof. Salvador de Madariaga of Spain, President Giuseppe Mott of Switzerland and Nicholas Politis of Greece all condemned Simon's statement.

Japan Hails "Victory."

TOKIO, Dec. 8.—[Thursday.]—(AP)—Special editions of the newspapers today hailed with big headlines speeches in Geneva on the Manchurian affair by Sir John Simon, British foreign minister, and Joseph Paul-Boncour, French minister of war, as Japanese victories.

The Nichi Nichi said "The league of nations' atmosphere has suddenly shifted in favor of Japan," while the Asahi said "Britain and France have broken silence in support of Japan."

3 FOUND GUILTY OF ROBBING BANK; ONE ACQUITTED

Three men, charged with robbing the Beverly State Savings bank of $10,000 on May 31, were found guilty of robbery with a gun in the verdict returned late last night by a jury in Judge Michael Feinberg's court. The conviction carries a penalty of one year to life in the penitentiary.

The convicted are: Tony Dirigoloma, 20 years old, 2426 Adams street; Pasquale Zemiro, 19 years old, 1349 Taylor street, and Wilfred Corriveau, 43 years old, 9127 South Irving avenue. Paul Leonardi, 24 years old, 2402 Lexington street, a fourth defendant, was acquitted. Two others alleged to have had a part in the robbery plot, Samuel Clements and Tony Lococo, requested and were granted a separate trial.

A motion for a new trial was made in behalf of the three found guilty. Arguments on this will be heard Dec. 16. Meanwhile the bonds of the defendants were fixed at $40,000 each. Unable to furnish this amount, all were taken to jail. Seven extra bailiffs were assigned to the courtroom to prevent any possible disorder when the verdict was announced.

14 ARE KILLED IN NEW MEXICO MINE EXPLOSION

Madrid, N. M., Dec. 7.—(AP)—From a hole in a bleak hillside the bodies of 14 coal miners, victims of an explosion in the Morgan-Jones mine, almost a mile underground, had been brought tonight to the surface, where relatives were waiting to identify them.

About 100 miners who were at work when the explosion occurred escaped. Miners who escaped believed their lives were saved by safety curtains that retarded the flow of deadly gas throughout the underground shafts, officials said.

The cause of the explosion was undetermined tonight.

Six Nervous Bandits Rob Hotel; Screams Rout Them

A gang of six well dressed bandits, several of them obviously nervous, entered the lobby of the Loyola Arms hotel at 1235 Loyola avenue late last night and menaced fifteen guests. "Keep your hands down," stuttered the leader, leveling a pistol. The fifteen, including three women, obeyed. The gunmen took $23 of the hotel's money from David Lord, the clerk, and a $25 watch from Homer Ellis, a guest. Then two of the women screamed and the bandits fled.

TARBES, Hautes-Pyrenees, France, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The Château d'Artagnan, where the swashbuckling hero of "The Three Musketeers" was reared, was offered at auction today, but there were no takers, although the starting price was only 30,000 francs, or about $1,200.

Regency Move Is Defeated by Reichstag

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 7.—The Nationalists, henchmen of former Kaiser Wilhelm, boldly moved in the reichstag today to prepare for a regency and eventual return of the monarchy, but the parliament defeated the project in a session enlivened by fist fights and a communist attack on President von Hindenburg.

The Nationalist scheme consisted of a demand to empower the president to appoint his own representative or successor as regent whenever he deems fit.

Nazi Bill Supported.

Rudolf Breitscheid, leader of the Socialists, immediately branded the plan an effort to pave the way for a monarchy. He announced that his party, despite its enmity for Adolf Hitler's National Socialists, would vote for the Nazi proposal providing for a successor to the president in the event of his resignation or death. The law proposed by the Nazis provides that the president of the Supreme court shall succeed to the presidency in such circumstances.

The reichstag accepted the Nazi bill on second reading today, and indications are it will pass third reading on Friday.

During debate on the bill, the 100 Reds in the hall violently assailed von Hindenburg. They joined to shout "Down with the president!" The cry was echoed by a Red deputy of the Mecklenburg diet who was sitting in the gallery.

The Battle Is On.

The demonstration precipitated the fighting. Nazis and Reds rushed for each other, wielding brass knuckles, inkwells, spittoons, telephone receivers, tables and other assorted furniture. Fifty deputies engaged in hand-to-hand fighting in the reichstag lobby. During the battle a huge chandelier was smashed, showering the combatants with chunks of glass. Six deputies were injured.

When Nazi bodyguards in uniform, who were not members of parliament, rushed into the battle, the Reds, outnumbered, subsided, and order was finally restored.

The reichstag will not resume its sessions until Friday, as tomorrow is a Catholic holiday.

Bridge Party Disturbed; Learn Roof Is on Fire

Valparaiso, Ind., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Eight women playing bridge at the Charles Freel residence were disturbed by the shrieking of fire sirens and the clanging of bells today. They were more disturbed when a fireman banged on the front door and informed them the house roof was burning.

VISIONS STORM FREE EARTH 1,000 YEARS FROM NOW

Speaking before the Chicago Chemists' club on the causes of weather changes, Dr. R. E. Wilson, formerly professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and now a director of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, last night predicted that in a thousand years the weather will be milder, drier, and that violent storms, such as hurricanes, will be things of the past. The meeting was held at the Midland club, 172 West Adams street.

"We are living at the tail end of a glacial age," he said, "and unless there is an unforeseen eruption of mountain ridges on the earth's surface we may expect a constant diminishing of the polar ice caps, less cloudiness, fewer violent atmospheric disturbances, and consequently a greater chance for the earth to absorb heat from the sun."

Present weather conditions, according to Dr. Wilson, are greatly influenced by the polar glaciers, which, in turn, were given their start during the era of mountain formation.

"In the course of a thousand years, however, the cloudiness and precipitation influenced by mountains increases the water flow over the land, wearing it down, and raises the level of the sea, giving it greater circulation. Warm sea currents attack and wear away the glaciers, so that in time, if no further mountain eruptions intervene, the glaciers will disappear," Dr. Wilson concluded.

First Blast of Cold Spell Hits Chicago

The onrush of a cold wave from the frozen Mackenzie river basin in Canada last night had driven the temperature in Chicago down to 8 above zero at 3 o'clock this morning. Forecaster J. R. Lloyd of the government weather bureau asserted a belief that the zero mark would be closely approached, if not reached, by daybreak.

Skies today are expected to be clear, but Mr. Lloyd said it was doubtful if the mercury would rise higher than 12 or 15 above during the daylight hours. It is likely to be cold again tonight and tomorrow. Winds, it was forecast, will be moderate and from the northwest.

No Zero Weather Since 1930.

If the visitation of cold should be a little more severe than forecast today may be the chilliest day in Chicago since Jan. 23, 1930. No official mark below zero has been reached here since that date, although the mercury almost touched zero last March.

Mr. Lloyd said there was no immediate relief from the cold in sight. Tomorrow will be cloudy, but there is no forecast of snow.

The intense cold of yesterday was in marked contrast to the preceding day, when the mercury was consistently above 40 degrees. It was still above freezing at 6 a. m. yesterday, but thereafter the drop was steady. It was only 22 at 4:30 p. m. and a further fall of eleven degrees occurred during the late afternon and evening.

Chicago's low record for Dec. 8, set in 1917, was 2 below zero.

Ice Hampers Firemen.

Firemen, battling a blaze at 55 East Austin avenue, reported last night that ice formed so rapidly that their efforts to extinguish the fire were hampered. Damage estimated at from between $10,000 and $30,000 was caused in the building, a three story structure mainly occupied by the Ehrat Food corporation. A 2-11 alarm was sounded and Fire Marshal Corrigan took command of the fight.

An explanation of the swift change in the weather was given in the official forecast, which stated that a gigantic area of high pressure is overspreading the whole central United States. Temperatures yesterday ranged from 10 to 14 below zero in Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, and Wyoming, while lows of from zero to 10 above were noted in Nebraska and Iowa. Hibbing, Minn., reported a minimum of 19 below zero.

Considerable snow fell in Wyoming and northern Colorado, but in other regions, as in Chicago, the fall was comparatively light.

Southern areas shared in the cold wave. The official forecast at New Orleans was for freezing temperatures over most of the sugar cane belt and possibly down to the Gulf of Mexico.

FIRST EDITION OF PICKWICK PAPERS SELLS FOR $4,400

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—An exceptional first edition of Dickens' "Pickwick Papers" brought $4,400 at auction. Gabriel Wells paid that sum last night for the work in its original wrappers. It was published in London in 1836-'37.

The total of $32,326 was realized by the auction, which disposed of the first half of the book collection of the late Ida O. Folsom. Among other items sold were:

First publication of Kipling's "Echoes by Two Writers," also bought by Wells for $2,900. It contains an original manuscript and self-caricature by the author.

A first American edition of "Pickwick Papers" brought $1,700 and a first edition of Kipling's "Schoolboy Lyrics" was sold to Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach for $1,600.

Oak Park Man Raises Bananas After 27 Years

Gustave Lindberg, superintendent of the Oak Park municipal greenhouse, announced yesterday that he had succeeded in growing a "good" banana tree in the greenhouse at 545 Garfield street after 27 years of effort. "The tree was grown from a seed obtained in Cuba a year ago," Lindberg said. "It is 14 feet high, six feet taller than the banana trees grow in Cuba, and a three foot stalk has 66 bananas on it."

Planes Take Tribunes to N. Y. for 8 A. M. Delivery

At midnight tonight the first consignment of seventy-five copies of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will go east on a United Air Lines plane and be delivered at the doors of guests from Chicago in the Waldorf Astoria hotel in New York City at 8 a. m. tomorrow morning, the air line announced last night. The shipment of papers will be made nightly.

BREWERS TELL PLAN TO SPEND 360 MILLIONS

Cite Taxes, Jobs to Congressmen.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Beer, according to witnesses who testified before the house ways and means committee today, would ease the financial plight of the nation as it would ease the parched throats of the nation's people.

Brewery rehabilitation, largely in the middle west, would lead to expenditures of $360,000,000.

A tax of $5 a barrel on palatable beer would give the government from 200 million to 360 million dollars annually.

Jobs would be created immediately for 300,000 persons.

If draft beer were permitted, beer could sell at 5 cents a glass and still pay $5 a barrel tax. If only bottled beer is permitted the price would be 10 to 15 cents a bottle of 12 ounces.

A tax above $5 a barrel would make it impossible for the brewer to compete with the bootleggers, the racketeer, and the alley brewer.

Hoover Veto Ready?

While the drive for legalized beer before Christmas progressed with increasing speed there were reports that any bill modifying the Volstead act will meet with White House disapproval.

The circumstance that Secretary of the Treasury Mills did not mention beer as a possible source of revenue in his tax recommendations, as outlined in his annual report today, was interpreted as forecasting a veto of beer legislation by President Hoover.

On the other hand, Attorney General W. D. Mitchell, in his annual report, gave some slight hope to the wets with a recommendation that if the prohibition policy of the country is to be changed, it should be done speedily in the interests of law enforcement.

Hull Tried It in Sweden.

Representative William E. Hull [Rep., Ill.], won a laugh from spectators and committee when he described how he had consumed four bottles of 4 per cent beer while in Sweden last year and had not been affected mentally or physically.

"That shows 4 per cent beer is not intoxicating," he said.

"Do you think the Supreme court would consider such testimony?" taunted Representative Allen T. Treadway [Rep., Mass.], a dry.

"I can't see why not," shot back Hull. "I have a reputation for telling the truth."

Then Representative Robert L. Doughton [Dem., N. C.], another dry, questioned a statement by Hull that a widespread demand existed for beer.

Illustrates Supply, Demand.

"I don't know," responded the former Peoria distiller, "whether you attended a big party near Washington last spring which was attended by many congressmen. I noticed on that occasion that congressmen scrambled over themselves to get to a place where they were selling 4 per cent beer for 25 cents a drink. Every congressman and every one else broke their necks to get up to the bar."

Representative Doughton hastened to say he had not attended the party.

Several dry members of congress appeared perturbed as Hull spoke, but breathed more easily when he mentioned no names.

Eight witnesses appeared before the committee during the first day's hearing and gave testimony relative to the terms of one or another of the close to a hundred beer bills introduced in the present congress. In all cases the committee was urged to send a bill to the house which would call for 3.2 per cent beer by weight or 4 per cent by volume rather than the 2.75 per cent Collier beer bill now before the committee.

Chicagoans See Better Business.

Among today's witnesses were two Chicagoans, Walter P. Paepcke, president of the Container Corporation of America, and E. A. Srill, an official of the General Box company. Both asserted that beer legislation would boost their sales and increase employment at Chicago.

Paepcke said that the container industry as a whole would spend $13,100,000 more annually than at present if beer were legalized. Work would be supplied also, he said, for 4,000 men.

R. A. Huber, fifth vice president of the Anheuser-Busch Co., Inc., of St. Louis, and vice president of the United States Brewers' association, with Levi Cook, the association's Washington representative, were the major witnesses for the brewing industry. Representative John J. O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.] appeared in behalf of wet congressional groups.

Tells About Beer Making.

Huber, a stockily built man of less than medium height, went about his task of explaining the brewing industry to committee members in a calm, businesslike manner. Throughout his testimony he emphasized the relief for the idle and rehabilitation advantages of the return of legalized beer. He sketched rapidly the output of the brewers prior to prohibition, indicated their probable output in event of passage of a beer bill, and outlined the revenue which he said experience had shown would be derived from a tax on beer.

It was Mr. Huber's opinion that $5 represented the highest tax which the government should attempt to collect on a barrel of beer prior to the complete rehabilitation of the beer industry. He declared that, if an attempt were made to impose a higher tax, beer legislation would be useless, as the bootleggers and racketeers would control the beer business and the treasury would collect no revenue.

Mr. Huber estimated that a year after passage of a 3.2 per cent beer only make possible the replacements bill, the nation would be consuming beer at the rate of 40,000,000 barrels a year. He urged a 4 per cent beer by volume. Mr. Huber gave these figures on the economic side of beer legalization.

Ready to Spend Millions.

Telegrams received today, he said, showed that the brewers would begin expending 360 million dollars on plant rehabilitation and the purchase of beer making materials as soon as a beer bill was passed. On a basis of an annual output of 25,000,000 barrels of beer, he said, work would be found for 300,000 persons now idle. He added that a market would be afforded annually for billions of pounds of hops, rice, malt, and other raw materials used in the manufacture of beer.

The United States Brewers' association membership now controls sixty-six breweries, Mr. Huber said. He added that at present it controls 80 per cent of the capital invested in the beer industry. Figures he presented to the committee showed that prior to prohibition the largest beer output in a single year was 66,189,000 barrels in 1914. The largest revenue for any year was 126 million dollars in 1918.

Mr. Huber said he considered a tax of $5 a barrel reasonable. At the present tax rate of $6 beer could be brewed and sold for from $12 to $13 a barrel, he said, or at a rate of about $3 more if the beer were bottled. He estimated that beer could be sold by the case at $2.16 a case, or 9 cents a bottle. The actual cost of brewing and marketing a barrel of beer on the basis of a 40 million capacity was set by Huber at $6. As an indication of the market for grains which would be afforded by legalized liquor, Mr. Huber referred the committee to 1916, when he said the following raw materials were used:

2 billion, 141 million pounds of malt.
604 million pounds of corn.
167 million pounds of rice.
145 million pounds of other grains and
109 million pounds of sirup.

WOMEN'S CLUB TO DRAFT MODEL SPENDING PLAN

A "stretching the dollar campaign" will be inaugurated by the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's organizations by Jan. 1, in which members will be provided with model budgets for family incomes, it was announced yesterday. The board of the federation voted yesterday to sponsor such a program.

"A plan for spending will stretch any income," said Mrs. Henry W. Hardy, 5747 Kimbark avenue, president of the federation. "We are going to urge our members to put their households on a business basis by adopting such a plan. We hope to have a practical spending plan in the hands of every interested woman before Jan. 1."

An all day forum on educational problems will be sponsored by the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's organizations tomorrow at the federation headquarters.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Now that prohibition is doomed, as Mr. Roosevelt said, the best minds of congress are beginning to give serious thought to the question of just what constitutes a saloon.

It is agreed, even the wets concurring, that the saloon must not come back, but it is realized, nevertheless, that when prohibition is repealed there will have to be places in which alcoholic beverages may be sold. Otherwise there will be no way of raising the tax of one million dollars a day from beer alone which has been promised by the lobbyists of the United States Brewers' association and the customers will be forced to continue to frequent speakeasies.

The English have a word for it, calling such places pubs, but there is a possibility that a saloon by any other name would smell the same and come under the verboten.

Recalls Swinging Doors.

A saloon is remembered as a place with swinging doors, and it would not be hard to arouse sentiment against the return of the swinging door, if that would cover the case, because these doors had a tendency to swing back viciously and hit persons from behind, sometimes causing misunderstandings and fights.

Mr. Fred A. Britten, the member from Chicago, proposes that the new beverage parlors be called grocery stores and drug stores, and is preparing a bill to require each grocery store to keep on hand not less than one can of tomatoes, one box of crackers, and a nickel's worth of carrots at all times.

The drug stores would be compelled to maintain a stock of not less than one pneumatic beach ball, one double decker ham and swiss on rye sandwich with Russian dressing, and one volume of the collected works of Herman Melville, reduced from $2.50 to 75 cents.

Romance May Suffer.

It is practically certain that the romance of drinking will be seriously curtailed under the new law because beer and wine are now beginning to acquire a previously unsuspected innocence and virtue and there is a possibility that the beverage interests are overdoing this sort of propaganda.

"I am afraid," Mr. Britten said, "that when prohibition is repealed and it becomes legal to buy drinks over the counter without any necessity for walking up dark alleys and dirty stairways, the great army of protest drinkers who have been drinking the good fight against prohibition since 1920 will take it as a command to cease drinking and never drink or talk about drinking any more.

"It is my recollection that we did not talk much about our beverages before prohibition because drinking was as commonplace as eating. People do not discuss their food the day after a big dinner and I don't believe I ever heard a host say as he was about to carve a roast, 'Boy, you can sail into this without any worry whatever, as it comes straight from the lamb and I have been dealing with this butcher for three months.'

Sawdust Might Help.

"There is a risk that we may make beer and wine too easy to get and defeat the revenue purposes of the repeal by alienating large numbers of faithful and devoted drinkers who were attracted by the sporting aspects of the thing. If they think it is good for them with a definite food value they may turn against it. A man might not like to think that he was drinking the equivalent of six boiled potatoes, two chops, or a New England boiled dinner. A little sawdust on the floor might be reassuring."

While the congressmen are puzzling over a substitute for the word saloon and trying to think of some way to compel people who buy drinks with their meals to eat the meals, there is a curious reaction on the part of many devoted wets to the demand that the dry states be protected from importations from the wet ones.

Would Keep Them Dry.

Far from wishing to flood the dry states with alcoholic beverages, the extremely wet take the position that such communities do not deserve to benefit from the repeal and should be compelled to remain dry. It was Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, San Francisco, New Orleans, and a few other cities which carried on the campaign over the years since 1920 without any help from Kansas, Iowa, Indiana, or Nebraska, and there is no disposition to let them share in the relief bought at the cost of so many headaches by the great army of devoted, serious drinkers. However, it is an odd fact that congressmen representing extremely dry districts cannot trust their constituents to let it alone.

"You promise that the saloon will not come back," one of the dry brothers yelled during the debate, "but I would like to know what you are going to call those places where people drink drinks."

It looks as though the grocery and drug store business is in for a great increase in the next few years.

Causes Dilemma

Mrs. Katherine Kunz, 4502 Fullerton avenue, yesterday sought advice as to what she should do with a fox which followed her home Tuesday night. Believing it to be a dog, she patted it on the head and the fox entered her home without hesitation. Yesterday the fox stayed close to her all day and would not allow any one else to touch it. "They tell me that the fox will die if I try to keep it indoors. I don't know whether to wear it or give it to a park zoo, where it can be kept alive," said Mrs. Kunz.

LOG RAFT TO HELP IDLE.

Vincennes, Ind., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Old time river scenes along the Wabash were revived today when a large raft of logs, 25 feet wide and 250 feet long, was floated down the river and anchored at the foot of Portland avenue. The logs are to be cut into stovewood for distribution among the poor.

MINORITY RULE OF U. S. ATTACKED BY BECK PLAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—Two constitutional questions were brought up on the floor of the house today by James M. Beck, former solicitor general of the United States, and an authority on the nation's basic law.

In one statement he took issue with a former attorney general of the United States as to the power of congress to specify concerning conventions to be called by the various states to deal wtih the 18th amendment. In the other he proposed a method by which in future a feature repugnant to the majority of the people would not remain in the constitution, because of active minorities in small states. His plan would effect changes by a majority of more than half of the states, when containing three-quarters or more of the population.

Takes Issue with Palmer.

Mr. Beck took issue with the brief recently submitted to members of congress by A. Mitchell Palmer, attorney general under President Wilson. Mr. Beck denied Mr. Palmer's contention that the power of congress to specify the ratification of a constitutional amendment by state conventions carried with it authority for congress to prescribe how and when the convention should be held, and the delegates to them chosen.

Mr. Beck gave notice that he intended to submit an amendment to article V, the amending article of the constitution, which would safeguard against abuse of the ratification power by states containing a small minority of the population. His amendment would provide ratification by more than half the several states, either by legislature or convention, provided the states so ratifying have a population at least equal to three-fourths of the population of the United States. The constitution now can be amended only when two-thirds of the states ratify a change.

Mitchell Makes Report.

If the prohibition policy of the United States is to be changed it should be changed swiftly. That was Attorney General William D. Mitchell's assertion in his annual report.

"First, the changes, if any," he said, "should be made as quickly as possible. Second, changes should be made through amendment of substantive law and not by leaving laws on the statute books and scuttling them by refusing to appropriate money for their enforcement.

"It is evident that the present state of the public mind will make the task of the officers of the law doubly difficult and increase the breakdown and disrespect for the law, unless changes which are to be made are made speedily. Furthermore, one of the principal arguments against our prohibition system has been that it has created disrespect for the law, and nothing can be imagined which would tend more to create that disrespect than to have criminal statutes in force but relax effort to enforce them."

WASHINGTON STATE CASTS OFF ITS 16 YEAR OLD DRY LAW TODAY

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Tomorrow Washington state turns its back upon almost 16 years of "bone dry" prohibition.

An initiative legalizing prohibition in the state was adopted in November, 1916, by a plurality of between 15,000 and 20,000 votes. The statute became effective Jan. 1, 1916, four years before the nation adopted prohibition.

A month ago the electorate threw out the law, casting over 60,000 more votes for repeal than for retention. The repeal was effective in 30 days.

SENATOR LEWIS QUITS HOSPITAL FOR WET FIGHT

"You may expect the senate to vote for outright repeal and thus send the question back to the house," he said. "Sentiment in the senate is stronger for repeal and a complete new start in the handling of this problem than it is for the patchwork of modification."

The Illinois senator spent several weeks under medical care because of complications following a tonsilectomy performed last fall. He is still far below his normal strength, but said he felt he could take part in the anti-prohibition movement.

DEMOCRATS MAP THEIR WORK FOR SHORT SESSION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Senate Democrats in caucus today agreed upon an eight point program of procedure for this session of congress, contemplating action on Philippine independence, the Glass banking bill, agriculture, taxation and relief, economy and government retrenchment, repeal and modification, and the world court.

1. That priority be given to general appropriation bills when ready for consideration.

2. That the special order for Dec. 8, the Philippine independence bill, be proceeded with.

Banking Bill on List.

3. That the Glass banking bill which was considered at length during the last session be finally disposed of.

4. Agriculture, taxation and relief legislation be taken up as soon as its preparation can be completed and be brought to a prompt decision in accordance with the pledges of the party.

5. Measures and amendments pertaining to economy and retrenchment to be acted upon with reasonable promptness when presented.

6. At any time when one of the foregoing subjects is not ready for consideration, if a report of the judiciary committee has been made pertaining to the submission of an amendment to the consitution to repeal the eighteenth amendment a motion shall be made to proceed to its consideration.

Modification Program.

7. In the event a revenue bill is sent to the senate providing for the modification of the Volstead act and for the imposition of a tax on beer, a motion shall be made to commit the same to the judiciary committee for report including its constitutionality and thereafter to the finance committee for report upon its revenue features and following such report and during the present session of congress a vote shall be taken on the passage of the bill.

8. Efforts to be made to secure action on the resolutions of ratification relating to the world court protocols.

"MOIST THROAT" AIDS COUGH RELIEF

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny bottles continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . until you "catch cold."

Then these "bottles" get plugged up, phlegm accumulates, affording dangerous germs a breeding place. Your throat feels hot and dry. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when the flow of the natural fluid is increased, loosening the phlegm so that it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely deaden the nerves . . but don't get at the root of the trouble.

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, which doctors have prescribed for many years, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of the throat's natural moisture and brings quick relief. It helps nature heal that awful cough from the inside out.

When you feel that warning dryness take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN. It's absolutely safe. Sold at all drug stores, 60¢.

MAYOR OUTLINES CITY MERGERS TO SAVE $2,500,000

Proposed consolidations of city departments, which it is claimed will make possible reductions of $2,500,000 in the 1933 city corporate fund budget, were outlined yesterday by Mayor Cermak to his advisory committee and the citizens' committee on public expenditures. Partially offsetting these reductions, Mayor Cermak proposed also that 500 patrolmen be added to the police department at an annual cost which will rise in two years from $900,000 to $1,250,000.

The conference, held in his office, also concerned a proposed budgetary law which would set up a commission to exercise centralized control of the budget policies of all the large local governments in Cook county. Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago, who recently finished a report on consolidation of Cook county governments, was appointed to draft a resolution on the budget control commission which will be presented to the various governments for approval.

5 Department Consolidations.

In addition to fixe department consolidation proposals which he will recommend to the council finance committee for incorporation in the 1933 budget, the mayor and his advisers also have under consideration proposals to make city collection of ashes, rubbish and garbage, for which the city now appropriates $6,000,000 a year, a self-supporting activity.

This, said John F. Cullerton, a member of the committee appointed last week by Mayor Cermak to consider budget economies, might be accomplished in one of two ways.

At present, Mr. Cullerton said, the city does only about 55 per cent of the garbage and ash removal work. Stores, office buildings, hotels, apartment buildings above a certain size and manufacturing plants are required to dispose of their own waste. The city has the machinery, however, to take care of 100 per cent of the collection.

It is proposed either that the city make garbage and ash removal a city monopoly and charge every one for the service or that it abandon its waste removal activities entirely, turning them over to private contractors who would collect from individual citizens for the service. Under the first plan, Mr. Cullerton believes, the collection service could probably be placed on a paying basis, although perhaps not in the first year. Under the second, there would be an outright saving of $6,000,000 in appropriations.

Propose Five Day Week.

This proposal, as well as one for a six hour day and a five day week in all city departments except police and fire, are still in the formative stage. The more definite proposals to be recommended to the finance committee follow:

1. Eliminate corporate fund appropriations for the board of local improvements and shift the bridge division of the department of public works into the board of local improvements, which already does some bridge building work. The board of local improvements gets 5 per cent of every bond issue and special assessment project which it supervises, and would be expected, under this proposal, to finance its activities on the bond and special assessment fees. Since practically all bridges are built out of bond issues, work of the bridge division would be financed in the same manner. This change, it is estimated, would save corporate fund appropriations of $800,000 to $1,000,000.

Pay Licenses to Police.

2. Abolish the license bureau, except for a few employés familiar with the 600-odd licenses which the city sells. Each police station would have a license division. Store owners, when they pay their license fees, would be given stickers similar to vehicle tax stickers to paste on their windows. Every policeman traveling a beat would then be able to act also as a license inspector. The city would be divided into zones of a number of police districts each, with one of the employés retained out of the license bureau supervising police license collections. This, it is estimated, would save $370,000 in appropriations from the corporate and vehicle tax fund.

3. Centralize city inspection services. All inspection services having to do with public safety or buildings would be concentrated in the building department. Miscellaneous inspection services would be merged, along with the city sealer's office, in the department of public service, which has few real functions at present, or that department and the inspection services would be consolidated with the city sealer's office. These consolidations, it is estimated, would have $350,000 a year.

A Matter of Bookkeeping.

4. Pay all expenses of the bureau of sewers, now in the department of public works, out of the water fund, which now pays 80 per cent of the bureau's expenses. This would make a paper saving of $279,000 out of corporate fund appropriations, but the saving would be merely a matter of bookkeeping, transferring the expense from general taxpayers to water rate payers.

5. Establish a department of transportation in which all trucking activities of the city would be concentrated. Other departments would requisition truck services as they need them. The city would either buy enough trucks to eliminate the necessity of hiring any or would dispose of all its trucks and hire all its trucking done. In the latter case, Mr. Cullerton said, the city would pay only for the time trucks were actually in use.

The city hires a number of trucks now, and this trucking patronage has always been considered "gravy" for aldermen and ward committeemen. The expense of using private trucks, it has been charged, is greatly in excess of the cost of doing the same work with city trucks. Mr. Cullerton estimated, however, that the proposed department of transportation would save $500,000 a year.

Plan Other Economies.

Mr. Cullerton said that Mayor Cermak has other corporate fund economies under consideration which he believes will bring the total savings, exclusive of ash and garbage removal reforms, to four million dollars.

Mayor Cermak proposes that if new patrolmen are added to the police force they start at $1,800 a year instead of $2,140, the old rate for new patrolmen. Their pay, under his proposal, would be raised to $2,500, the present maximum for patrolmen, at the end of two years.

Among those who attended yesterday's conference, besides Mayor Cermak, Prof. Merriam, and Mr. Cullerton, were Fred W. Sargent, chairman of the citizens' committee; Sewell L. Avery, chairman of the mayor's advisory committee; D. F. Kelly, Ernest R. Graham, Joshua D'Esposito, and Commissioner of Public Works Sprague.

SENATE DEMOCRATS BAN LARGE LIST OF HOOVER NOMINATIONS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Senate Democrats announced today they would prevent the confirmation of all of President Hoover's nominations, except routine promotions, for the remainder of his term.

They determined that that was the customary course when the presidency changes party hands at a conference after Mr. Hoover had submitted a batch of nominations, ranging from army promotions to a cabinet officer.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, announced that the conference action was taken in order that those serving under the new administration would be in harmony with its policies and does not apply to terms after March 4.

This limitation will permit confirmation of Roy D. Chapin of Michigan as secretary of commerce.

The Democratic ban included, however, some of the most important posts in the executive branch of the government. It included those of Ernest I. Lewis of Indiana to the interstate commerce commission, Morton Bodfish of Illinois to the federal Home Loan bank board, and George E. Q. Johnson, former district attorney at Chicago, to be district judge.

Threaten Fight on Pair Backing Democrat.

On the heels of the election of William H. McDonnell, Democrat, editor of the South Town Economist, as a member of the south park board yesterday two Republican judges of the Circuit court were threatened with organized opposition when they come up for re-election next June.

W. H. M'DONNELL.

McDonnell's election to fill the vacancy on the park board caused by the resignation of John Bain took place at a meeting of the Circuit court judges in the chambers of Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan. It was made possible by the votes of Judges Michael Feinberg and Stanley H. Klarkowski, Republicans, who voted with the nine Democratic judges and decided the victory, 11 to 9.

Committee Sees Judges.

As the meeting dissolved the two Republicans who "went Democratic" were greeted by a subcommittee of the Republican county central committee consisting of John Leonard East, Patrick Sheridan Smith and Robert Rowan, all south siders.

"I told them," said East later, "that if they were going to play that kind of politics, if they were going to support the Democrats, they could look to the Democrats for their ov support."

This was the windup of a day of some excitement among the Republicans. It was disclosed last Sunday that the Democrats, although having only nine of the twenty Circuit judges from their own ranks, were confident of McDonnell's election by a bipartisan combination such as has swung the elections of south park commissioners for several years.

The Republican organization went into action yesterday morning. At 11 o'clock a hurriedly called meeting of the county committee was held. Resolutions were adopted setting forth that the south park district is Republican territory, that a majority of the Circuit judges are Republican, and that the election of a Republican to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Bain should be expected.

There followed a caucus of the nineteen south side ward committeemen which unanimously indorsed Thomas E. Wilson, packer, Mr. Wilson had consented to the use of his name.

Nine Back Caucus Nominee.

Then the eleven Republican judges were asked to meet at the Bismarck hotel an hour before the official meeting of the entire bench. Nine responded. The absentees were Judges Feinberg and Klarkowski. The nine present agreed to vote for Mr. Wilson and at the meeting in Chief Justice Finnegan's chambers voted down a motion to make Mr. McDonnell's election unanimous.

Politically Judges Feinberg and Iarkowski are known as followers of Robert E. Crowe, former state's attorney. They were elected to the bench on a coalition ticket in 1927, their sponsor being Crowe, who at that time controlled the Republican county convention which made the nominations.

CERMAK REPLIES TO SCHOOLBOY CRITIC COACHED BY THE DRYS

The Saracens, a prohibition organization which takes its name from the infidels who fought the original Crusaders, yesterday made public an exchange of letters between Mayor Cermak and a school boy who had been tutored in prohibition propaganda classes conducted last summer by the Saracens.

The boy, John A. Griffith, is now a freshman at Geneva college, Beaver Falls, Pa. He based his letter on a dispatch carried by a news service and printed in a Pittsburgh newspaper, which stated that Mayor Cermak was one of the owners of the "old Pilsner brewery" and quoted him as saying that Chicago brewers need not wait for the repeal of the state search and seizure act, since Chicago police would not enforce it so far as beer was concerned. Mayor Cermak denied that he had made such a statement as soon as the report was published.

"You, a servant of the people, entrusted with responsible government position, humiliate Old Glory by trampling under foot the sacred laws of this nation," young Griffith wrote in part.

"I think you are worrying too much about Chicago public affairs," said Mayor Cermak in his reply. "A close attention to your studies at Beaver Falls will result in greater benefits to your country and yourself than attempts to guide the administration of public affairs in Chicago."

Two Judges Warn Receivers to Pay Taxes or Lose Jobs

Judges Denis E. Sullivan and Robert E. Gentzel, who hear practically all foreclosure and receivership matters in the Superior court, gave notice yesterday that every receiver appointed by the court will be summarily removed unless he has paid at least 60 per cent of the taxes due on the property which he controls.

They took action after two receivership cases had come to their attention, in one of which the Chicago Title and Trust company is receiver, while in the other the receiver is Chester Davis, head of the trust department of that company. In each case, the judges found, the receiver had failed to make tax payments despite the fact that a large cash balance is on hand.

DENIS E. SULLIVAN.

Hotel Has $286,000; Taxes Unpaid.

The first case was that of the Shoreland hotel, in which Judge Gentzel appointed the title and trust company receiver. The hotel has a monthly income of $56,000 and at present the receiver has $286,000 in cash on hand, yet County Judge Jarecki recently entered judgment against the hotel for unpaid taxes for 1927 to 1930, inclusive, totaling $193,000.

The second property is a store and office building at Milwaukee avenue and Rockwell street, for which Davis is receiver. It has a monthly income of $65,000 and the receiver has $32,000 on hand, Judge Gentzel was informed. Its taxes for the last three years totaled $82,000 of which $70,000 is still unpaid.

Orders Receiver to Pay.

Judge Gentzel, when he made these discoveries, went to Judge Sullivan's chambers. Judge Sullivan called Davis at once on the telephone and instructed him to pay the back taxes on the Shoreland hotel and to apply the cash he has on hand to the tax bills of the other property.

The two judges then made the joint announcement that receivers under their jurisdiction must pay taxes regardless of operating expenses or administrative charges [receivers' and attorneys' fees]. They ordered their clerks to make a survey of all receiverships in their courts. The receivers will all be called into court, the judges said, and if they have not paid the taxes by the time they appear they will be removed.

Must Pay Part If Fight Pends.

The 60 per cent payment was set as a minimum and not a maximum, for tax payments to apply in cases where objections have already been filed to tax payments, the judges said. In these cases the receivers will be permitted to seek hearings on the objections, but they must make such payments as are ordered by the court as soon as the cases are settled in the County court.

Receivers will not be permitted, however, to file any further tax objections, Judge Sullivan and Judge Gentzel said. If owners of the property in receivership wish to file objections they may do so, but the action must be taken at their own expense and without any assistance from the receivers or the receivers' attorneys.

A total of $207,700 in delinquent 1928, 1929, and 1930 taxes was paid in the treasurer's office yesterday. Among those making payments were Charles Young, receiver for the Pure Oil building, 35 East Wacker drive, who was ordered to make payments by the courts. He turned over $5,462 on his bill, which amounts to several hundred thousand dollars.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki overruled 150 objections to 1928, 1929, and 1930 taxes pending in his court yesterday and set 107 cases for hearing today. Of this latter group all were owners who wanted immediate hearings to benefit by the remittance of half the accumulated penalties against their properties. The judge has announced that this remittance will cease on Dec. 15.

GETS NINE MONTHS FOR SHOOTING.

George Pickard, 28 years old, owner of an alleged beer flat at 4508 North Racine avenue, was sentenced to nine months in the Bridewell yesterday on a charge of assault to kill. Pickard was charged with shooting Vincent Murphy and William Adams last Jan. 3.

We gallantly throw a life line to gift-floundering husbands

We always feel sorry at holiday time for those bewildered men who never know what to give their wives.

This year we've made up our minds not to let them wallow again in the perilous sea of Christmas shopping. We're going to take them by the hand and lead them straight to our Hoover section. We're going to explain to them what we have found out from years of experience—that women are simply cra-zee about getting a Hoover for Christmas.

And then we are going to tell them what every husband really already should know—that The Hoover is the easiest gift in the world to buy. No big outlay—just a small down payment—smaller than ever this year. Lower prices—more time to complete payments—and a liberal allowance for old electric cleaners.

RIDING MASTER GIRL ACCUSED FOUND GUILTY

Sidney Homewood Faces Prison Term, Fine.

New York, Dec. 7.—[Special.]—It took a jury just fifty-eight minutes in Rockland county court this afternoon to decide that Sidney Homewood, riding master, was guilty as charged of betraying Miss Charlotte Gibson, 23 year old debutante. He faces a possible term of five years, plus a fine of $1,000.

The girl, who is soon to become a mother, charged that Homewood had taken advantage of her lack of knowledge of the ways of the world, luring her with promises of marriage which he refused to keep. Evidence showed that the plaintiff's father, a lawyer, had insisted rather strenuously on the marriage and had had Homewood arrested when the latter refused to agree.

Called "Ace of Cads."

In his final address to the jury District Attorney Henry V. Stebbins denounced Homewood as an "ace of cads" and demanded his conviction "that women may be safe."

Homewood on the witness stand yesterday confessed intimacies with the girl, but denied he ever had given her reason to suppose he intended to marry her. He pictured himself as "a man pursued." He said she went to his home and to the riding academy where he was employed in an effort—usually successful—to induce him to go out with her.

Breaks Down as Witness.

During cross-questioning Miss Gibson twice collapsed, repeatedly appealing to the defense lawyer, "Please don't ask me that."

Attorney Robert Finkelstein for Homewood told the jury by way of excusing some of those questions that "we are not really cold-blooded; we have really been grieved to stand here and reveal Miss Gibson's intimate relations with other men. We know that she has gone through hell and is suffering, that she has been dragged through filth and notoriety, but we have had to defend ourselves. Sidney Homewood also has suffered."

The lawyer argued that the case represented a modern version of the old garden of Eden story—"The woman tempted him and she knew full well what she was doing."

The lawyer also added, "Gentlemen, I think Charlotte Gibson was much too good for mere amateur theatricals."

Prosecutor's Views.

Prosecutor Stebbins told the jurors: "Charlotte Gibson felt she was one girl who had every reason to believe her lover to be on the level. She did not know that when he instructed her to keep their engagement secret he never intended to marry her.

"Willingly would I place this girl's hand in his and send them out into the world to live happily as man and wife, but it is too late. He does not want her. He does not want their child."

Justice George H. Taylor Jr. told the jurors they must base the verdict on two legal points—was Miss Gibson of chaste character prior to March 1, 1932, and did Homewood actually promise to marry her?

WONMAN GETS YEAR FOR THEFT.

Miss Joan Roberts, 29 years old, who has a long record as a shoplifter, was sentenced to a year in the Dwight reformatory yesterday by Judge Joseph A. Graber on a charge of stealing a purse from a loop store.

CRUSADERS SEEK WORK FOR YOUTH SHOT BY GILDAY

Plight Recalls Trial of Dry Reformer.

Col. Ira L. Reeves, western manager of the Crusaders, national organization opposed to prohibition, yesterday announced that he and his associates are striving to find a job for 18 year old Herman Knol.

The youth, Col. Reeves asserted, was one of the outstanding victims of sham prohibition and of hypocrisy. On Nov. 29, 1931, he was shot and seriously injured by Daniel Gilday, dry reformer and head of the so-called Englewood Law and Order league.

Shot When He Offers Aid.

For weeks Knol lay in a hospital, with death not far away. Now he has fully recovered, but since his trouble has not been able to find employment.

Gilday was tried for the shooting. Testimony showed that Knol and Herman Aikema, a companion, were on their way to a church service at 7014 South Halsted street when they met Gilday. The youths, seeing that he was intoxicated, offered to help him home. Instead of accepting the offer, the reformer pulled out a pistol which a prohibition agent had given him and shot Knol.

Dry Pleads He Was "Too Drunk."

The reformer's defense was that he was so intoxicated he didn't know what he was doing. He had become intoxicated, he claimed, gathering evidence against prohibition law violators. When the case went to the jury he was found guilty of assault to murder and was sentenced to 1 to 14 years in prison. The case has been appealed, however, and Gilday is at liberty on bonds.

Recently Knol wrote to Col. Reeves, calling attention to the fact that he was a member of a family of seven, three of whom are anxiously seeking work and unable to find it. The assistance of the Crusaders was pledged in recognition of the sufferings of the youth through prohibition.

U. S. SEEKS LIST OF LOOT TAKEN IN MAIL HOLDUP

A list of the securities, checks, and other valuable papers taken in the $500,000 mail robbery in the loop on Tuesday was being compiled yesterday. This list, bearing the numbers of the stolen securities, is to be sent to every financial institution in the country, making it difficult for the bandits to sell their loot. It may also lead to the capture of the robbers, postal inspectors said.

K. P. Aldrich, chief postal inspector of this district, whose office has a record of 100 per cent in capturing and convicting mail robbers, returned to the city and took charge of the hunt that will not end until the five gunmen are brought to court. In the absence of even a hint of the identity of the bandits he and his assistants were waiting for some of the securities to be offered for sale.

No Currency in Bag.

As far as was known yesterday there was no currency in the shipment of mail, all of which was consigned to the First National bank of Chicago and its affiliate, the First Union Trust and Savings bank, although it was said there might have been a few old or mutilated bills sent in for exchange. There was no loss to the two Chicago banks, it was pointed out, but correspondent banks which had mail in the stolen sack will suffer considerable annoyance, though probably no loss, because the securities are all believed to have been insured.

The difficulties will come, it was explained, through shortages in customers' accounts. Postal officials are seeking to learn the names on all checks in the lost mail. Checks drawn on the Chicago banks and cashed in other cities are believed to be irretrievably lost, as the robbers would have no use for them, and these will furnish bookkeeping troubles.

The federal operatives believe the robbers will try to dispose of their assortment of valuable paper, probably through a fence or shady broker, as this was virtually all the robbers got for their efforts. They face 25 years' imprisonment if caught.

An Early Morning Robbery.

The robbery occurred across the street from the federal building, as Fred Voelsch, who delivers registered mail to the First National bank regularly every morning at 7 o'clock, and his armed guard, Frank Stastny, were making their usual trip—the distance is a block and a half—on foot. No connivance by postal employés would have been needed for the robbers to get the information that Voelsch and Stastny delivered the valuable mail in this fashion every day, postal inspectors said; hence no government employé was suspected.

Therefore the postal inspectors had no starting point in their investigation, it was explained, but sooner or later they expect the trail will be picked up with the appearance of some paper that was in the sack of mail the robbers took from Voelsch.

MARCHERS' CAMP DESERTED; FEAR OUTBREAK OF FLU

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—The communist group which descended upon the capital three thousand strong last Sunday was gone today and its camp deserted, but echoes of the invasion could be heard in the house of representatives and in the district health department.

In the house Representative F. H. La Guardia, New York radical, delivered a protest against the reception given the demonstrators by municipal officials and police, but admitted that the march was under the "auspices of communism," that its leaders were avowed communists, and that a communistic attitude permeated the rank and file of the "army."

"It is symtomatic of conditions in this country," said Mr. La Guardia. "It seems to me that their arrangements to come here might have been simplified. They had the right to go to rented quarters if they had them."

District health officials were concerned over the possibility of an outbreak of influenza inasmuch as thirty of the marchers were found to be suffering from influenza. Five were taken to the hospital, the others to homes of sympathizers.

Attorneys for the surface lines last night informed the board of tax appeals that a fair assessed value of the lines' personal property for the 1931 tax rolls is $27,000,000. This is $15,000,000 under Assessor Jacobs' valuation of $42,000,000, which the lines are protesting. After hearing the evidence, Fred W. Brummel and George F. Nixon, the board members, announced that they would make public their findings next Wednesday evening.

When the hearing—the third the board has granted the lines—opened, Attorney John R. Guilliams, general counsel for the lines, attempted to introduce charts, blue prints, graphs, engineers' reports and auditors' accounts covering every item of personalty owned by the lines. Harry S. Cutmore, chief deputy assessor, who appeared in the absence of Assessor Jacobs, cut short the witnesses.

Property Worth 200 Million.

"We could go on interminably hearing about conduits, poles, tracks, and cars, but there is no point to it," said Mr. Cutmore. "The assessor's analysis of the surface lines property shows that they own personalty worth somewhere in the neighborhood of $200,000,000. After applying the 37 per cent equalization factor the result would still be far in excess of the value as fixed by our office. I believe the assessor's values are very fair."

At the suggestion of the board members the surface line auditors made a quick analysis of a chart which classified the personal property of the lines. Attorney Guilliams then announced that he had no more evidence to introduce.

The board called upon Guy Richardson, president of the lines, who had appeared with his lawyers. He stated that the basis of the 1931 assessment was particularly important since it was the first under the new taxing machinery. He said that the lawyers had been instructed to give the assessor every assistance. He added that the companies were eager to pay their taxes, and had shown their support of government by buying tax warrants from the various taxing bodies at face value.

Pay City $121,000,000.

W. H. Kennedy, auditor for the lines, testified that the companies had paid out in "public benefits," including taxes, 55 per cent of their profits, $1,000 a day to the city for cleaning tracks, a total of $121,000,000 since 1908. Of this taxes alone amounted to $49,233,892. The lines have earned an average of 5.62 per cent on the capital invested since 1914, he testified, rising to a peak of 6.50 per cent in 1917 and a low of 4.71 per cent earned in 1932.

Cutmore said that the allied lines paid almost $5,000,000 in 1930 personal property taxes on an assessed valuation of $42,923,000. This was done after Attorney Lee La Rochelle, special county tax lawyer, had filed suit against the lines before Circuit Judge Craig Hood.

ITALIANS MAN PERSIA'S NAVY AS OIL ROW GROWS

(Copyright, 1932, By the New York Times.)

LONDON, Dec. 7.—A dangerous complication looms in Britain's refusal to countenance cancellation of the Anglo-Persian company's oil concession. The cabinet learned today that six newly completed Persian gunboats are patrolling the Persian gulf manned entirely by Italian crews.

These Diesel engined craft—two of them 930 tons and four 331 tons—were delivered from Italian shipyards this year. Italy agreed with Shah Riza Khan's government to man them until Persians were trained well enough to take them over, and so far few Persians are available. Thus, if Britain lands marines to protect their giant oil refinery at Abadan, difficulty with Italy is imminent.

The cabinet also learned that an Italian trade mission is hurrying to Teheran in an attempt to ward off the automobile and rubber monopoly which the shah was on the point of granting to General Motors and Firestone interests in Persia. The shah has now delayed action until the Italian mission arrives.

Decline Cabinet Jobs

New York, Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Owen D. Young and Melvin A. Traylor of Chicago both have been offered posts in the cabinet of President Elect Roosevelt, it was reported here today, and both have refused.

According to the report, the secretaryship of state was tendered to Mr. Young and that of the treasury to Mr. Traylor.

Mr. Young, it was stated, declined on the ground that, in the present situation, he felt himself unable to give up his present position as chairman of the board of General Electric, both in his own interest and in that of the company. Mr. Traylor's refusal, it is understood, was based on similar grounds.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 7.—[Special.]—President Elect Roosevelt returned to New York City tonight from Warm Springs, Ga., to attend to his concluding duties as governor of the state of New York.

He conferred at his city house on 62d street with Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, who called a special session of the New York legislature for Friday to consider economy measures for New York City, and with Mayor Joseph W. McKee and City Controller Charles W. Berry of New York, and Charles E. Mitchell of the National City bank and Winthrop W. Aldrich of the Chase National bank.

Tammany Leader John F. Curry arrived at the Roosevelt home at 10 p. m. in the conference, as did George Whitney of J. P. Morgan & Co. and William H. Woodin, president of the National Car and Foundry company, a close friend of Gov. Roosevelt.

To Consider Smith Proposals.

Tomorrow morning Mr. Roosevelt will go by train to Albany, Lieut. Gov. Lehman accompanying him, and by Friday morning he will have completed his message in time for the convening of the assembly.

The governor expects to widen the scope of the session to include consideration of proposals made by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith for reforms in New York City government.

Makes Plans for Future.

Seeming in the highest of spirits as a result of his visit to his home in Warm Springs, Mr. Roosevelt today revealed some of his plans for his later visit to that resort. After his term as governor of New York expires, Jan. 1, Mr. Roosevelt will spend a couple of weeks in New York City and in Hyde Park. About Jan. 18 he will go back to Warm Springs and, banning all visitors except those whom he has invited, will study exhaustively the items which go into the federal budget. It was denied that he would consider appointments to his cabinet.

The President elect does not plan to take a houseboat cruise off the Florida coast during the winter, as had been reported.

DUCE'S AMNESTY FREES 19,572 ANTI-FASCISTS

ROME, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Under Premier Mussolini's amnesty for political prisoners 19,572 persons, including 1,317 women, already have been liberated, and still others may be, it was announced today. The decree affected more than half of those who were detained on or destined to be sent to prison islands.

The council of ministers on Nov. 5 approved the premier's amnesty, made in connection with the Fascist decennial. Il Duce said "the act would be a sign of strength rather than one of weakness."

Among the prisoners who perhaps will be subject to release are about 1,000 persons on the Lipari islands. It is understood that the only condition attached to prisoners' release under the amnesty will be their promise to accept the Fascist régime "as an accomplished fact" and to do nothing to disturb it.

LAST MINUTE LOAN PREVENTS GOTHAM DEFAULT

Tammany Chief Bows to Bankers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Yielding today to the terms of a demand agreed upon by the city's bankers and John F. Curry, Tammany leader, the board of estimate saved by a margin of fifteen minutes the city from defaulting a large part of $40,000,000 due today.

Confronted with a proposed resolution drafted by the bankers calling for a budget reduction of 20 million in addition to the $20,000,000 salary slash, already authorized but subject to legislative action at Albany, the board convened in a special session. It adopted the resolution for the second twenty million slash, to be made on expenditures for materials, equipment, and supplies.

Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee announced that the resolution was received at 2:26 o'clock. After it had been read and adopted the meeting adjourned at 2:45. At 3 o'clock the city was obligated to meet a $40,000,000 payment on its $151,000,000 revolving credit. The city lacked $12,500,000 of that amount. The banks supplied it at the last minute.

Claims 131 Million Savings.

Controller Charles W. Berry said the city will have reduced the 1933 budget by $131,000,000 after carrying into effect its pledge to cut $40,000,000, as described, from the city's expenses. He said the budget, carrying mandatory salary increases, had stood at more than $647,000,000 in tentative form. Through cutting this to $556,000,000 the board of estimate saved $91,000,000, he said. Including the $40,000,000, just mentioned, the total reduction, actual and planned, would stand at $131,000,000.

From now on the city must borrow money every day to meet that day's obligations. Duncan MacInnes, chief accountant of the finance department, reported to the controller that the banks had advanced $40,000,000 at 5 per cent for one week, with repayment due on Dec. 14. Through that loan the $40,000,000 due today was paid off and the city was left with a surplus toward payment of a $25,000,000 instalment due tomorrow on the same credit of $151,000,000.

Bankers and Curry Agree.

Mr. Curry's action today strengthened the belief that the bankers have been in touch with him on city finances for some weeks. It was learned the bankers had agreed on the terms of the resolution at a conference in the home of Charles E. Mitchell of the National City bank on Tuesday night.

Early today Mr. Curry received a copy of the resolution at his home and approved it before it was discussed with either Controller Berry or Acting Mayor McKee.

Other items which the bankers are to take care of include a pay roll of $17,000,000 a $3,500,000 bond issue for unemployment relief; $6,000,000 in subway contracts and the remainder due on the revolving credit fund obligations as they mature.

A better demand followed for New York City bonds. Toward the close of the stock exchange, the long term 4¼s were quoted at 8½ bid, offered at 88, an advance of a point over yesterday's closings.

All Officers Re-Elected

All officers of the Century of Progress exposition were reelected yesterday for a period of two years at the biennial meeting of the trustees in the Administration building of the exposition.

The officers reelected are: Rufus C. Dawes, president; Charles S. Peterson, vice president; Daniel H. Burnham, vice president and secretary, and George Woodruff, treasurer.

The contract for construction of the Horticultural building at the 1933 Fair was awarded to the E. W. Sproul Construction company, it was announced by H. A. Erlinger, in charge of the flower shows. The building, which will cost approximately $90,000, will be part of a development of gardens, promenades, and flower shows that will represent a total investment of $750,000, Mr. Erlinger said.

HORNER, CERMAK AND KELLY OFF TO N. Y. MEETING

Mayor Cermak, Governor Elect Horner, and E. J. Kelly, president of the south park board, made a previously unannounced departure for New York yesterday afternoon. The mayor expects to return tomorrow, it was learned.

The three political leaders are making the trip in connection with the meeting of the finance committee of the Democratic national committee tomorrow in New York. At that time, in addition to questions of party finance, national political patronage is to be discussed, and Mayor Cermak, Judge Horner, and Mr. Kelly, it is understood, will urge the appointment of Bruce Campbell, downstate leader in the Democratic party, as attorney general of the United States.

Mayor Cermak also is expected to confer with New York bankers concerning tax warrant purchases to meet city bond and interest requirements on Jan. 1. Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th] and Barnet Hodes [7th] also made the trip.

FROZEN ASSETS CLOSE BANK IN HIGHLAND PARK

The North Shore Trust company of Highland Park was closed yesterday by the state auditor on the request of the directors. At the same time Arthur W. Vercoe, president of the bank, submitted his resignation as an assistant supervisor of Lake county. Representing Deerfield township, Vercoe had been a member of the board of supervisors for seventeen years and had served as chairman of the finance committee for ten years.

"The bank is not insolvent," President Vercoe said yesterday. "It was closed because debtors of the bank could not liquidate their debts, and because of the stagnant condition of the real estate and bond markets. I have resigned from the board of supervisors because I do not consider it consistent for the president of a closed bank to remain as chairman of the finance committee."

Frank Stanton, chairman of the board of supervisors, expressed regret on being advised of the resignation.

"We are losing a valuable man," he said. "Mr. Vercoe has aided us greatly in financial affairs. He had a great deal to do with the economy measures of the last few years."

The bank statement of Jan. 1, 1932, showed capital of $100,000, surplus of $119,070, and deposit liabilities of $674,930. President Vercoe said that the deposit liability at present is approximately $600,000. County funds totaling $73,000, deposited by Jay B. Morris, county collector, were in the bank, and funds of the Deerfield-Shields High school and grade schools of Highland Park amounting to $35,000 had been deposited by W. M. Dooley, Deerfield township treasurer and a vice president of the bank.

CHURCH VOTES TO TAKE ACTIVE PART IN FAIR

Methodists to Sponsor Boy Scout Work.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Announcement that the Methodist Episcopal church will participate actively in A Century of Progress was made yesterday by the national secretaries of the missionary and benevolent boards, who are attending the first annual session of the Chicago area council in Evanston. The council convened yesterday in the North Shore hotel, with more than 400 Methodist preachers registered, for a two day conference on issues facing the nation and problems of Methodist administration.

Official notice that the church will be represented at the exposition followed a meeting of the secretaries with Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, George W. Dixon, chairman of the interdenominational committee on progress through religion of the exposition; F. J. Thielbar, president of the Methodist Social Union of Chicago, and Mrs. Daniel Stecker of Evanston, representing the women's home and foreign missions.

Vote to Aid Boy Scouts.

The boards, with the publishing house of the church and local congregations of Chicago, expect to underwrite the Methodist participation in the exposition.

The morning was spent in the preparation of reports by committees on world service, evangelism, laymen's activities, and women's and young people's work. At the afternoon session the conference adopted a recommendation that the council officially sponsor Boy Scout work. It was suggested that individual churches sponsor troops, the church officials cooperating actively with the scout programs.

Early in the day Bishop Waldorf issued a statement on the church's attitude toward prohibition. This was preliminary to the formal statement which is expected to be presented by the council today.

Revives Liquor Pledge.

"The Methodist Episcopal church has always been opposed to liquor in all its forms," the bishop said. "We are opposed to any modification of the Volstead act, but if such modification is voted by congress we will abide by the result as all loyal Americans must.

"The church will see that we enroll all boys and girls and men and women as signers of the total abstinence pledge. The church will also use its influence to help those commonwealths which have always been 'dry' to remain 'dry,' to protect themselves by legislation, state and federal, against inroads of liquor from their 'wet' neighbors."

Today will be devoted to more committee reports on area institutions, evangelism, women's work, and lay activities. Dr. Oscar Thomas Olson will give the address of the afternoon

PLEA FOR MORE MILLIONS MADE BY FARM BOARD

Additional Powers Also Asked of Congress.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—The federal farm board today disclosed that it had lost 302 millions of dollars of taxpayers' money attempting to stabilize wheat and cotton prices.

And at the same time the farm board petitioned congress for more money and more ways of spending it.

It voiced its demand in a third annual report that presented a complete picture of three years of "farm relief" by federal agency and that contained a sharp presentiment of what the farm relief of the future may be.

The board refrained from stating the amount desired, but reports reveal that it has in mind an addition to its revolving fund of not less than 150 millions.

Failure Is Confessed.

The board followed a confession of the failure of the stabilization scheme of aiding farm prices by asking, in terms strongly similar to those used by advocates of the so-called allotment plan, for authority to carry out some program to bring about agricultural "income elevation" and to regulate farm production.

To praise of the growth and strength of the coöperative movement, listing with pride the financial and other assistance which it had rendered, the board joined a recommendation that it be empowered to compromise the debts owed it by coöperatives in order to save many of them from collapse.

The board advocated a general downward revision of the farm debt burden by agreement between debtor and creditor; a general reduction of all fixed charges such as freight costs, taxes, interest, and handling costs; and a lowering of world tariff barriers, as essential steps toward shortening the period of the "long, hard struggle" which faces the farmer in his fight for recovery.

Tells of Lesson Learned.

It offered among the discoveries from its three year experiment such observations as: that stimulation of farm commodity prices by a federal agency with control of production would result in overproduction.

Th most important of the board's views were expressed in a supplemental statement submitted to congress with the annual report. It was in this statement that the board revealed the demolished state of the revolving fund that once totaled 500 million dollars.

"The financial position of the board's revolving fund at the present time," the statement read, "shows net assets of 140 million dollars when all outstanding loans are appraised on a conservative basis."

Together, statement and report, revealed where the money had gone. It was a history of pyramiding losses: Losses on stabilization of wheat, 154 millions; losses on stabilization of cotton, 85 millions; losses on stabilization of cotton held by coöperatives, 63 millions; losses on wheat and cotton turned over to the Red Cross by order of congress, 43 millions; set aside for possible losses on loans to coöperatives, 25 millions.

Annoyed by Congress.

The board was particularly annoyed by what was at the time admittedly meant to be an unfriendly act on the part of congress in failing to reimburse the revolving fund in full for the wheat and cotton given the Red Cross. Though anxious to help the needy, the board members could see no justice in taking from one class of citizens to benefit another.

"The board does not consider it fair," said the report, "for the United States government to make a gift to one group of its citizens by requiring that the gift be paid for out of funds previously charged up to agriculture and set aside for the benefit of farmers who have been in distress for more than a decade."

Since its creation and up to June 30, 1932, it was shown, the board had advanced $1,018,080,866 in cooperative and stabilization loans. Repayments totaled $545,931,984, leaving advances outstanding as follows: To coöperatives, except cotton, $75,091,315; to cotton coöperatives, $95,029,545; to the Grain Stabilization corporation, $199,985,284; to the Cotton Stabilization corporation, $102,042,735. The balance of commitments available for advances was $20,698,782.

Lending Powers Limited.

"The increasing limitation on the board's lending powers has been so severe," it was said, "that in spite of the growing need for its services, its advances to coöperatives fell from over 154 million dollars in the 1930-'31 fiscal year to 101 million in the last fiscal year."

"If the power of the board to finance coöperatives is to be restored," the board went on, "either additional funds must be added to the revolving fund for the express use of coöperatives, or the board must be given power to borrow funds on its own bonds or debentures."

Congress, the board recommended, should modify the stabilization sections of the agricultural marketing act "so as to provide some means of elevating the returns to farmers from the production of exportable farm products in such a way as to pay the costs, if any, on a continuous and self-sustaining basis, and to provide an effective system for regulating acreage or quantity sold, or both."

Want Income Elevation.

"This would provide a means of working toward income elevation as an alternative to the mere price stabilization for which the act now provides."

The board refrained from recommending the specific form such legislation should take. The board's statement, however, was generally interpreted as a favorable word—perhaps with a bit of political ingenuity behind it—for the Wilson allotment plan, which President Elect Roosevelt has espoused and which Democratic farm leaders in congress are preparing to introduce.

The marketing act, the board explained, was written in a prosperous time, with the depression unforeseen.

"Stabilization was not intended to elevate the general level of prices," the board stated. "It merely provided a means of carrying part of the supply over from periods of surplus to periods of deficit. This could secure higher prices in the surplus periods only at the cost of lower prices in deficit periods.

Says Test Never Made.

"The ability of stabilization to do this in normal times has never been tested; there have been no normal times since July, 1929. Even under conditions of prosperity stabilization could not raise the general level of farm prices; it could merely even them out, that is, 'stabilize' them."

The board hit out at some of those, including members of congress, of farm organizations, and even of old line marketing houses, who once pushed and praised but are now its loudest critics.

"Agricultural leaders, statesmen of both parties, and business men of all groups," it reminded them, "urged the board to use its emergency powers to combat the decline, and applauded its decision when it initiated stabilization operations."

Though the cost of stabilization has been great the report declared, it had also shown a return in increased prices to the producer.

See Returns to Farmers.

The board asserted that stabilization had returned to wheat farmers an additional 160 million dollars or six millions more than the loss on wheat stabilization, and to wheat and cotton farmers combined more than 300 million dollars, or the approximate equivalent of the entire stabilization losses.

By Sept. 5, 1932, the report showed, the wheat holdings of the grain stabilization corporation which had reached a maximum at one time of 257 million bushels had been reduced—largely by export sales—23 million bushels of cash wheat, and 38,686,000 bushels of futures. Under the terms of a loan commitment from the Reconstruction Finance corporation these stocks are now held under pledge that they will not be marketed until after Jan. 1, 1933.

At the close of the fiscal year, last June 30, when the grain stabilization corporation was holding 96 million bushels of wheat, it owed the farm board $199,985,284 and commercial and intermediate credit banks $31,481,781. Other assets in excess of liabilities amounted to $26,978,629, and $789,379 was carried in delinquent notes and accounts in litigation or suspended.

Wheat Loss 154 Millions.

The total amount invested in wheat stabilization was therefore $205,277,815. The wheat holding had an estimated worth of 51 millions, showing a loss of 154 millions.

The cotton stocks held by the cotton stabilization corporation on Sept. 5, 1932, approximated 500,000 bales, the holdings of the corporation on July 31, of 1,308,732 bales, having been cut to that amount by the 500,000 bales turned over to the Red Cross and by more than 300,000 bales marketed. On Sept. 5, in a loan agreement with the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the stabilization corporation promised to hold its cotton off the market until March 1, 1933, or unless it could be sold for 12 cents or better.

In a similar agreement the American Cotton Coöperative association, then presumably holding about 1,400,000 of the 1,825,202 bales it had held on July 31, promised to withdraw its cotton until July 1, 1933, with a like exception for sales at a 12 cent price.

Loans from the farm board on the stabilization corporation's cotton July 31 totaled $102,042,735, and from intermediate and commercial banks, $22,008,562, or $124,051,298 in all. Plus $3,524,091, the amount by which other liabilities exceeded other assets, the amount invested on that date was thus $127,575,389. The cotton stocks, at current prices, were worth $42,523,912, representing a loss, therefore, of $85,051,477.

Loans on the coöperatives' stabilization stocks on July 31 were $70,433,346 from the farm board and $15,789,139 from the banks. Taking into account other liabilities and assets, the total investment on that date was $120,959,319, against a worth of the cotton of $58,025,107, representing a loss of $62,934,211.

The weaknesses of stabilization have been proved, the board declared, and any new legislation should be based on the following two principles:

"1. Prices cannot be raised unless some one pays the cost. The new plan must be self-sustaining, with a continuous method of covering the costs. Prices of other products are now forty per cent above the prices for which farm products are selling. If the new method raised prices to domestic consumers to the level of prices of other commodities that would not be giving farmers an unfair advantage.

"2. Prices cannot be kept at fair levels unless production is adjusted to meet market demands. Many farm products are now being produced in quantities in excess of those which the market will take. Higher prices, without regulation of production, would stimulate still more overproduction. Any method which provided higher prices and did not include effective regulation of acreage or of quantities sold, or both, would tend to increase the present surpluses, and soon break down as a result. To be of lasting help any plan must provide a system of effective regulation, so that our millions of farmers can plan and adjust their production on a dependable basis, instead of competing blindly with each other."

Trees Herald Approach of Christmas

Prices Reduced

Although Christmas tree shipments into Chicago are only about half of what they were this time a year ago, prices will be lower. This was revealed yesterday by the Chicago offices of the United States department of agriculture.

Trees have been arriving here steadily since Dec. 1, it was said, but in greatly decreased quantities. Yesterday a shipment of 17 carloads from northern Wisconsin was received by dealers at the Clinton street freight yards of the Chicago and North Western railroad.

On Dec. 7 of last year 60 carloads of trees had been received, while up until yesterday only 35 carloads had arrived. The department revealed that up until Christmas last year 219 carloads were shipped here, and it was said that this year's total shipments would fall far short of that amount. The trees are coming from New England, northern Wisconsin, and Michigan, the far northwestern states and Canada.

DR. BUTLER DECLARES AL SMITH BEST AS PUBLIC AFFAIRS GUIDE

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith was termed "our most experienced and our wisest student of public administration" today by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler.

The president of Columbia university, a Republican liberal, appeared before the Hofstadter legislative committee. He voiced approval of former Gov. Smith's proposal for a consolidation of New York City's government by eliminating the five boroughs.

Dr. Butler would have New York City deed to the state of New Jersey the county of Richmond, otherwise known as Staten Island, for geographically Staten Island should belong to New Jersey.

Congress then should designate Staten Island as a free port for all foreign shipments, he said. The payment of duty would be made, under this proposal, upon shipment from that island into the remainder of the United States.

Dr. Butler expressed the opinion that would facilitate shipping and further develop the port of New York, which he described as "the nation's chief point of contact with the rest of the world."

RE-ELECTION OF REP. BRITTEN IS CONTESTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Papers contesting the election of Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] were filed today by James McAndrews, defeated Democratic candidate for congress in the Ninth Illinois congressional district in Chicago.

The contest was based on charges of fraud and intimidation in recording the votes cast for Mr. Britten. McAndrews asserted that the "split" vote announced for Representative Britten was so "disproportionate" compared with split votes recorded in other elections as to indicate dishonesty in counting the ballots.

Under the house election contest regulations the papers were filed with Mr. Britten, who now has 40 days in which to make answer. Although it is not required, Mr. McAndrews also filed a copy of his charges with South Trimble, clerk of the house.

Mr. Britten said he would begin in a few days to draft his answer to the charges, although he said he believed the case would be taken up by the house elections committee in the next congress instead of in the present "lame duck" session. He described the papers as "the most ridiculous documents I have seen in a long, long while," and said he was surprised that "Jim McAndrews would be a party to such nonsense."

While the "split vote" charge formed the principal basis for the contest, McAndrews asserted likewise that Representative Britten had toured the election district on election day with a certain S. Libby Nuccio, whom he described as "a notorious hoodlum." Nuccio, McAndrews alleged, entered the polling places after they closed and intimidated election judges and clerks.

PROGRAM TO AID THE IDLE BOOSTS ITALIAN DEFICIT

ROME, Italy, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The strain of the heavy public works program is causing Italy's budget to show a proportionately increased deficit the first four months of the current financial year, over last year, Senator Carlo Schanzer, finance committee reporter, told the senate today. The public works program was inaugurated to meet the unemployment situation. Senator Schanzer placed expenditures for the first four months at about 871,000,000 above receipts, as compared with about a $192,000,000 deficit for the whole previous year.

FARMS ASK NEW U. S. EXPERIMENT TO RAISE PRICES

Would Use Federal Board in Allotment Plan.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The federal farm board, unsuccessful in its gigantic attempt to stabilize farm commodity prices even though backed by a half billion dollars of taxpayers' money, will be made the vehicle for another farm relief experiment if organized farmers are successful in their demands upon congress next week.

This was made known yesterday at the close of the 14th annual convention here of the American Farm Bureau federation, attended by delegates from 39 state farm bureaus. The action of the convention paved the way for officers of the federation to support the domestic allotment plan of farm crop control, now said to be favored by President Elect Roosevelt.

Present Plan Next Tuesday.

It was learned that officers of the federation, as well as of the National Grange and Farmers' union, two other large farm organizations, will appear before the senate agricultural committee in Washington Tuesday. They will be accompanied by M. L. Wilson, Montana State college economist, author of the allotment plan; Henry A. Wallace, Iowa farm editor, and H. I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, all of whom addressed the federation convention here and have been working with Gov. Roosevelt on farm relief matters in recent weeks.

Meanwhile it was reported that the agricultural committe of the national chamber, recently appointed by Harriman, would hold a second meeting in Chicago late this week to consider what stand "big business" might take to aid in the relief of agriculture. The committee is headed by Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Surpluses Pile Up Here.

Wilson, in his address before the farm bureau convention yesterday, outlined in simple terms the fact that most of the world surpluses of wheat, cotton, and pork (chief outlet of the corn crop) are now piling up within American borders. With this as a background, he described the principles of the allotment plan, which includes four sections:

Collection of an excise tax on staple farm commodities when they pass in the raw state from farmers to processers, an amount not to exceed existing tariff rates, or some other established figure.

That farmers in each crop class would contract to adjust their acreage to meet domestic demand, in return for which they would receive their proportionate share of the excise tax, which is passed along to the consumer in each case.

That the plan would become operative when 60 per cent of the producers of a commodity were under contract, and only those under contract to control acreage would be paid the premium.

After the acreage is alloted to each farmer and region for any crop, export agreements would be negotiated with other surplus producing nations.

For a Few Staple Products.

Under the Wilson plan, only a few staple products which he says largely control prices on other farm commodities would be included, such as wheat, cotton, pork, tobacco and rice. The plan would be operated by counties so that in each area the farmers would do their own "policing" and report directly to a state unit of the federal farm board, which is the agency the plan contemplates using.

The federation's resolution on surplus crop control was adopted by its delegates yesterday only after protests from several that they would insist upon including such crops as butter, fruits and vegetables, sugar beets, etc. The action was said to forecast the probable situation in congress, when every farm crop would find its champions seeking to "get into the wagon."

Warn of Too Many Crops.

This viewpoint was expressed by M. L. Noon, Michigan farm bureau head and by F. R. Pruitt, head of the Kentucky farm bureau delegation. It was answered later by the Wilson plan sponsors who declared that "too many crops at one time will kill the entire plan."

The convention voted upon seventeen resolutions directly affecting farm prices, credits, national agricultural policies and other legislative proposals.

By unanimous vote it was declared a federation policy that all alcohol consumed in the United States be made only from farm products grown in this country, or from by-products of homegrown farm crops. This stand was said to mean not only fermented beverages, but to seek an outlet for grain alcohol as a motor fuel, mixed with gasoline and for use in auto radiation at low temperatures.

Unless legislation seeking independence of the Philippine islands now before congress can be amended, the farmers voted that "it will be better to recommit the bills and formulate new legislation." The farm bureau, along with some twenty other farm organizations, is seeking some duty on the heavy importations of fats and oils from the islands, as well as the orient.

A stand was taken in opposition to state or federal regulation of all motor vehicles, and for more liberal regulation of the railroads. Early completion of the St. Lawrence and the Lakes-to-the-Gulf waterways was urged in justice to farmers.

Demand U. S. Economy.

The federation likewise went on record urging consolidation of governmental functions and the balancing of the federal budget by "putting into practice every reasonable economy rather than increasing the general tax burden on the people by imposing new forms of taxes at this time."

It was voted that congress be urged to amend the gold act of 1834 to increase the price of fine gold to $30 per ounce, and to redeem "all monetary units now in use in the United States" by a reduction to 16 grains of gold to the dollar. Taking the commodity price levels between 1920 and 1929, the farmers would adopt the average of these as the base for maintaining a uniform commodity price level.

Favor Tariff Revision.

Complete reorganization of all rural credit machinery in the government was asked to make possible the refinancing of farm mortgages and to avoid needless expense. Tariff revision was also urged to aid agriculture's return to equality with industry.

The federation favored revision of the national commercial banking structure to fully protect depositors, favored the enactment of a national credit union law, and urged further research into new outlets for the products of the farm. Cooperative marketing and its aid by the government through the farm board was recommended.

In its declaration for a new national policy on agriculture, the convention approved plans of both large political parties to "coördinate the activities of all agencies set up to serve agriculture," and the establishing of a new long time land policy of "replacing the theory of expansion with that of conservation."

JOLIET PRISON ELEVEN TO MEET AN OUTSIDE FOE

The football team of Cabery, a village 25 miles south of Kankakee, will journey to Stateville penitentiary on Dec. 26 to meet an all star eleven chosen from the prison cellhouse teams, it was learned yesterday. Martin Durkin, who became eligible by murdering a federal agent, will be at tackle for the prison team. As the star player of Cellhouse E, champion eleven of the prison, Durkin is said to be assured of selection.

MARTIN DURKIN.

The game will be marked by all the ceremony surrounding a college homecoming. The prison band has been holding secret practice and is said to be the equal of college bands in spelling out things by formation. It has been suggested that the band shun the traditional "Welcome Alumni" formation and instead spell out a welcome to the members of the board of pardons and paroles.

Manager Is Optimistic.

Tommy Ivers, class of '35, manager of the Statesville eleven, was optimistic over the chances of his team.

"They cannot impair the eligibility of any of my men by proving them honest," he said, "and there is no chance of losing any one by graduation before the first of the year."

He expressed great admiration for Tawsech, back field man and punter, and Charlie O'Donnell, 150 pound guard. Tawsech, said to be a former Oak Park High school athlete, averages better than 60 yards with his kicks, according to the manager.

The cheering section of 3,000 prisoners will be unorganized, it was reported, because none of the convicts would agree to act as cheer leader.

Loeb's Plan Meets Delay.

With the announcement of the football game Warden Frank D. Whipp gave out the news that action on the correspondence school plan of Richard Loeb, convicted for the slaying of Bobby Franks, had been delayed until after the first of the year. Loeb had proposed that convicts be given lessons to work out in their cells because of the impracticability of classroom meetings. Warden Whipp said he had received a number of letters protesting against the use of Loeb's plan and against Loeb being allowed to act as an instructor.

It was also announced that an order had been issued for the transfer of Mrs. Tillie Klimek to the women's reformatory at Dwight. Mrs. Klimek was sentenced to life imprisonment from Chicago in 1923 for the murder by poison of four husbands, in an insurance plot.

BRAZIL SENDS 2,000 TROOPS TO GUARD AMAZON

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The ministry of war today revealed that 3,000 troops, including five units of light infantry and a battery of mountain artillery, are being sent to the frontier opposite the Amazon river fort of Leticia, as a safeguard and for observation.

The marine minister described the situation as not alarming and said the action was merely a safeguard in the current dispute between Colombia and Peru as to the ownership of the port.

HELD ON BAD CHECK CHARGE.

Manuel Cohen of Brooklyn, N. Y., who admitted passing fraudulent checks to get funds for a tour of Chicago night clubs, was held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge Frank M. Padden in bond of $2,000.

PHILIPPINE HOUSE RULES IT DIDN'T BOOST ITS PAY

MANILA, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The Philippine legislature convened in special session today, decided it didn't pass a disputed bill at its recent regular session, after all, and then adjourned until tomorrow.

A series of stormy caucuses were held over a provision in the appropriation bill increasing allowances to representatives by $1,100. Conferees finally agreed with President Manuel Quezon of the senate that the provision was never approved by the regular session, which ended less than a month ago.

Gov. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt called th special sessio to rectify defects in several major bills passed by the regu- r session.

ARREST SAILOR AS SLAYER OF YACHT CAPTAIN

BULLETIN.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 8 (Thursday.)—(AP)—William James Guy, 24 year old English soldier of fortune, who had been widely sought by police for the slaying of Capt. Walter Wanderwell, was arrested today and held for suspicion of murder. Guy was defiant when arrested and denied he knew anything of the slaying. Members of Wanderwell's cruise party identified him as the "man in gray," said to have been the last man seen in Wanderwell's company before he was killed.

Long Beach, Cal., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Members of the oddly assorted crew of the yacht Carma, on which Capt. Walter Wanderwell was killed late Monday night on the eve of a South Sea island cruise, today identified the photograph of an Australian sailor as that of the mysterious "man in gray" who fired the fatal bullet.

Curley Guy is the name of the seaman and the police have ordered a search of all the haunts of sailor men along the Pacific coast in the belief that some of his friends are sheltering him.

Revenge Possible Motive.

Back of the slaying, in the belief of the investigators, lay the sailor's desire for revenge. Mrs. Aloha Wanderwell, widow of the captain, who was once a suspected German spy and later a world traveler, told of Guy being put ashore when he tried to mutiny on a previous cruise. She added that he had tried previously to kill Wanderwell.

Her statements were given credence by Eugene Babbitt, a naval reserve ensign, who declared that last summer he witnessed an encounter between Wanderwell and Guy, in which the captain accused the Australian of trying to blackmail him. Guy, according to Babbitt, refused to let Wanderwell leave peaceably and the captain called the police.

Crew Suspect Guy.

Cuthbert Wills, ship engineer who led the man in gray to the cabin of the Carma, said that he was positive Guy and the stranger were the same. Three others of the crew, Edward Zeranski, Marian Smith, and Mary Parks, the latter a one time secretary of a Hindu swami, also said they believed the killer was Guy.

It was the theory of Mrs. Wanderwell that her husband gave Guy some money and was dismissing him when the sailor drew a pistol and fired. The captain's "good luck" whistle, a treasured possession which he always carried with him, was missing at the time of the slaying, but was found on deck today. It is believed it was dropped there by the fleeing killer, just before he leaped to the dock.

May Call Off Cruise.

Mrs. Wanderwell announced that she intended to go through with the cruise and expected to sail in about two weeks. The members of crew, men and women alike, who had each paid $190 and signed up to work, said they were still anxious to visit the sun kissed Pacific islands.

The Rt. Hon. Edward Eugene Fernando Montagu, second son of the duke of Manchester, said he had a zest for adventure and a desire to be an author, and hoped to get a lot of local color on the trip. The others gave similar reasons for their participation in the cruise.

RENEW EFFORT TO SHOW BANKER SPURGIN LIVES

Further proof that Warren C. Spurgin, president of the defunct Michigan Avenue Trust company, who disappeared eleven years ago leaving a shortage in the bank's accounts, is alive and somewhere in the southwest is being sought by insurance company investigators, it was revealed yesterday.

The news leaked out with reports that George Campbell, former employé of the Michigan Avenue Trust company, had gone to El Paso, Tex., at the request of the El Paso law firm of Kemp & Nagle, presumably to aid in identifying Spurgin. The attorneys are representing the Aetna Life Insurance company which is fighting the suit instituted by Mrs. Vivian Tilton, Spurgin's daughter, to collect $75,000 in principal and interest on her father's insurance policies.

One suit involving a $5,000 policy was decided in favor of the insurance company, the judge holding that the testimony of two witnesses who said they had seen Spurgin in Mexico, was proof that he had not died. Two other suits involving $25,000 policies are pending. Spurgin was reported as living in several places, among them Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, El Paso, and the mining country in Mexico.

MAY TRANSFER NAPOLEON SON'S ASHES TO PARIS

Report Ex-Empress Grants Permission.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, Dec. 7.—A passionate wish of France is nearing realization. The exiled former Empress Zita of Austria is reported to have consented to the transfer of the ashes of the duke of Reichstadt, son of Napoleon Bonaparte and Marie Louise of Austria, from the Capuchin crypt in Vienna to Paris.

A French committee visited Vienna on June 22 on the occasion of the 100th anniversary of the death of the duke, who was also known as Napoleon II. and L'Aiglon (Little Eagle), and asked the Austrian government for a permit to lay his remains beside those of his father in the Dom des Invalides in Paris.

Austria replied that it was a matter for the Hapsburgs to decide, since the Capuchin church belonged to the religious order of St. Francis of Assisi and it was responsible for the bodies to the Hapsburgs. The committee then applied to Zita and she is reported to have consented.

Napoleon III., nephew of the first emperor and cousin of the duke, often demanded that the body be brought to Paris. The refusal of Austria almost led to war in 1852, when Louis Napoleon was president of France and not yet emperor. At the end of the world war France sought to incorporate a provision for transfer of the remains in the peace treaty, but it was ruled a private affair. On Nov. 11, 1929, an unsuccessful attempt was made by three men to steal the remains from the crypt.

60 CHICAGOANS GET WASHINGTON MERIT AWARDS

Medals were awarded to 60 Chicagoans for their services in connection with the George Washington bicentennial at a dinner last night at the Stevens hotel. Tryggve A. Siqueland, chairman of the Chicago commission, made the awards and received a grand cross in recognition of his work.

Those awarded the gold medal signifying the Washington Distinguished Service Order include: Mayor Cermak, Gov. Elect Horner, Gov. Emmerson, Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, Melvin A. Traylor, Alice Jaques, Fritz Leiber, Ira Nelson Morris and Norman Tolson. Silver medals were awarded to 50 other persons.

Mr. Siqueland reviewed the work of the commission in celebrating the 200th anniversary of Washington's birth. The bicentennial was observed i special programs by patriotic societies, in the schools and at the military tournament last summer.

Seven Still Get Pensions as Result of War of 1812

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Seven persons still receive pensions for service of relatives in the war of 1812.

These seven—five widows, one remarried widow, and a daughter—get a total of $4,000 annually from the government.

The remaining widows of 1812 soldiers are listed by the veterans administration's annual report as Arminia I. Anderson, Cedar Grove, Ga.; Marion A. Clark, Iowa City, Ia.; Lydia Ann Graham, Brushy Run, W. Va.; Mary Isgrigg, Cincinnati, O.; Carolina King, East Aurora, N. Y., and Elizabeth Huron, Indianapolis, Ind.

Officials Attend

Police and city officials gathered last night at the dance of the Chicago Police Lieutenants' Social and Welfare association, which was held at 624 Wrightwood avenue. Among those present were 122 police lieutenants, County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer, who acted as master of ceremonies; Lieut. Thomas O'Hara, who served as official greeter; Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker, and James McSweeney, secretary of the police department. Lieut. Patrick Bonner is the association president.

CHANGES NEEDED AT MORTON HIGH, BOARD IS WARNED

Some "drastic changes" are necessary in the operation of the J. Sterling Morton High school in Cicero, it was declared this morning at the conclusion of a five hour meeting between members of the school board and two officials of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Present at the meeting were George A. Works, secretary of the college division of the association; Arthur Cleavenger, secretary of the secondary schools division; Harry V. Church, superintendent of the Morton school and foe of the school board, and Thomas Chisholm, C. H. Coyle, and J. R. McDonald, civic representatives. Members of the school board who attended were Frank A. Svoboda, chairman; Edward Charvat, Edward Stuchlik, and Henry Langner.

"I am convinced that conditions are not satisfactory," said Mr. Works. "Unless some drastic changes are made we will recommend another inspection by the board of the association."

Mr. Works said that there were too many janitors at the school and too many so-called "house detectives." He also said the school superintendent should have sole responsibility in hiring and dismissing employés. Secretary Cleavenger declared there is no need for worry at this time that Morton will be taken off the accredited list of the association.

CHINESE REBEL GENERAL TURNED OVER TO JAPAN

TOKIO, Dec. 8 [Thursday].—(AP)—A Rengo [Japanese] news agency dispatch from Tsitsihar, Manchuria, said today the soviet government had handed over the Chinese rebel general, Su Ping-wen, to the Japanese authorities.

The dispatch said 40 other Chinese insurgents who fought beside Gen. Su against Japan in northwest Manchuria were transferred with the general.

They were believed to include a Chinese calling himself Gen. Ma Chanshan, the famous Chinese insurgent leader who was reported last July to have been slain by the Japanese.

Gen. Su was driven out of northwest Manchuria by the Japanese drive to the soviet border last week.

Pair Hold Up Drug Store; Get Express Company Cash

Two robbers held up the drug store of Herman Atlas at 5759 Irving Park boulevard last night and took $450 from a drawer belonging to the American Express company. They then took $60 from the till of the drug store proper. Atlas, several patrons and clerks were threatened with death if they resisted. As the gunmen went out of the door they picked up a portable slot machine and carted it away in their automobile.

CHINESE REFUTE JAPAN'S DENIAL OF MASSACRE

Assert Evidence Is Too Strong to Dismiss.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Dec. 8.—[Thursday.]—The Chinese government yesterday sent a vigorous note to Japan through the Japanese minister protesting against a "wholesale massacre of Chinese men, women and children near Fushun, Manchuria, by Japanese troops."

[The Chinese foreign office Nov. 25 issued a communique charging Japanese troops had slain 2,700 Chinese inhabitants of three small villages near Fushun during a search for Chinese rebels against the Manchukuo government. It was charged the entire population was massed near one of the villages and when some started to run away, the rest were mowed down by machine gun fire. Japan officially denied the report of the massacre and countercharged that it was "Chinese propaganda."]

The Chinese note refuted the Japanese official denial of the incident and claimed that authenticated reports of the massacre are in possession of the Nanking government. This evidence, the note affirmed, is incontrovertible and cannot be summarily dismissed by mere Japanese denial.

The note also recalls the "illegal occupation of Manchuria and wanton destruction of Chinese life and property which has called forth great indignation" and declared that its record of the last year shows the Japanese army to be an undisciplined body.

The note likewise referred to Japanese activities in Shanghai last February.

It was announced tonight that Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, virtual Chinese dictator, will return to Nanking tomorrow to participate in a plenary session of the Kuomintang [government] party's central executive committee scheduled for Dec. 15. The Manchurian issue will be the main topic of discussion.

BLACK SPIDER, CAUGHT UPON DIAL OF CLOCK, BATTLES FOR LIFE

Akron, O., Dec. 7.—(AP)—For 17 days a tiny black spider, imprisoned between the dial and the glass face of a shiny blue enameled alarm clock in the home of C. C. Thompson, has fought an unceasing battle with the hour and minute hands of the timepiece.

How the spider got into the tightly sealed clock no one in the Thompson family knows.

Once the spider, with all the perseverance of Robert Bruce's famous insect, managed to fasten his silken lasso to the slow moving hour hand and span the distance to the minute hand, but as the clock ticked away the tension became too great and the web broke.

LAKE FOREST WOMAN CAUSES SECOND ARREST

Arthur H. Chetlain, 83 years old, former judge of the Superior court, was taken into custody yesterday in his law office at 130 North Wells street on a warrant charging him with confidence game. He was taken to the detective bureau by Detectives George Homer and John Quinn and released on his own recognizance.

The warrant against the ex-judge was obtained in the Felony court by Mrs. Mary Brundson Smith, whose address is given as 830 Waukegan road, a short distance south of Knollwood club, Lake Forest. A similar warrant obtained by Mrs. Smith was served last Saturday on Dr. Harry Preston Pratt, 73 years old, of 4621 Sheridan road. Dr. Pratt declared at the time he did not know the reasons underlying the action.

Reached at his home at 7414 Sheridan road last night, former Judge Chetlain said he has never had dealings of any kind with Mrs. Smith.

Former Judge Chetlain's case is scheduled for hearing in the Felony court tomorrow. Dr. Pratt's case was continued last Monday and will be heard Dec. 30.

NEEDY CHILDREN AWAITING VISITS OF GOOD FELLOWS

Names of Worthy Cases Available on Request.

The Good Fellow whose letter was published yesterday described a neat, clean, and wholesome family as the recipient of his 1931 Christmas basket. The family consisted of a young widow and her two small children who were making the most of their meager allowance from the limited funds of organized charity.

There are many such on the charity lists today, men and women who formerly enjoyed a moderate prosperity and who still retain pride and respectability, although destitute. Their children wear clothes that are patched but clean. Those children, future citizens of Chicago, will receive a lasting impression of the kindness of mankind if they receive a basket from some Good Fellow this Christmas.

Write for Name of Family.

Let's give them a chance. Let's not embitter them against mankind by the disappointment of an empty stocking on Christmas. Tear out the accompanying coupon and enlist as a Good Fellow today. Address it to Good Fellow, TRIBUNE, Chicago. By return mail you'll receive the name of a family recommended for your Christmas basket.

Of course not all the families recommended to Good Fellows are of the better class. Some are slovenly and improvident and were destitute even in the boom era of 1928 and 1929. Their children are unwashed and in an unwholesome environment.

Poverty Not Children's Fault.

But should these children be penalized further for the weakness of their parents? Of course not. Let's try to give them a Merry Christmas. Be a Good Fellow. Your kindness might influence these youngsters for the better.

All it takes to make these children happy—in the homes of the perennial indigent, or in the homes of the depression victims—is an inexpensive basket of toys, fruit, candy, and some holiday foodstuffs. You can get the name of a worthy family by mailing the accompanying coupon, or by calling in person at the Good Fellow headquarters in THE TRIBUNE Public Service Office at Dearborn and Madison streets. The telephone number is Superior 0100.

NEIGHBOR SEES HOLDUP; SHOOTS YOUNG ROBBER

A young bandit was wounded and captured yesterday after he had held up the Fulton restaurant at 802 West Lake street and robbed John Dybsky of $25. At the Bridewell hospital he said he was Stanley Pacer, 24 years old, 1355 North Irving avenue.

He was shot in the chin by Stephen Vicik, 5003 Adams street, who works in a packing house opposite the restaurant. Vicik, whose wife, Catherine, is a waitress in the restaurant, saw the robber flee and started in pursuit, firing as he ran. Three shots fired by Pacer went wild.

Pacer told Capt. Patrick Collins of the Des Plaines street police that he had served a year in the Bridewell on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. His wound is not serious, it was said.

ROME DEPUTIES ACCUSE SERBIA OF INSULTING ITALY

ROME, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Interpellations in the senate and chamber today demanded to know what was the government's attitude as a result of "violence perpetrated daily against living and dead Italians and our monuments in Jugo-Slavia."

Deputies protested that the authorities of Jugo-Slavia were dynamiting figures of Venetian lions in the town of Trau, near Spalato, because they reminded the inhabitants of the Venetian influence.

One deputy called the action "unheard of vandalism." He demanded to know "what provisions the government would take to safeguard international conventions imposing upon the government at Belgrade respect for the civilization of Dalmatia."

The foreign ministry is preparing to answer the interpellation.

Appeal Sent Out

An appeal for broken or discarded dolls and toys, which can be repaired by prisoners at the Bridewell and redistributed at Christmas to poor children, was made yesterday by Edward J. Denemark, superintendent. Mr. Denemark said he already has more than 2,000 toys and that he has put to work 30 prisoners from the boys' department in repairing them.

He asked that persons take the toys to their nearest police station where they will be delivered to the Bridewell for repairs. He also asked that castoff and worn clothing be taken, as it will be repaired or remade in the tailoring shop of the Bridewell and sent to the poor.

"No toy or doll is in such poor condition that it can't be repaired or remade by the prisoners," Mr. Denemark said.

Bandit Phones a Victim Where to Find His Car

A gunman who robbed Dewey Ericsson, 27 years old, 534 Surf street, of his automobile and $30 early yesterday in front of 1654 Farwell avenue, later telephoned his victim and told him that he would find the car at Division and Wells streets. Ericsson recovered the automobile.

PLAN ASSEMBLY QUIZ OF CHARITY COAL CONTRACTS

Inquiry by State's Attorney Gets Under Way.

A legislative investigation of the charity coal situation in Chicago was proposed last night by State Representative Roland V. Libonati [17th, Rep.] after State's Attorney Courtney had opened an inquiry along the same lines earlier in the day.

Representative Libonati announced that he had gained the support of eight other members of the Illinois house of representatives for his proposed investigation. A resolution requesting the investigation will be prepared at a meeting in his office, at 100 South La Salle street, at 11 a. m. today, he said. The resolution is to be presented to the next legislature, which will convene in January.

Wants Contracts Investigated.

"We plan to ask for a thorough scrutiny of the methods of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission in awarding the present coal contracts, and the manner in which the contracts have been executed," he said. "Those who have signified their support of this move are Representatives Charles Cola [17th, Dem.], A. O. Galvin [27th, Rep.], Albert J. Mancin [2d, Rep.], William E. King [3d, Rep.], William J. Warfield [8th, Rep.], Harris B. Gaines [1st, Rep.], Charles J. Jenkins [3d, Rep.] and Edward Skarda [15th, Dem.]."

In opening his investigation State's Attorney Courtney requested officials of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission to turn over to him all complaints that have been made against the seven Chicago coal dealers who have charity fuel contracts with the commission.

During the afternoon Joseph M. Cudahy, vice chairman of the commission, held a meeting at which a verbal complaint against F. Bieschke & Sons, one of the seven contractors, was presented by Frank H. Lanser, director of the coal division of the better business bureau, and a reporter. The Bieschke concern delivers coal to the jobless in the area bounded by the lake, the river, North avenue and the city limits.

Asks for Affidavits.

Mr. Cudahy requested that affidavits covering these complaints be filed with the commission so that they could be sent to the state's attorney's office with the commission's letter of complaint. Mr. Lanser said the affidavits would be prepared this morning and delivered to the commission.

The verbal complaints were to the effect that the Bieschke company had been observed delivering to families on the relief rolls an Indiana coal, while their contract calls for the more expensive coal mined in Franklin or Williamson county, Illinois. Mr. Cudahy said he was satisfied that the charges should be referred to the state's attorney. If they are substantiated, he believes the commission should institute civil proceedings to recover from the Bieschke company the difference in price between the Indiana and Illinois coal, which is approximately 75 cents a ton.

Asks for Complaint.

State's Attorney Courtney asked for the commission's complaint at a conference in his office. Mr. Cudahy, Joseph L. Moss, director of the county bureau of public welfare, and Charles J. Mayr, his chief clerk, Mr. Lanser and Kenneth Barnard of the better business bureau, and First Assistant State's Attorney Grover C. Niemeyer, who will take over the investigation, attended the conference.

Meet them with good resistance this winter

If you could avoid exposure at this time of year, if you could stay out of crowds where infections spread, you might be able to escape common winter ills. But unfortunately, you can't.

How important, then, to take a protective measure that is possible! How necessary to build good resistance!

They provide an abundance of the important resistance-building factor—Vitamin A. Each Adex tablet contains as much Vitamin A as one-half teaspoonful of Squibb Cod-Liver Oil.

They are also exceptionally rich in Vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin that helps tone the system. Compared with standard cod-liver oil, Adex are ten times richer in this important factor.

They are so pleasant, so easy to take! Chocolate coated tablets. Ask at any reliable drug store.

Pepsodent Antiseptic makes $1 equal $3 in fighting colds

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes 3 times as far. And whether you buy the 25c, 50c, or $1 size, you still get 3 times as much for your money.

THE children—the whole family—can escape more colds this year. Can get quicker relief from those they catch. And you can save $2 out of every $3 by using Pepsodent Antiseptic. The money you save results from Pepsodent's remarkably high germ-killing power.

Here's the difference!

It's a simple problem of arithmetic. Pepsodent is three times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics—by adding water you make it go three times as far—get three times as much for your money and extra protection against sore throat colds and unpleasant breath. The old-fashioned mouth antiseptics must be used full strength to be effective. So Pepsodent Antiseptic was made powerful enough to be diluted with two parts of water and still kill germs in less than 10 seconds—yet it is completely safe when used full strength.

Don't risk health

It's costly enough to use a mouth antiseptic that should be used full strength. But it's more costly to dilute that antiseptic and not kill the germs. That's why we advise you to choose Pepsodent Antiseptic . . . it kills germs even when it is diluted.

IMPURE BREATH (Halitosis)

The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds prove its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember, Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, even when diluted with water it still kills germs.

Some of the 50 different uses for this modern antiseptic

Sore Throat Colds	Cuts and Abrasions
Head Colds	After Shaving
Smoker's Throat	Chapped Hands
Bad Breath	Dandruff
Mouth Irritations	Skin Irritations
Irritations of the Gums	Chafes Under-Arm

"Iggy the Bad" Maintains Calm in Court.

James Varecha, 17 years old, was still "Iggy the Bad One," as he was known in stockyards parlance—a confessed killer, rapist, and robber—when he was arraigned yesterday before Chief Justice John Prystalski in the Criminal court.

The grim possibility of a sentence to the electric chair was outlined to him, but he was not perturbed. Warned that the state was insisting upon the death sentence, that alienists had found him legally sane, and that his criminal record would prejudice his case, the youth calmly told the judge that he pleaded guilty to the charge of murdering Frank Jordan during a holdup Nov. 16 and would take the consequences. He had previously pleaded not guilty, intending to depend upon an insanity plea to save himself from the chair. When he was arrested Iggy confessed that he raped Miss Lillian Henry, a niece of Deputy Police Commissioner Alcock, on the same night that he killed Jordan.

Evidence in mitigation of the youth's crimes will be presented by Varecha's attorney, Joseph Nosek, at the trial to be held next Monday.

Contrasting Court Scenes.

The hearing offered a contrast to that at which Bert Arnold, 16 year old Riverside youth, was tried last Saturday for the murder of Mrs. Ellen Sarre, his step-grandmother. Smartly garbed men and women and boys and girls from the western suburb had thronged the courtroom then. Iggy's arraignment brought forth the usual motley crowd of Criminal courts hangers-on and a few persons, including his mother, from his own stockyards neighborhood.

Two bailiffs grasped Iggy firmly by each arm as he was led from his cell, having in mind the many escapes the defendant had made from various juvenile institutions since his crime career began back in 1927.

Hustled through the driving snow from the jail to the courts building, Iggy was led to the fourth floor courtroom of Judge Prystalski. There, in front of the bench, courtroom attachés cleared a space for him and he stood, surrounded by attorneys and guards, his small, cold eyes blinking.

Iggy Stolid in Court.

Bert Arnold, it was recalled, had hung his head and nervously gnawed his finger nails when taken into the sane court. Varecha endured the stares with stolid indifference.

Attorney Nosek opened the proceedings by informing Judge Prystalski of the decision to withdraw the plea of not guilty and enter one of guilty.

"After receiving the alienists' report [which held Varecha legally sane, but mentally defective] I held a conference with the defendant's family," said the lawyer. "It was considered in the best interests of the boy to withdraw a plea of not guilty and enter one of guilty. But we wish to enter evidence in mitigation of his crimes."

The judge, who had heard the same plea in regard to the Arnold boy, considered this statement.

"What does the boy have to say to that' he asked.

"He understands the situation," answered the attorney.

Tells Possible Penalties.

"Do you realize what you are doing?" the judge inquired, sternly. "Do you know your constitutional rights? Do you realize that when you plead guilty, I may impose the death sentence or give you one of three other sentences, which are life imprisonment, not less than fourteen years in the penitentiary, or one to fourteen years under the manslaughter count!"

The boy's indifferent stare wavered for a moment. He did not answer.

"What do you want to do?" persisted the judge.

State Demands Death.

Assistant State's Attorney Walker Butler then did his best to shake the nonchalance of the defendant.

"The state has not changed its attitude," he said. "We will insist upon the death penalty. This crime warrants it."

Iggy turned his gaze upon the prosecuter, but showed no emotion at this statement.

Judge Prystalski then asked if the evidence could not be presented on Saturday, but was told by the assistant state's attorney that all the evidence could not be heard in a half day session. The hearing was then set for Monday.

Prosecutor Butler said that, in order to determine the number of witnesses to summon, he wished to know how Varecha would plead with regard to the two other crimes for which he was indicted, assault to kill and robbery with a gun.

The judge read the two indictments and the youth replied "Guilty."

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

Thousands who take Olive Tablets are never cursed with a "dark brown taste," bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition, pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound; known by their olive color. Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

BRITISH NOVELIST HELD FOR TRIAL ON "SPY" CHARGE

Denies Guilt in Baring Official Secrets.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Compton MacKenzie, the noted British novelist, was formally committed for trial today on a charge of violating the dreaded "official secrets act." The action was taken in Police court and the trial was scheduled at Old Bailey in January.

The prosecution alleges that MacKenzie "unlawfully communicated" information which he gained in the government service. MacKenzie was attached to the British intelligence service in southeastern Europe during the war.

Tells Experience in Book.

The novelist recently published a book, "Greek Memories," which deals, among other things, with his experiences in the intelligence service.

The volume was withdrawn from circulation on the day it was issued and the prosecution followed. Testimony was taken in camera for the most part.

The author refrained from submitting any testimony in his own behalf, but sought to justify the writing of the suppressed book in a statement to the court.

Pleads Not Guilty.

"My object," declared MacKenzie, "was not financial gain, but to tell the truth about Venizelos [former premier of Greece] and the patriots who followed his lead sixteen years ago.

"Being the only person in possession of all the facts of the situation at Athens, I thought it my duty to answer propaganda which for many years has been carried on in books against the allies and the Venizelist Greeks. I plead not guilty."

ASKS U. S. TO SIFT CONDITIONS AT BOULDER DAM

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Investigation of conditions at the Boulder canyon project in Nevada and Arizona, with particular attention to the activities of the Six Companies, Inc., building the Boulder dam, was asked today in a resolution by Senator Oddie [Rep., Nev.].

Oddie asked that the investigation be under the supervision of the irrigation committee and that it be given $5,000 with which to look into three main points complained of:

Operation of a store by the Six Companies.

Contracts for housing and feeding federal and Six Companies' employes.

SEES REPORTERS IN SOVIET RUSSIA AS AUTOMATONS

Tells How Government Controls Press.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Dec. 7.—The newspaperman is extinct in Russia. All soviet publications are run by publicity men.

Ed Falkovski, late of New York City and today a contributor to the Moscow Daily News, makes this revelation in an article about the Vechernaija Moskva, the only evening paper published in Moscow. Falkovski says there is only one other evening paper published in Russia, and that is the Leningrad Krasnaija Gazette. Because of the paper shortage both of these four page papers are limited to editions of 100,000 and long before 4 o'clock every afternoon lines begin to form at the news stands.

Reporters Unknown in Russia.

"The Vechernaija Moskva is the only daily in Moscow which has news scouts," writes Falkovski. "Reporters are unknown in Russia. These are paid, not according to usual space rates, but according to the general interest of the news they submit. 'News' in the Broadway sense is all but non-existent in the columns of the usual soviet dailies. City news particularly is unimportant unless it is of national significance."

One of the most remarkable features of the soviet newspapers is their sameness. All of the decrees issued by the council of people's commissars and other law enacting bodies appear in all the papers. News cabled from abroad is limited to brief dispatches and they appear without change, and often under the same headlines. Leading articles generally center about the same subject and since each writer must view his subject through the eyes of Lenin's dialectical materialism under the rigid control of Stalin's censorship these articles, although written by different men, are also strikingly similar.

Government Furnishes News.

The news published in the soviet press consists entirely of handouts supplied to them by the official government departments of the Tass [Soviet Union Telegraph agency]. However, the long special articles called "Feuilletons" often contains facts concerning the development in soviet industry and economic affairs which the government does not like to get abroad. Many complaints of workers concerning working and living conditions and shortage of food and clothing are also published, but these are turned over to the different papers by the Gay Pay Ou [secret police], whose agents investigate all complaints and whose drastic corrections are often published with the article.

"Although the Vechernaija Moscow is officially the organ of the Moscow city council, it is not designed to substitute for the more analytic and important papers of the day," continues Falkovski. "Paper shortage has limited the daily edition to 100,000 copies, pitifully insufficient to gratify the huge demand. This explains the sudden forming of lines like snakes at the paper stands when the paper arrives.

Aids in Investigations.

"While the paper devotes most of its columns to municipal investigation, sports, theaters, cultural and literary notes, it does not neglect mass work, confining its efforts, however, within the city limits. A recent investigation of the living conditions of the Moscow subway workers was made and a daily bulletin issued for them telling of progress and results. Brigades investigate the conditions of public utilities, such as gas and electric plants, laundries and barber shops. With the aid of the Moscow Soviet it conducted a recent campaign to increase the city's supply of vegetables with some success."

With Moscow's population well over the three million mark, complaints have been made that one evening newspaper with a limited edition of 100,000 copies is insufficient. But Russia's shortage of newsprint is expected to continue for some years and until it increases all newspapers in Russia will be published in limited editions.

WEARING OF THE FEZ PLUNGES EGYPT AND TURKEY INTO DISPUTE

ANKARA, Turkey, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Fezzes are for the moment darkening Turkey's diplomatic horizon. The government here today received from Egyptian officials a sharp note which, according to an Istanbul newspaper, demands apologies for President Kemal's request that the Egyptian minister remove his fez after a recent Turkish independence day banquet here.

According to the newspaper's version, however, the Turkish government considers the apologies unnecessary. It points out that President Kemal merely invited the Egyptian envoy to remove his fez for his own comfort because the room was hot.

Egyptian officials, however, are said to feel that the invitation was an insult to all those who wear fezzes, headgear which Kemal banned in Turkey but which is still a national emblem in Egypt.

Divorces Mate Who Kept House, Let Her Hold Job

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 7.—(AP)—The story of a man and wife who reversed the usual arrangement, she acting as breadwinner for two years while he kept house, brought a divorce to Mrs. Chester William Tierney here today. Mrs. Tierney testified her husband considered it unfair for two members of a family to be wage earners and volunteered to keep house while she continued at work. She said he took his duties so seriously he objected to her washing her hands in running water and that she finally moved out.

BRITAIN DEMANDS RUSSIAN APOLOGY FOR FAKE NEWS

Also Insists Propaganda Must Cease.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The British government has handed Russia a stern warning that propaganda activities of the third Internationale in England and India will not be tolerated.

The warning was accompanied by an unequivocal demand that an apology be made for a recent article in the Moscow Izvestia alleging that instructions were issued by the British foreign office to its agents to obtain documents, "real or bogus," establishing a relationship between the soviet government and the third internationale.

Affai Aired in Commons.

Capt. R. Anthon/ Eden, undersecretary for foreign affairs, revealed the incident in the house of commons tonight. Capt. Eden was asked what the government is doing about the report of the British amabassador to Moscow that the third internationale has issued instructions to the British communist party to form nuclei in military units and similar organizations and to the Indian communist party to support nonpayment of rents and taxes and organize a general strike.

Capt. Eden replied that the government is considering both the ambassador's report and Izvestia's charges that the British foreign office has instructed its agents to supply documents linking the soviets and the internationale. The soviets have consistently denied such a link and the charge that the government controls the internationale has been a sore point in Anglo-soviet relations.

Call in Red Envoy.

The foreign office called in the Russian ambassador on Nov. 23, Capt. Eden said. It was pointed out to him that a new trade understanding must be reached between the two countries due to the cancellation by Great Britain, effective next spring, of the bilateral commercial accord, following the signature of the imperial trade pacts at the Ottawa conference.

If the soviet government wants the conversations carried on as between governments in friendly relations, the ambassador was told, the soviets must apologize for the Izvestia article and take steps to insure that it will not happen again.

The Russians have delivered an oral reply, which is being considered.

$200,000 Fire Destroys 2 Ohio River Steamers

Madison, Ind., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Two river steamers were burned today in a fire that also destroyed a dry dock and a lumber pile here with a loss estimated at $200,000. The steamers were the Island Maid and the towboat Fred Hall, which were undergoing seasonal repairs at the Madison Ways drydock. Spread of the fire also threatened two other steamers, the Crown Hill and the Hall of Mississippi.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE STATE OF THE NATION.

President Hoover's annual message to congress presents some observations on economic depressions and how to meet them, and some statements on the philosophy of government in America as well as a number of specific recommendations for legislation. By far the most important section of the message, from the practical point of view, is that concerning the budget. He proposes appropriations for some items which will run 800 million dollars below those of this year, though the saving to the taxpayers will not amount to that much because of additions of more than 200 million for other items. He proposes a general manufacturers' excise tax, but makes no mention of revenues which might come from a tax on beer. Congress may be expected to have its own views on beer as a source of revenue.

To the extent that the President is insistent upon a safely balanced budget, he has the unqualified support of all citizens who believe that a sound treasury position is the first care of the executive department. Whether the savings promised and the revenue measures suggested are adequate not only to balance the budget but also to encourage business men to expand their activities is another matter which can better be discussed after a careful study of the specific recommendations of the subsequent budget message itself.

The President's plans for reorganizing the executive departments and bureaus are also promised in detail within a few days. Here again comment had better follow examination of the concrete proposals.

The President's request for amendment of the banking laws is well argued. The failures have been numbered in thousands and the deposits involved in billions, a striking contrast, as Mr. Hoover notes, to the experience under conditions at least as trying in Great Britain and Canada. How much of the losses in this country was the result of inadequate laws and how much is to be attributed to incompetent bankers is a question which occurs at once; but in the main it will be conceded that the banking system as such, quite apart from its personnel, can be measurably strengthened by congress. Mr. Hoover makes no specific recommendations in this connection; congress can obtain the administration's views, if it has not already done so, by consulting the controller, the federal reserve officials and the treasury.

The discussion of the war debts contains a statement that the amounts due on Dec. 15 will not be modified, but that the payments may, in some fashion, be suspended. The President says he has informed the debtors that he will recommend to congress "methods to overcome temporary exchange difficulties." For the future he offers the broad hint that the United States will regard disarmament and economic understandings with the debtor countries as subjects of negotiation along with the debts. He seems to say that if they will disarm and admit our products more freely we may consider some further modification of the payments due. Obviously, this linking of more or less unrelated matters must have the approval of congress; the President in this matter, therefore, speaks only his own mind and that of his state department. The foreign debtors will do well to remember that in foreign relations the President proposes but the senate disposes.

When Mr. Hoover turns to discuss the depression he raises a question which is going to trouble historians of our period. He believes there has been some recovery in recent months and he believes that it has been caused by the relief measures which have been adopted under his leadership. Possibly so; but any freshman student of logic will recognize the fallacy which concludes from the facts that the patient took medicine and is feeling better that the medicine cured him. For our part, we are frankly skeptical. Recovery, as former Senator Reed has well said, is going to spring from the grass roots when it does come. The government can help, perhaps, to hasten the coming of a better day, but it can help principally by reducing its expenditures and lightening the burden of the taxpayers. The strength of Mr. Hoover's message lies in its acceptance of this thesis so far as the budget is concerned.

AVOIDING A SPECIAL SESSION.

The desire of Democratic leaders to use the present session of this congress for the disposal of legislation they regard as necessitous can be understood. If the present membership of congress can be prevailed upon to make a satisfactory showing on what the Democrats regard as obligatory upon them a special session after March 4 can be avoided. There are people who remain convinced that Mr. Hoover's troubles started when he felt compelled to begin his administration with a session of congress. It may be that no incident at the beginning of his administration released any major part of the Republican catastrophe, but the acts of that special session became the immediate targets of the criticism which rounded out into the great volume of dissenting votes last November.

Mr. Hoover's first experience with congress was regarded as disturbing and unsettling. His difficulties in dealing with the legislative agency of government were revealed and the country thus early in his presidency got the habit of uneasiness when congress was in Washington. The Republicans who intended Mr. Hoover no good were early in position to do him all the damage they could. Both the radicals and conservatives in the Republican party had the opportunity to put their worse foot forward, and a good deal could be said without exaggeration of the injuries done by congressional activity, both to the country and to Mr. Hoover's party and his personal prospects.

Mr. Roosevelt, observing Mr. Hoover's turbulent experience with a runaway congress, may very well hope that he will be in a position to do without a session of congress early in his administrative experience. He is thought to be a much abler handler of legislative elements than Mr. Hoover proved to be, but even at that both he and the nation may be the better off if it becomes unnecessary to start Capitol hill in full career the moment he takes office.

OUR PHILIPPINE POLICY.

Comparing the rule of the Dutch and British in their far eastern possessions with that of the American administration of the Philippines, Philip Kinsley says: "The Dutch have done a better job in some ways than the English in developing the agricultural possibilities of their tropical empire. Both have beaten the Americans. There is nothing here but what is potentially in the Philippines, but while the development there has been political it has been distinctly economic on both sides the Malacca straits."

Mr. Kinsley, as usual, has put his finger on our chief weakness as an administrator of more primitive or backward peoples. Although our own so-called anti-imperialists protest against American imperialism as a selfish, materialist conspiracy against weaker peoples, the truth is that we have been so anxious to improve them and thrust upon them political responsibilities for which they are not prepared that we have failed considerably not only in exploiting our own material advantages but even in helping them to exploit their own. Contrary to our anti-imperialist propaganda, our failures have come from an excess of altruism, not a lack of it. This has hurt our intended beneficiaries, as ill advised altruism always does.

The ablest Filipinos, such as Vincente Villamin, though aspiring to eventual independence for the islands, realize this and point it out, but they are not heard amid the clatter of our sentimentalists, who from the taking over of the islands, and especially in the person of Bryan, have managed to restrict and pervert our policy. Ingenuously assuming that principles and institutions evolved through centuries of experiment and experience by the Anglo-Saxon people and their derivatives were of universal applicability, we have preoccupied ourselves with what we assumed was the political advancement of the Philippine peoples and in so doing have failed to develop conditions more essential to their welfare and progress.

Not understanding realities in the islands, our altruism and political mindedness have developed the political domination of one race and class over other peoples of the islands who would be better off under ours. The Moros, for example, have a great territory and do not intend, if they can help it, to be ruled by the Tagalog politicians at Manila. They have repeatedly protested against American retirement from control, and as a matter of fact the uncertainty of our policy and the tendency of it, in rapidly increasing the political and administrative autonomy of the Philippines, has prevented economic development everywhere in the islands.

Filipinos like Villamin see clearly and are trying to get us to see that political independence without a foundation of economic independence is a flimsy structure which will fall upon the heads of the Filipinos as soon as our support is withdrawn. If we are bent upon freeing the islands from all American control we are in duty bound to assist them to develop the economic independence essential to the maintenance of political independence. Our past and present policy has retarded American investment and development and even such as the Filipinos might achieve for themselves. This has done the minimum of good to us and about the maximum of harm to our wards.

The pending bills are far from being an expression of altruism. They are the work of selfish special interests in the United States and give no consideration either to the interests of the Philippine people or to the general interest of the United States. They should be set aside and the whole subject of our Philippine policy given thorough reconsideration. The present situation is intolerable for both us and our wards. We are retaining responsibilities while steadily diminishing our power to fulfill them. The islands are now a hostage to fortune, an exposed flank of the United States. Their weakness threatens our peace in the Pacific and our indecision and lack of practical foresight block their progress. We ought to procrastinate no longer, but fix our policy and fix it on foundations of reality.

CHICAGO MILK PRICES REDUCED.

[Peoria Transcript.]

Reduction of 2 cents a quart in the price of milk in the Chicago area—the price being lowered from 11 cents to 9 cents—has been reluctantly accepted by the dairymen who ship to the metropolitan market. The only ray of hope they see is that more milk may be used if the new price prevails for any length of time. Some, however, insist it is only temporary and that no benefits will accrue.

In line with other commodity prices the price of milk might be expected to decline. Nevertheless, milk is a perishable product and the marketing of it is probably more difficult than the marketing of any other farm product. The possibility of increased consumption is not remote, and it is almost certain that if the increase can be stimulated, dairymen will, in the long run, be the gainers. The raising of milk cows and the selling of milk can be made a profitable enterprise if the market is constant, even if prices are relatively low.

The chief importance of the cut, of course, is to the consumer. Many Chicago children need more milk than their parents can afford to buy for them. The lower price will make possible an increase in their milk ration. For this reason the price decrease is important.

"TWELVE THOUSAND DOLLAR Ancient Chinese Chess Set Used in Game."—Headline. We'd rather play with our old six bit set that has two of the pawns gone and replaced by a couple of checkers. And one knight with his head off and the king not looking so healthy because the dog chewed him up. We played with one of those ancient Chinese chess outfits once with the man who owned it and he was always saying: "No, no, that isn't the bishop, that's the queen, that one with the funny face," and "Nix, the elephant is the castle, you ought to remember," and "Careful, now, when you touch a piece; remember this set cost nine thousand dollars," and "Better let me move the pieces around for you; you're so rough," and so on and so on. No, we'd rather play with our good old cheap, every day, battered up set, and even when we get mad at being mated and sling the damn chess men into the alley we can sneak down an hour later when we cool off and pick 'em up and carry 'em back and they're as good as ever.

STILLNESS.

The night you went you took away my laughter—
What could you want with anything from me?
Perhaps you tossed it by a careless roadside
Because the gift was made unwillingly.

I have such need of mirth now twilights deepen,
If I could laugh the spring held less of grief.
I did not think the dream we dreamed together
Could ever be so haunting . . . or so brief.

The hearth is bright, lamp-glow is never wanting,
And none can guess the quietness within—
My laughter's gone and there is such a stillness
That you would start if I should drop a pin.

PROF. EINSTEIN grew very hot under the collar in Berlin because of the questions the American consul general asked him when he applied for his passport visa to this fair land. "If all they do in America is to ask fool questions," shouted Herr Einstein, "then I'm not going." Oh, professor, you must come over. You've no idea the questions they ask you. There's the income tax man, and the personal tax man, and the special tax man, and the high pressure salesman, and the bond agents, and the government enforcement agents who have an idea that you've got a lot of hootch in your grip. And after you answer all the questions those fellows will ask you and you speed away in your auto glad to get a little rest a motor cop will ride up alongside and ask you where the hell the fire is. Oh, yes, indeed, professor, this is a great country for asking questions.

AND NOW COMES a British scientist who declares the American people are the healthiest in the world because prohibition forced them to drink home brew, which is simply chock full of vitamin B. It's probably true that home brew has made us Americans a strong, virile race, but is it because of vitamin B? It's more like due to the healthful exercise we get out of home brew, running down into the cellar in the middle of the night when we hear sounds which make us think first that a dozen gunmen are fighting a horrible battle. And then when we find that it's just the home brew blowing out its corks, isn't it the mad gallop around the cellar retrieving the corks and trying to persuade them to go back in the bottles that bring the bloom of youth to our cheeks and the splendid glow of health to our eyes? No wonder home brewing has become our most popular indoor sport.

GAS YOUR SHOES.

A GREAT professor in a well known medical school that is a part of a large university turns a few pages in the intimate story of his own life, revealing some experiences that may be of profit to you and to me.

About fifty years ago this great professor was nothing more than a garden variety of small boy. One winter or spring he had a heck of a time with boils on his feet. Most boys indulge in sores on the shins, or shanks, or somewhere down that end of the line, though not many go so far as boils. The family doctor was consulted. A "blood purifier" and iron tonic was prescribed. The child preferred boils, but his mother was the boss and he had to swallow the medicine. The way it worked out should have satisfied both, for the son kept his boils and the mother gave him the medicine. Then came summer, and the lad took off his shoes and started in on his glorious barefooted summer career. His boils got well.

The youth may have had dew itch, or hookworm, or something else, but what he probably had was athlete's foot, or ringworm of the feet. However, that can never be decided now.

Thirty years passed. The boy had become a man, even a sprouting college professor. He had another attack of what appeared to be his boyhood trouble. What was he to do? An ambitious aspirant for a university position cannot go barefooted. He was working much with microbes, antiseptics, and fumigants. He decided to compromise. He got a cake box, a soap dish, and a bottle of formaldehyde. The soap dish was placed in the cake box. About two ounces of formaldehyde was put in the soap dish. His shoes were set in the cake box and the top was closed and fastened. At the end of a day the shoes were removed and put in use. That cured his foot disease in short order, even more promptly than was the case when the barefoot treatment was used.

Later came all the furor about athlete's foot. Having always had good social standing, he decided to conform to the prevailing requirements for membership in the four hundred. This time he trimmed his assortment of maladies with painful arches. His burden became too great, and he dug down in his memory for the record of his earlier experiences. He again used the cake box, soap dish, and formaldehyde. All of his troubles disappeared.

Meanwhile he had noted that his shoes had been prone to develop odors, and his feet had not wholly escaped. After exposing shoes to formaldehyde fumes the usual shoe odors were no longer noted. On the other hand he observed that shoes exposed overnight to gas in this way held the formaldehyde odor for several days. Doubtless the fumigant not only knocked out the ringworm parasites in the shoes during the night of exposure but it soaked into the shoe material and was fed as a gas to the socks and feet for a number of days.

He suggests that people follow the plan of periodic fumigation of their shoes with formaldehyde, say for eight hours, as a means of prevention and cure of athlete's foot and, possibly, sweating feet and odoriferous feet. Exposure to sulphur fumes might be harder on the fungi in the footwear, but the objection is that it would ruin the shoes.

WEIGHT AND COLOR.

Observer writes: Regarding best weights for women and men, as published in statistical reports, my doctor says they are misleading and cause those of normal weights [normal for them] to reduce to subnormal and resultant weakness and, after, serious trouble. Some are fat and some thin because they are constituted that way. Unless a person becomes unsightly and disfigured by fat all he or she need do is to stop any distending of stomach walls at meal time by gorging. He says that it is the thin, anemic looking girls and women who should worry and not the well padded and well formed kind, and that if paint were removed from the average young woman who won't eat this and that, refusing perfectly good food because of the dieting fad, we would all feel sorry for most of them because of their pale and anemic look. I think my doctor is right. Let's have color due to good old fashioned wholesome food.

REPLY.

You are partly right. The weight tables so much in evidence give average weights for height and age. Some of them give one figure and others give ranges from low to high. As a rule, best weights are about ten per cent lower than average weights.

A shortcoming of all such tables is that they are general and not individual, while it is known that every one who takes particular note of them applies the generalizations to his individual case.

The best weight depends on age and height and also on length of body, size of bones, build, and nationality.

PROBABLY DUE TO GAS.

T. S. writes: If the question is not too silly, will you please tell me how to prevent those murmuring noises that my stomach makes once in a while? It is sort of embarrassing in a quiet room.

REPLY:

The noises are due to gas in the intestines. The remedy for that cause is to change the bowel habits. People who have two or more bowel habits daily do not complain of these murmurings.

EXTORTION AND MORTGAGE.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What is the penalty of extortion by threat, fear, and undue influence? 2. What is the penalty for letting a second man, by false representation, cover by a chattel property already covered by chattel mortgage by a first man?

J. L. H.

1. Fine not over $500 and imprisonment not over six months.

2. Section 9 of the chattel mortgage act provides that if the owner of mortgaged property sells without informing the purchaser the purchaser may recover twice the value of the property. We incline to the opinion that a new mortgage is a "sale" for the purpose of this section.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 8, 1916.

CHICAGO.—Sweeping embargo orders, which are expected to cause a tumble in high prices, went into effect on at least two large freight carrying lines running east from Chicago. They are the Pennsylvania and the Erie. No limit is set on the duration of the embargo, but it is hoped the order will be short lived. Virtually every commodity is included in the freight barred. Usual exceptions are made for perishable goods in transit and for United States government shipments. The embargo orders are the first of their kind in a decade, the only exception being partial embargoes during days of threatened railroad strikes. Other eastern roads are expected to follow suit.

PARIS.—The official journal will publish a decree proclaiming a blockade of Greek ports as a measure of reprisal for the recent Athens riots in which French marines were fired upon.

ATHENS.—Notwithstanding it is generally believed that the entente blockade will go into effect immediately and without notice, government officials were optimistic after a conference between King Constantine and the Italian minister. It was asserted in government circles that Greece can withstand a siege for twenty days, although districts that can be reached only by water will suffer more quickly.

LONDON.—Field Marshal von Mackensen's army is still pressing the Rumanian and Russian forces, driving them from their last hold on Wallachia. The pursuit yesterday netted the Teutons more than 9,000 prisoners. But King Ferdinand's main army is still intact. Bucharest was taken by the Germans without opposition. The Rumanian rear guard fought a desperate delaying action until all of the main armies had made good their retreat and then gave way along the entire front. The forts had been dismantled and the enemy entered from the north, east, and west with scarcely a shot being fired. The city is left undamaged and the Germans are left with a population of nearly 400,000 persons to feed.

PARIS.—The chamber of deputies, by a vote of 344 to 160, passed a resolution expressing confidence in the government in its conduct of the war. Premier Briand addressed the chamber and said that the government would accept only a resolution implying confidence, which was introduced by Deputy Baboud.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Whatever prospect there was of bringing about peace in Europe at an early date has been banished by the reorganization of the British cabinet with David Lloyd George as premier, according to the general view of the diplomatic colony here. Germany is maneuvering persistently to end the war on a winner's terms without directly or indirectly suing for peace. The upheaval in the British government and the dismissal of cabinet officers blamed for unsuccessful conduct of the war, together with the signs of a similar crisis developing in France, are regarded by Germany as definite acknowledgment that she is the victor up to date.

AND HOW?

[The London Evening News.]

"There is no question of repudiating our debt to America. The question is whether it is possible to pay at present under existing world conditions."

FROM A MORGAN PARK PARENT.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—It seems to me that public welfare will best be served in a frank statement of the position of the parents of the Morgan Park High school football team in their refusal to permit their sons to play a post-season football game.

I think I ought to say, however, that while most of the points I shall present were approved by the entire group of parents they were not considered in this specific form, and, therefore it seems best that they be regarded only as my own point of view. And, further, the situation may be better defined if I state that I was a high school and college football player, a coach for some five years, and for almost twenty years closely associated with Chicago high school football at Englewood and Lindblom High schools.

And so it is distinctly against my inclination that as an educator I am being forced to question the wisdom of granting the game a place in our system of education.

Football is being stressed all out of proportion to its proper values. It is becoming the reason for attending school. The tail is wagging the dog. Expansive newspaper publicity has elevated the game to major importance, thereby dwarfing every other school activity.

It was so this year at Morgan Park. The parents felt that a semester has been all but wasted, for the reports indicate grave danger of absolute failure.

The present public school football schedule for the winners is already too long and difficult. It is heavier than that of most colleges and universities. There are twenty competing high schools, and winning the championship involves three finals—the division, the semi-final, and the championship. In each case the team is keyed up to a wrecking pitch. Already medical men are warning us of the danger of this too intense emotional and physical competition.

The length of the season runs the final game into winter. The championship game this year was played on serrated hummocks and ice. Only the good will and clean sportsmanship of two great teams prevented serious injury. As it was the Morgan Park full back suffered a broken shoulder.

The proposed post-season game would have been played on Soldiers' field Dec. 3. A game of football is not like a game of horseshoes. It involves daily practice from 2:30 to 5 p. m. For Morgan Park it meant two weeks more of wallowing in an unsodded, frigid mudhole. Common sense asks why we should subject boys to such conditions when every college football squad has already deserted its putting green gridiron a full half month.

The call of charity has been difficult to resist. This year of all years the poor need food and shelter. But it is as always so, that grave abuses ride in on noble motives. It seemed to the parents that the principle of conserving the welfare of youth was a permanent issue, not to be surrendered even to noble expediency.

While no point was made of religious differences at the parents' meeting, I personally want to protest against further intensifying the athletic situation by injecting religion into the public schools. A cardinal principle of public school education is that creed shall not influence administration. We meet on the common ground of humanity and citizenship. The interreligious game injects animosity and intolerance and inserts division where we should have unity. It injures public education.

Nor is religion a proper division for rough athletic games. In football we have on one side ten thousand screaming partisans, and on the other another ten thousand quite as intolerant. Between them our 17 year old boys. The condition lends itself beautifully to a "great" game. The crowd likes to see the neck breaking tackle.

This is not a question of charity, of religion, except indirectly, nor of courage, but a challenge to the mature generation to conserve our growing youth.

WILLIAM R. BOWLIN.

STERLING AND WHEAT.

Indianola, Ill., Dec. 5.—Is there any possibility that one of your writers will point out in your columns the close relationship between the quotations of the pound sterling and the price of wheat as evidenced in the recent trends of both?

A brief study of this relationship will make some very interesting reading for the farmer. It would reveal that on days that there was no likelihood of a postponement of the war debt payments there was a marked weakness in sterling and wheat. But on days that new efforts were made to have the payments postponed there were sharp rallies, both in wheat and sterling. The prices of both are considerably lower than they were when the recent negotiations were begun and before the possibility of a sensible solution was absolutely hopeless.

The farmer is sadly in need of foreign customers. If the immediate payment of war debts is going to interfere with his markets, which the fluctuating price of sterling indicates, he should be told about it. If the true effect of the proposed suicidal solution were made known it would not have the support of the farmers in this country. EARL M. SNYDER.

A REPLY TO WISCONSIN.

Sycamore, Ill., Dec. 5.—Mayor Hoan and Senator La Follette are trying to destroy Illinois. Wisconsin is more foreign than Canada. Why does Illinois allow it to drive Illinois milk out of the Chicago market? American milk should be protected. DE KALB COUNTY.

DIME NOVEL ORGANIZATIONS.

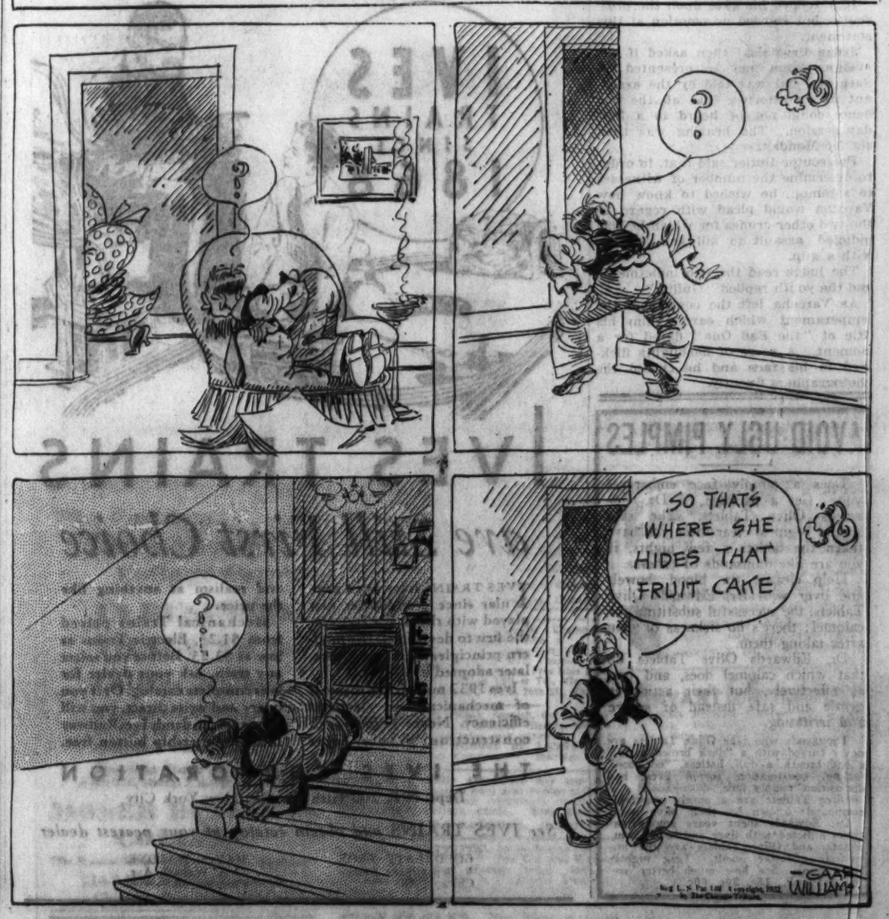
Chicago, Dec. 5.—Good! Now we are spared the necessity of organizing a Secret Dozen to watch the Half Dozen; a Secret Two Dozen to watch the Dozen, and so on and on in an endless mathematical progression.

As a high private in the ranks of the second guessers I respectfully suggest that if we devote more of our time and money to selecting and electing to public office persons fit to hold such office there would be less apparent excise for the existence of those ridiculous dime novel organizations. L. A. GRANGER.

WORKING IN THE PARK.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Your item in today's TRIBUNE in regard to the eight "tree choppers" in Garfield park reminds me of a similar scene I observed this morning in walking through Lincoln park, only there were eleven of 'em, and one in the offing, and only one or two were digging at something and the rest were interested spectators holding on to some implement. The writer walks through Lincoln park nearly every morning and meets crews with various garden implements which they wield occasionally—like billiard cues, very carefully. While one feels glad to see these poor people employed, nevertheless one feels those workers ought to have a little more exercise or they may get chilled in the raw air these winter days. H. HART.

MORT GREEN AND WIFE



WELFARE FUND STILL LACKING HALF OF QUOTA

New Gifts Boost Total to $3,210,000.

Robert A. Gardner, chairman of the Emergency Welfare Fund of Cook county, announced yesterday that more than half the $7,500,000 fund sought to finance the city's private charities remains to be obtained. Yesterday's contributions brought the total already raised to $3,210,004.

The five major charities to be supported by this fund are the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, the central charity bureau of Catholic Charities, the Jewish Social Service bureau, the Salvation Army, and the United Charities of Chicago. In addition are 15 child care agencies, 31 health agencies, 36 neighborhood centers, 10 protective agencies, and five minor relief groups. Many of these social agencies may be compelled to retrench or suspend entirely if financial aid is not forthcoming.

A Case for Welfare Fund.

Discussing the urgent need among the penniless and the sick served by these social service groups Mr. Gardner cited the case of one family.

The father died last Friday of pneumonia in the county hospital. He had entered the hospital on Nov. 17, one day after his wife, the mother of their five children, had appeared there for treatment for an infected thumb.

Two days ago the 13 year old daughter was taken to the Presbyterian hospital seriously ill. Physicians diagnosed her case as a noncontagious form of meningitis. Four younger children are home under the care of a relative.

State Street Donors Lead.

State street again yesterday led the contribution column of concerns and employés, who are supporting the Emergency Welfare fund. Employés of Carson Pirie Scott & Co., wholesale and retail, subscribed $8,000, which, added to a previous sum, brought the company's subscription as a unit to $15,500. Another large subscription came from the employés of the Liquid Carbonic corporation, who gave $4,000. Employés of the American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation gave $3,000 and employés of the Alton Railroad company sent $3,685.

Other gifts by companies or employés, as announced by Joseph T. Ryerson, chairman of the trades and industries division, include: Employés of the Chicago, Indianapolis, and Louisville railway, $1,178; Central Waxed Paper company, Wilson & Bennett Manufacturing company, H. I. T. corporation, $1,300.

Next Sunday has been designated as Emergency Welfare Sunday, and more than 1,500 churches will hold special services and take up a special collection for the fund. All faiths and creeds are uniting in the church drive.

TAVERN OWNER IS SEIZED BY 'HOODLUM SQUAD'

Detectives James Walsh, Edward Hayes, and John Ahearn of the newly formed "hoodlum squad," visited the Jeffery tavern at 8301 South Chicago avenue last night. Six patrons were in the place, watching a ballet group rehearse in preparation for the late night show.

The squad searched the tavern. In the women's lounge they found two slot machines, one operated by quarters, the other by dimes. The squad waited for an hour for the owner to appear. Their wait was rewarded with the appearance of Al Strook.

"These are my machines," he declared, indicating the slot machines. "You can't take them out. If you take them you'll have to take me."

Civil Service Board Fires Policeman a Second Time

Patrolman William F. Sachweh of the Hudson avenue station was ordered discharged from the force yesterday by the civil service commission. The policeman was tried for the second time on charges that he had entered a soft drink parlor at 1608 Clybourn avenue in 1930 and shot a man after demanding a drink of whisky. Sachweh was discharged once before but was reinstated by court order because of a technical objection to the proceedings at the first trial.

SEEKS DIVORCE

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Helen Poole, 20 years old, 6133 St. Lawrence avenue, a student at the Art Institute, filed suit for divorce yesterday in the Superior court against Loyd Poole, a chemist, living in Wheaton. Her bill, prepared by Attorney Victor Frohlich, charges cruelty. She and Poole were married when she was 15 years old, she asserts, but her husband insisted during the period they lived together, up to June, 1930, on being known as her brother. He also used to urge her to attend dances, only to "wait around outside and beat her up," Mrs. Poole charges.

LIEUT. JOHNSON TRANSFERRED TO COURTNEY STAFF

Lieut. Frank Johnson, a veteran of the detective bureau, will work out of the state's attorney's office, starting today. With him will go five policemen from various districts. The transfer order was issued last night.

"I am sorry to lose Lieut. Johnson," said Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker. "He is one of the best detectives on the force, and on his past performances should prove valuable to the state's attorney's office."

The other policemen who will report to the state's attorney's office today are Thomas A. Kelly of the Shakespeare avenue station, Albert J. Heiner of the traffic division, Thomas Riley of Woodlawn, Frank Reynolds of the detective bureau, and Edward Cole of Sheffield avenue.

Indiana Town Reduces School Year and Pay

The school board of Hobart, Ind., near Gary, yesterday voted to cut the school year to eight months and to reduce the salaries of teachers 15 per cent. Including a previous slash, the teachers have now lost 25 per cent of their income. It was explained by the board that expenditures must be brought within income. The salary cuts and shortening of the school year will save $12,000.

URGES STUDENTS OF U. S. TO AID EARLY MAILING

School children of the United States were asked to aid in a campaign for the early mailing of Christmas packages in a letter sent to the nation's schools yesterday by Postmaster General Walter F. Brown. The children were asked to urge their parents to mail all packages for out of town delivery before Dec. 17 and all packages for local delivery before Dec. 19.

There will be no delivery other than special delivery at any postoffice in the country on Christmas or the day following, the letter pointed out. Instructions to assure the safe delivery of Christmas mail were as follows: Wrap carefully and tie packages securely; be sure the postage is fully prepaid; see that your home mail box is in good condition; write address plainly; deposit all mail early in the day, and for speedy delivery use air mail.

JUDGE UPHOLDS RECEIVERS OF NEW YORK 'L' LINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 7.—The appointment of Victor J. Dowling and Thomas E. Murray Jr. as receivers for the I. R. T. was upheld today by the Circuit Court of Appeals, which reversed the opinion of Judge John M. Woolsey wherein he found that the appointment was not lawful.

He based his opinion on the status of Judge Martin T. Manton, presiding jurist of the Circuit court, who made the appointment. Judge Woolsey found that Judge Manton was a usurping judge when he sat in the District court to make the appointment.

The opinion of the court today not only restores the I. R. T. receivership to full power, but it also upholds the appointment of William Roberts as receiver for the Manhattan Railroad company.

The opinion today was given on an appeal by counsel by the receivers for both companies and counsel for the I. R. T., the American Brake Shoe and Foundry company, and trustees for security holders and other protective committees.

Held for Mental Test as His Shots Break Window

Mrs. Theresa Heller and her 10 year old son, Ted, of 3615 Wilton avenue, narrowly escaped injury last evening when two bullets crashed through a bedroom window at their home. The Town Hall police were notified of the shooting and Policemen Thomas Gainer and Joseph Schoenfeld found Leo Keegan, 34 years old, 918 Addison street, in an alley preparing to do more sharpshooting. He said that he was having target practice. He was locked up and will be given a psychopathic examination.

LET'S PRETEND!

You remember, do you not, your own favorite toys?—a doll, perhaps; a dilapidated dog or bear; a shining train; or maybe soldiers scarred by countless victories. What an abiding influence they were!

Times change. Habits and interests change. But children?—never.

No Alexander or Napoleon was more truly a conqueror, a builder of empire, than your own small son. No woman ever gave more lavishly of love and care than the tiny daughter, keeping house, mothering her child.

What a different place a Toy Section becomes when inspired by understanding! Here are tools of achievement, the magic implements by which realities are wrought from dreams.

Let your children's toys be good toys—well made, to withstand hard use. Let them be true to life to aid in the understanding of life. Let them be correct in form and line—to implant and nourish the seeds of good taste; and stimulating—to encourage inventiveness in wholesome, happy play.

For generations children have been thrilled by "Toys from Field's." And we, too, have been thrilled—by the knowledge that those toys gave a plus-happiness, a plus-satisfaction because they came from Field's.

HOOVER BUDGET CUTS EXPENSES HALF A BILLION

Adds 355 Million Sales Tax to Balance.

until June 30, 1934, producing about $137,000,000 additional revenue in the fiscal year 1934, and

"[b] That the manufacturers' excise taxes now imposed on certain articles be extended and in part replaced by a general uniform tax [excluding food]. I have been advised that the annual yield of such a general tax, at a 2¼ per cent rate, would be approximately $355,000,000.

"The additional $492,000,000 of revenue produced in this way will not referred to above, but will also avoid a further increase in the public debt during the fiscal year 1934. The details of these recommendations will be presented by the secretary of the treasury."

Net Reduction 580 Millions.

The President prefaces his budget with the statement that the appropriations he recommends for the 1934 fiscal year aggregate 830 millions less than the appropriations so far made for 1933, which, including the postal expenditures from postal revenues, exceed 4 billions 800 millions. This decrease, however, is offset to the extent of 250 millions by increases chiefly for public debt service, leaving a net reduction, according to the message, of 580 millions.

Uncertainty About Estimates.

Whether the actual savings claimed in the Hoover budget will be anywhere in the neighborhood of 580 millions or even 479 millions is a matter of great uncertainty. The President estimates the cost of the federal government for 1934 at $3,790,425,200, compared with appropriations for 1933 aggregating $4,268,888,400. What the actual cost in each year would be and whether any savings at all will be accomplished only time will tell.

A year ago Mr. Hoover estimated the 1933 expenditures at $3,942,754,614, but the 1933 appropriations are already 325 millions greater than that amount and will be still further increased by deficiency appropriations.

A year ago Mr. Hoover estimated the 1932 expenditures at $3,995,026,534 on the basis of 1932 appropriations made up to December, 1931, but as a result of subsequent appropriations in the last session the 1932 expenditures were swelled to $5,006,590,305.

Economies Listed by President.

Revision of laws providing benefits for veterans	127,000,000
Continuation of certain provisions of economy act	97,398,000
Temporary further reduction of pay of government employes	55,000,000
Curtailment of national defense outlays	20,000,000
Reduction of river and harbor improvement	20,000,000
Reduction of flood control work	12,000,000

"Notwithstanding the large reduction in expenditures estimated for the current fiscal year below those in the fiscal year 1932 and the increased revenues anticipated during this year under the revenue laws enacted at the last session of congress, a large excess of expenditures with consequent increase in the public debt is anticipated for the current fiscal year," said the President in ending his message.

"Such a situation cannot be continued without disaster to the federal finances. The recommendations herein presented to the congress for further drastic reductions in expenditures and increased revenues will serve to prevent a further increase in the public debt during the fiscal year 1934 only if congress will refrain from placing additional burdens upon the federal treasury.

"I cannot too strongly urge that every effort be made to limit expenditures and avoid additional obligations not only in the interest of the already heavily burdened taxpayer but in the interest of the very integrity of the finances of the federal government."

Byrns Assails Figures.

According to Representative Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the house appropriations committee, the President's budget represents no reduction in the normal cost of the federal government, which prior to the Hoover administration was under 4 billions. The Hoover estimate for 1934, Mr. Byrns opined, would be reduced by congress by 200 millions.

THREE YEARS OF DEFICITS

Total other expenditures	3,256,354,900	3,770,735,000	4,593,960,555

Hoover Budget Recommendations

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—President Hoover summarized his 1934 budget transmitted to congress today in the following tabulation showing estimated expenditures for the fiscal year 1934 representing net savings of $478,463,200, compared with the appropriations so far made for the fiscal year 1933:

Department or establishment—	Fiscal year 1934.	Fiscal year 1933.	Increase or decrease of fiscal year 1934 compared with fiscal year 1933.

British Envoy Given Stimson Reply to Second Note on Debt

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—(AP)—The American reply to Great Britain's second request for a moratorium on war debt payments due in eight days was handed to Sir Ronald Lindsay tonight a few hours after Capitol hill had rung with fresh opposition to debt reductions.

As has been customary in the exchange of notes over the situation, Secretary Stimson called the British ambassador to his suburban home, Woodley, to receive the communication.

The note's contents were not made public, but it was assumed that it followed the tenor of other recent administration utterances: That sole power to alter the debt agreements lay with congress, that President Hoover would recommend legislative creation of an agency to consider the debt question, and that the December payments from European countries would be expected.

The White Hour has indicated that President Hoover would send a special message to congress dealing with the debts, which have been the subject of a rapid interchange of diplomatic communications for weeks.

House Shows Hostility.

Today the second note from Belgium asking postponement of the Dec. 15 payments and reëxamination of the agreements was made public by the state department.

Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, a stanch administration supporter and a member of the house ways and means committee which would handle any debt legislation, declared: "The settlements were both fair and generous to the various nations. There has never been an intention on the part of congress, other than the moratorium of last year, that there should be any change or modification of these agreements."

He asserted that congress alone has the right to change the agreements.

Representative Fish [Rep., N. Y.] argued "it is time that the American people knew that all of this debt France is asking to cancel or reduce was loaned after the armistice."

The New Yorker asserted, however, that in his opinion congress by its declaration against further changes when the moratorium was approved last year had forestalled consideration of the problem through diplomatic channels.

Bitter at Loans to France.

Representative Blanton [Dem., Tex.] also harked back to the moratorium with the statement that "President Hoover didn't have the constitutional authority to act" without the consent of congress or to make even a preliminary agreement.

"The executive branch has no authority to perform the functions of this house," Blanton said. "I would like to see it made a penitentiary offense for anybody to lend another dollar to France."

plish genuine economies," said the appropriations chairman after examining the budget. "The savings that the President claims are illusory. He makes a showing of reducing expenditures chiefly by cutting off a lot of public works items for 1934 which the President, before the election, regarded it essential to add to the 1933 appropriations."

Comparison for Eight Years.

1933 [estimated]	4,268,888,400
1932	5,006,590,305
1931	4,219,950,338
1930	3,994,152,487
1929	3,848,463,189
1928	3,643,519,875
1927	3,493,584,519

The Hoover budget represents only a slight concession to the demands of the numerous organizations which are demanding a curtailment of federal activities and subsidies which would make possible a reduction of the cost of the government by upwards of a billion dollars a year.

The President rejects the urging of the National Economy league for legislation restricting benefits to veterans to allowances for ailments actually incurred in military service which would reduce the billion dollar item for veterans' services by about 450 millions. Instead he revives his proposals of the last session for a revision of the allowances which would save about 127 millions.

Veterans with taxable incomes would be eleminated from the rolls of those entitled to benefits. Only totally disabled veterans would be eligible to disability allowances. Veterans in institutions would be deprived of compensation under certain circumstances. Emergency officers would be deprived of retired pay unless their disabilities are actually service connected.

Both the budget message and the Mills report ignore the possibility of raising revenue from a tax on legalized beer. For the first time, however, the executive budget proposes a reduction in the outlay on prohibition enforcement. A year ago Mr. Hoover recommended for the prohibition bureau for 1933 $11,869,500, the exact amount that had been appropriated for 1932. Congress cut the 1933 amount to $10,250,000. This time Mr. Hoover recommends $9,599,948 for 1934.

HERRIOT CALLS IN FRENCH LEADERS FOR DEBT ADVICE

Payment Still Uncertain; Sees MacDonald Today.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 7.—While Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain and his chancellor of the exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, who arrived here tonight from London, turned the British embassy into a transplanted Downing street for a two man cabinet conference on the war debt problem, France's premier, Edouard Herriot, who is tackling the same problem from his angle at the Quai d'Orsay, held a series of conferences with French leaders.

The key men in both chambers of the French parliament, together with prominent statesmen who have dealt with the war debt problem in its earlier phases under previous administrations, were summoned to a council of war.

Among Those Present.

The conferees included Henry Berenger, president of the senate foreign affairs committee, and co-author of the Mellon-Berenger debt accord; Joseph Caillaux, president of the senate finance committee; Louis J. Malvy, president of the chamber of deputies' finance committee; Francois Albert, former minister of education; and Pierre Laval, former premier, who interviewed President Hoover on the debt question last year.

As an immediate result of this meeting, it was decided to postpone until Monday, three days before the fateful Dec. 15, the grand debate on the $19,261,432 payment due America.

Herriot will go before the finance committee of the chamber Friday morning. On Friday afternoon or Saturday morning he will appear before the foreign affairs committee of that body, and on Saturday afternoon before a joint session of the finance and foreign affairs committee of the senate.

Calls in Cabinet Men.

Following his conference with the parliamentary leaders, Herriot tonight called in members of the government whose ministries are directly involved in the debt problem for a technical discussion. It was still reported that no decision on whether to pay or not had been reached, Herriot's purpose in summoning Laval, Caillaux and Berenger being merely to learn from them the exact circumstances under which previous debt negotiations were conducted.

At the same time, the postponement until Monday of the chamber debate and the consultation with political leaders indicates that Herriot is determined to make a serious effort to lead parliament to accept some compromise in the pay or default dilemma.

Pertinax, one of the foremost French political writers and usually very well informed, will say in tomorrow's Echo de Paris that Herriot plans to recommend payment to the chamber for a number of reasons, including a threat from Washington to refuse all negotiations under the Mellen-Berenger treaty if France defaults.

MacDonald Also Uncertain.

Meanwhile, despite all the official and unofficial propaganda which has been put out on both sides of the Atlantic in the last two weeks, it is learned that MacDonald has not yet made any final decision regarding the British payment of $95,550,000. The British premier came to Paris from Geneva on a different train from that which brought Herriot to avoid the appearance of collusion. Since their arrival a few minutes apart this morning they have sedulously kept away from each other. MacDonald remained at the British embassy on the right bank of the Seine all day, while the French premier stayed at his office across the river. Tonight Neville Chamberlain acquainted his chief with the deliberations of a cabinet meeting held in London this morning.

One factor which Herriot is waiting to learn is whether Britain will insist on receiving its debt payment from France on March 15 in case the British pay America and the French default. All this will doubtless be threshed out at the meeting tomorrow between Herriot, Louis Germain-Martin, French finance minister; MacDonald and Chamberlain.

Herriot Sees Six Alternatives.

At the close of the council of ministers today, Herriot announced officially that his decision lay between six possible courses, all of which he would cause to be analyzed carefully by experts, and that he is waiting for further information before definitely selecting one of the six.

The six courses are: First, unconditional payment; second, unconditional refusal to pay; third, payment with reserves; fourth, deposit of the total payment in the world bank or some other bank; fifth, payment by bonds; sixth, an appeal to arbitration.

Both Herriot and MacDonald are said by those around them to be clearly manifesting the weight of the responsibility which they bear. One observer said both looked bewildered. MacDonald, in addition, complained of being fatigued and feeling slightly indisposed. That was the official reason given as to why he did not see Herriot today.

Franc Continues to Skid.

With the franc continuing its downward movement for the third day in succession, with an important group of civil servants announcing that they are ready to carry out a threat to paralyze government services as a protest against salary cuts, and with the communists organising a monster "dole march" for Saturday, trouble is piling up for the Herriot government far beyond the political complications of the debts debate.

The chief preoccupation is the weakness of the franc. Today the dollar rose to 25.62, the highest in two years and well above the point at which it becomes profitable to ship gold to the United States. The pound, lira, peseta and Swedish crown also rose on the Paris exchange. So far no gold shipments to America have been revealed, owing to the uncertainty whether the spurt of the dollar will continue.

U. S. REVEALS AIMS FOR TEMPORARY PACT TOWARD DISARMAMENT

GENEVA, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The American representatives at the five power disarmament negotiations disclosed today some of the "concrete results" which they are striving to have incorporated in a proposed temporary protocol.

The aims of the American delegation include:

1. Reductions in the size of land forces.
2. Definition of the term "home defense troops" as apart from colonial troops.
3. Abolition of movable artillery larger than 155 centimeters in caliber.
4. Limitation of the tonnage and number of tanks.
5. Limitation of the number and size of military airplanes and the fullest publicity regarding their size and type.
6. Abolition of chemical warfare.
7. A naval treaty between France and Italy.
8. Recognition of the principle of state supervision of the manufacture of arms and the trade in arms.

The Americans asserted that there was no separate American plan, but merely a crystallization of the ideas of all the participants in the disarmament conference. The representatives of the five powers—the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, and Italy—met for only an hour today, but made no progress toward an agreement.

A COLD PASSES THRU 3 STAGES!

It Is Twice as Easily Stopped in the First as in the Second or Third Stages!

A cold passes through three stages—the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days, and the Mucous Secretion Stage. Once it gets beyond the Dry Stage it is far more difficult to relieve. Therefore, treat a cold promptly.

The best thing you can take is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, because it does the four things necessary, in the way required. It opens the bowels. Kills the germs and fever in the system. Relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

This is the relief you want—complete, thorough and decisive! Trust to nothing less.

Effective as it is, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is absolutely safe to take. No narcotics. No bad after-effects of any kind. Relief with comfort! The whole world knows Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine as the standard cold tablet. Comes in handy, pocket size box, cellophane-wrapped. Get it at any drug store. There is nothing "just as good."

BLAME MENTAL ILLS ON TRIALS OF MACHINE AGE

Psychoanalyst Talks on Effects of Depression.

The effects of the depression on mental health were discussed before the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene yesterday at afternoon and evening meetings in the Medinah Athletic club. The general conclusion of the speakers was that the ill effects of present economic conditions on individuals are caused largely by failure to adapt themselves to the machine age environment.

Dr. Franz Alexander, director of the Institute for Psychoanalysis of Chicago, said: "Economic depression and general emotional discontent which are present in our civilization and lead to neurotic disturbances are not cause and effect, but parallel phenomena. Man has not yet learned to use his own invention, the machine, in utilizing the free time and free energies which the machine makes possible."

Discusses Suicide Rate.

Discussing the suicide rate, Dr. Alexander said: "The statistical curves I have studied show no definite relation between economic depression and suicide. Life insurance figures, for example, show a rise in the suicide rate in 1928, a year of the boom period, and since the start of the depression there has been no remarkable suicide increase. I do not say, however, that the depression has not had an effect on the suicide rate. Some recent suicides can, of course, be traced directly to the depression.

On Effects of Depression.

"The question of whether economic depression has an influence on mental disturbances cannot be studied statistically without knowing precisely a great number of individual case. Many people develop serious mental disorders when they are successful, disorders caused directly by their success. Thus it is that a depression may mean mental salvation for some and have bad effects upon others.

"In Berlin I knew members of the Russian aristocracy who were forced to take jobs as taxi drivers, cooks, and waiters, but who never lost their poise or inherent cultural qualities. At the same time I knew war profiteers, who lacked these qualities and had substituted wealth for them, who were seriously affected mentally by the loss of possessions."

Rabbi Is a Speaker.

"The very material possessions which machinery produce in abundance and which will some day be the means of abolishing poverty have had an adverse effect upon our personal standards," he said. "We have been misled into worshiping new objects. As a result, whenever there is a momentary cessation of material plenty, we are left without psychic treasures upon which to rely."

Other speakers on the program were S. N. Stevens, assistant dean of the college of liberal arts, Northwestern university; Dr. Charles F. Read, managing officer of the Elgin state hospital; Dr. Francis J. Gerty, superintendent of the Cook county psychopathic hospital, and Thomas M. French, clinical associate of the Institute for Psychoanalysis. Dr. Ralph C. Hamill, president of the Mental Hygiene society, presided.

TWO INJURED BY AUTOS DIE; TOLL FOR YEAR IS 1,044

John Goode, 63 years old, of 7245 East End avenue, employed in the accounting department of the Milwaukee railroad, died last night in the Alexian Brothers' hospital. He was struck by an automobile Tuesday night at Fullerton and Southport avenues.

This death and one other increased the Cook county motor toll for the year to 1,044. The other victim:

John McEwen, 54 years old. Died yesterday in the county hospital. He was injured on Monday by an automobile.

Miss Hilda Sousa, 21 years old, 6235 Blackstone avenue, who planned to be married next Sunday, was in a critical condition last night at the Chicago hospital. She was injured Tuesday night when the automobile driven by her fiancé, Harold Anderson, 23 years old, 7015 Dorchester avenue, overturned in the outer drive at 42d street. Anderson, who was not hurt, was charged with reckless driving.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

Saves $2. So Easy! No Cooking!

The best cough remedy that money could buy can easily be mixed at home. It costs very little, yet it's the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and saves two-thirds of the money a family usually spends on cough medicine. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, clears the air passages, and thus ends a severe cough in a hurry.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

SLAYING VICTIM

NICHOLAS MAGGIO.

The inquest into the double slaying of Nicholas Maggio, 26 years old, and Anthony Persico, 29 years old, was continued yesterday until Dec. 21 to allow police time for further investigation. Maggio, a cousin of Police Lieut. Paul Maggio of Melrose Park, and Persico were shot to death on Tuesday night at Cumberland road and Irving Park boulevard.

Police yesterday expressed the belief that the two men had been slain for an attempt to "muscle in" on the beer territories claimed by the Roger Touhy and Nick de Grazzio gangs. John H. Rooney, 1220 North Ridgeland avenue, a business agent for the Circular Distributors' union, was questioned yesterday and released by police. Mrs. Maggio, widow of one of the victims, had told police that her husband intended visiting Rooney. Rooney said that he had purchased a half barrel of beer from Maggio and that the latter had called to get the empty barrel.

Police Seize Suspect as an Escaped Burglar

Frank Cosenza, 36 years old, of 7848 Greenwood avenue, was held last night by Grand Crossing police. They charged that he was the store burglar who shortly after his arrest last July 6 escaped from a patrol wagon. He denied he was the man. He was arrested Tuesday by Policemen Thomas McGlynn and Thomas Dorgan. Cosenza was held in November, 1931, by federal authorities with a view to deportation. At that time it was said he was a member of the Capone gang. According to police records, he has been convicted of larceny and interfering with an interstate shipment. Police said last night that if Cosenza should be convicted of the burglary efforts would be made to deport him.

AUTO SALE FRAUD PROMOTER TO BE ARRAIGNED TODAY

18 to Press Charges of Confidence Game.

Francis McMahon, 35 years old, alias Frank Murray, who used TRIBUNE want ads in operating a confidence game in the purchase of second hand automobiles, will be arraigned today before Judge Frank M. Padden in the Felony court. Eighteen witnesses will press charges of operating a confidence game and larceny by bailee against McMahon.

McMahon was arrested in Indianapolis on Nov. 23 by Sergt. Carl F. Lemke. The arrest ended a search of more than a year, during which he was traced to California, New York, New Jersey, Michigan, Missouri and Indiana. The search and capture were brought about by TRIBUNE representatives coöperating with the police.

35 Members in Ring.

McMahon is a member of a ring of 35 men who ply the racket throughout the country, Sergt. Lemke said. In four years of operation in the Chicago area McMahon has obtained $500,000, the sergeant estimated.

"The method of operation is simple," Lemke said. "McMahon advertised that he would pay top prices for second hand cars in his stores. His showrooms were given a prosperous appearance by the expensive cars which he displayed.

"Autoists who answered the advertisements brought their cars to be sold. They were told it would take some time to investigate the title and engine number. In exchange for their automobiles they were given notes payable in three or four months. These notes were to be taken up if the titles were clear.

"When the clients came to cash their notes the showrooms would be closed. McMahon had moved to another location after selling the car at a bargain. He always operated with a partner, but a different partner in each place."

Posts $5,000 Bond.

McMahon was arrested in November, 1931, after complaints had been received from the victims of his fraud. He posted a bond of $5,000 and fled on Nov. 17, 1931. The bond was forfeited, and the search for him began.

One of his partners, Michael Gambill, is now serving a sentence of 1 to 10 years in the Joliet penitentiary. Gambill was arrested and convicted of operating a confidence game with McMahon. The latter is wanted on similar charges in Jersey City, N. J.; Greenville, O.; South Bend, Grand Rapids, and Hillsboro, O. He is also wanted for theft in his home city, Providence, R. I.

IN COURT TODAY

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Defendant sentenced yesterday: John Monzel, 60 days in Bridewell for larceny of an automobile. Defendants held to grand jury for larceny of automobiles: Robert Sonnenfelt and Walter Sonnenfelt, brothers, and John Pavlak. Defendants held to grand jury for receiving stolen auto parts: Bud Sherman, George Johnson, Louis Bozich, and Jobe Troy.

TRANSLATION OF PAPERS DELAYS INSULL HEARING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Dec. 7.—The documents required by the Greek courts for the extradition of Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate, on charges of embezzlement and grand larceny, are still in the hands of the translator and will not be finished until next week. Charles Bellows, assistnt state's attorney of Cook county, made this announcement tonight.

Instead of being typed the translation will be recopied in long hand by Andrews J. Vlachos, also an assistant state's attorney of Cook county. This will require more time than ordinarily.

A delay in the final court decision over Insull's extradition appeared in the offing today. It was said that Insull's lawyers here will ask a continuance in order to obtain depositions in rebuttal to those sent by the United States government.

PAPA STEIFF'S BROOD REJOICES IN UNITY AGAIN

The family of Joseph Steiff—known to neighbors as "the Russian family"—living on a small farm near Dundee and Sanders roads, not far from Wheeling, is happy again, and maybe Papa Steiff will consent to having a Christmas tree in the home for the Yuletide.

Papa Steiff's brood came to attention yesterday following a successful search for Mary, 23 years old, his idest daughter. Mary ran away Monday. She returned Tuesday, but her absence was long enough to reveal that of the nine children in the family not one had ever seen a moving picture, heard a radio, or ridden in an automobile.

A. H. Loula of the forest preserve police investigatel. He noticed that the older girls wore men's shoes and coats, that they worked in the fields like men, and were not unhappy in their old fashioned way of living. He learned that the family had had some minor misfortunes and that Mary had held herself responsible because she had been having dreams of ill omen. So Mary ran away. She was found at a neighbor's home. Yesterday Papa and Mamma Steiff and all the children were rejoicing.

They were so happy, in fact, over the unity of their family that Papa Steiff, according to Loula, admitted that he would consider bringing a Christmas tree into the house on Dec. 25—but no electric lights. He'll stick to kerosene lamps.

ILLINOIS COLLEGE TRUST FUND HIT BY BANK CLOSING

Several Officials Question Use of Bonds.

Jacksonville, Ill., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—It was revealed today that Illinois college, which is more than 100 years old, has been financially embarrassed by the recent closing of the Ayers National bank. That bank was owned and controlled by Andrew Russel, former state auditor and present member of the parole board, and by M. J. Dunlap, one time influential Democratic politician.

The college endowment fund was hoarded by the crash, according to dispatches from Chicago, where Jacob Morgan Fox, attorney for the board of trustees, said that $295,000 of the $500,000 lifetime endowment fund had been pledged for loans. The funds had been in the possession of W. G. Goebel, cashier of the bank and treasurer of the college.

Says Dunlap Pledged Bonds.

According to Walter Bellatti, city attorney of Jacksonville and also a trustee of the college, Goebel took the bonds from a safe deposit box at the bank and gave them to Dunlap, who pledged them for loans to the bank.

"Three days before the bank was closed," Bellatti said, "I received a call from Dr. George E. Baxter, chairman of the board. He instructed me to remove all the college money and bonds from the bank. When I went to the bank M. F. Dunlap, president, told me the bonds had been taken out of the bank and used for loans. He said he got them from Goebel, treasurer of the college and, as such, custodian of the bonds."

Mr. Fox was quoted in the Chicago dispatches as saying the college faces an immediate loss of about $15,000 annually, the amount it had been receiving as interest on that part of the endowment which had been loaned. Since the fund is "for life" the college would never have used the principal, save in case a calamity, the buildings had burned or a like situation arose.

President Backs Statement.

What action will be taken because of the "loan" was not immediately apparent here. State's Attorney Wilson H. Absher of Morgan county said he was not ready to talk on the matter, but that the next grand jury would make an investigation. Mr. Fox is expected to proceed in a civil suit to recover the fund.

Illinois college is the oldest in the state. It was founded in 1829 and is the alma mater of the late William Jennings Bryan.

DR. EDWARD L. HEINTZ, UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL FOUNDER, DIES AT 59

Dr. Edward Louis Heintz, 59 years old, a physician in Chicago for 31 years and a former associate professor in the medical college of the University of Illinois, died suddenly of heart disease yesterday in the medical school building at 1853 Polk street.

Dr. Heintz was chairman of the committee which in 1913 arranged the merger of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Chicago with the university. He was a member of the faculty of that school from 1901 until 1925, and also was one of the founders of the University hospital. He was head of the department of medicine there.

DR. HEINTZ.

Dr. Heintz' home was at 5942 West Huron street. A brother, Howard, and two sisters, Mrs. Octavia Gant and Mrs. Daise Brickell, survive. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday in the First Methodist church of Austin, followed by burial in Rosehill cemetery.

F. T. LOVEJOY, EX-STEEL MAN, BURIED IN EAST

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Francis T. Lovejoy was buried today in the city of his success and his reversals, where he rose from a young railroad telegrapher to a colossus in finance along with Carnegie and Frick in Pittsburgh's colorful romance of steel.

Bereft of the great fortunes he amassed with the tremendous upsurge in the steel industry, Lovejoy in death leaves wealth in the history of his power among the mighty, his foresight in the days of the horseless carriage, and his struggle for a comeback that ended with his death at the age of 78.

MARY T. JOHNSON, BORN IN CITY 90 YEARS AGO, DIES

Mrs. Mary T. Johnson, who was born in Chicago on July 5, 1842, died yesterday in her apartment at the Ambassador Hotel West, where she had lived for several years. She had been in ill health for six months. Mrs. Johnson was the daughter of Tuthill King, who came to Chicago via the Erie canal and covered wagon from New York state in 1835.

She was born in a house on Clark street, near Adams street, then a quiet residential district on the outskirts of the city. After the death of her husband, Edwin C. Johnson, a wood die manufacturer, she moved to Connecticut, where she lived for many years.

She is survived by a son, Frederick A. Johnson. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon in the chapel at Graceland cemetery, at an hour to be announced later.

HOLD FUNERAL RITES TODAY FOR R. M. CALKINS

Funeral services for R. M. Calkins, a member of the executive staff of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, will be held at 2:30 this afternoon at the Rosehill cemetery chapel. Mr. Calkins, who was 69 years old, died on Sunday at Daytona Beach, Fla. His home was in Deerfield. Mr. Calkins is survived by his widow, a son, Raymond M., and a daughter, Mrs. Clayton O. Hull of Highland Park. He was a member of the Chicago Athletic association, the Union League club, and the Briergate Golf club and for several years was president of the China Club of Chicago.

MRS. CLARA REHM, BANKER'S WIDOW, IS FOUND DEAD

Mrs. Clara Hotz Rehm, member of a pioneer Chicago family, was found dead in bed yesterday at her home, 1367 North State parkway, apparently of heart disease. She was 60 years old.

Mrs. Rehm was the widow of William H. Rehm, who was president of the Cosmopolitan State bank and a director in several other banking institutions. He died in April, 1931. Mrs. Rehm's father, Christopher Hotz, a wagon manufacturer, came to Chicago in 1866. He was at one time a member of the city's civil service commission.

Bares Conflict of Victorians and Moderns

V. Sackville-West Writes Novel of Emotions.

"Family History," by V. Sackville-West. [Doubleday-Doran.]
"Just the Other Day," by John Collier and Iain Lang. [Harpers.]

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

THE author of "The Edwardians" and "All Passion Spent" has left the field of the novel of manners and invaded the field of the novel of emotions in "Family History." But she has not taken her eyes wholly off the lush landscape of the past, nor turned completely away from the allurements of a chronicle of social contact. "Family History" is almost as much a tale of the conflict between the modes and the psychologies of the generations as it is a record of an emotional conflict.

V. SACKVILLE-WEST.

The emotional conflict is between a woman of almost forty, chic in the extreme and always in the very latest fashion sartorially, the mother of a boy of seventeen, the widow of a typical "right" Englishman killed in the war, who is essentially a Victorian emotionally, and a young man of twenty-five, the son of an excellent family, who dares to be a radical politically and socially divides his popularity among various intellectual groups.

They meet at a dance. They fall immediately in love. They become lovers. The young man is modern, casual, fundamentally inconsiderate, passionately interested in his work and resentful of a possessive love, although he loves the woman with all of his modern heart. He wants to marry her, not because he believes in marriage but because she is the only woman he has ever loved.

The woman . Victorian in her innate belief that love is more important than anything else in the world, in her passionate and possessive devotion to the young man, and in her acute spiritual pain at the thought of the world knowing of their relationship. The conflict between them is, to her, a conflict between youth and middle age, and to him a conflict between temperaments. He honestly has no sense of the disparity of their ages, she honestly never forgets it.

The emotional strain is the greater between them since her son, who is "difficult" from the point of view of the vast Jerrold family of which he is the heir, adores the young man in the special adoration which unusually intelligent youth has for the unusually intelligent young adult.

The boy's difficultness, his hatred of Eton and all that public school life engenders in the young, his rebellion against the business of being poured into a mold intellectually and socially, is the despair of the Jerrolds.

The Jerrolds and their attitude toward life lure the author from her emotional theme. Old Jerrold, risen from the mines to the place of a great coal magnate bristling with the ideas and the ideals of old England, dazzling his family with a baronetcy in his seventy-fifth year, is a character which might have stepped straight out of "The Edwardians," except that he has a vitality which most of the elegant dilletantes in that charming volume lacked.

His power and his strength of character is to be found in none of his sons or daughters, however. They are a wishy-washy lot, and only in the young heir is there any of the intelligent questioning of life and the determination to make the best of it for himself and others that make of the old man a real personage.

Apparently the author feels that the generation around forty in England today is something of a negligible lot, but that the youth of the day is the hope of England's future greatness, as the men of old Jerrold's day made England's past greatness.

A factual picture of England since the war, "Just the Other Day," by John Collier and Iain Lang, is a delightful accompaniment to "Family History." It explains not only much of the result of the work of such men as old Jerrold, and the psychology of such women as Evelyn Jerrold and her generation, but chronicles the events and the spirit of the period which fashioned such young men as Miles Vane-Merrick, Evelyn Jerrold's young lover, and Dan, her young son.

And besides it is a delightful book, not quite so intimately alluring to American readers as "Only Yesterday," which it resembles, since it is Great Britain, not the United States, which it pictures and interprets, but essentially an exciting book.

Tiny Compacts in New Styles Stir Shopper

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Last winter some very ambitious person designed the capacious compact that was the size of a good filling pancake or flapjack, and it took the town by storm. Women stowed the things in pockets or handbags and roamed around by day and night definitely sagging on the one side because of the weight of the smart, new, generously sized aid to feminine well grooming.

In spite of the hazard of carrying them ourselves or of proper disposal about the person of a protesting male escort, these flapjack affairs continued to occupy front position and favor among the young gadabouts. Late in the summer the medium sizes began to appear . . . moderate, reasonable compacts that didn't pull the owner into a lopsided condition when taken out by night or day. They even eased into fashion prominence. Then came the oblonga and cut cornered square affairs, and, when these, too, were purchased with speed by tired carriers these clever compact-eers sprung their biggest yet smallest surprise, the very new dollar size glove compact.

These newest compacts are the flattest things you have ever seen, flatter than a depression dollar . . . they have a chromium mirror on one side, on the other a divided slide arrangement whereby you stow a sufficient supply of powder to keep the distressing shine away from your nose for twenty-four hours or more, depending upon the state and stubbornness of the shine. They are the answer to the question: What shall I carry with evening clothes that will not bulge or take too much room?

You will find some stunning enamel compacts of this intriguing new size, plain stunning things of scarlet, almond green, beige [and beige is the newest color of fashion], black and deep sapphire blue. These are the midget compacts, holding powder only, that you wear for street, daytime or evening clothes. You can match them to the cover of your other beautifying accessories and they slip unobtrusively under your glove and hide in the palm of your hand.

These new trifles also come in dress parade uniforms, the same sized model, the same flatness, the same inside arrangements, but the outside covers are positively breath taking—pastel tinted cloisonne, with garlands of tiny rosebuds. You will find delicate yellows, tea rose pink and powder blues and misty mauves and tender greens with contrasting rosebuds sprinkled over the surface.

But the swankiest compacts ever designed are these "compact flats" with a clip attachment—silver and gold metal discs that look exactly like the smart dollar size clip that every fashion wise woman slips to neckline, scarf, beltline and even hat.

They will deceive an expert at sight, they are stunning and most effective contrasts for all daytime clothes and most obliging gadgets, for just a touch of a finger and the disc opens, the wee flat puff is revealed and the tiny store of powder can be used at the crucial moment, the two flat halves are pressed together again and the compact becomes a clip.

These enchanting new midgets can be bought for a song, even a chorus of a very short song. In fact, the price is overwhelming even in this day of startling values and tags. No powder using shopper should be without them—and what a grand idea for long Christmas lists that have to be bought with a slender allowance.

Dinner Dance

A party limited to this year's debutantes and just a few of last season's and their beaux becomes quite a sizable party, for there are about fifty buds this winter and, when the party in question is a dancing one, of course there must be plenty of "stags."

So, although Mr. and Mrs. Frank Malcolm Gordon insisted that they were giving just a little dinner dance as an introduction to society for their daughter, Marion, about 160 young people sat down to dinner in the ballroom of the Drake hotel last night.

The debutante, who received with her mother and father, wore an attractive gown of pale green and silver lamé with a short jacket of burgundy bagheera cloth which she took off when the dancing started. Her flowers were a shoulder corsage of green orchids.

Mrs. Gordon wore wine color pebbly crepe and purple orchids. Miss Isabel Gordon, who made her debut last winter, wore blue and gold. Miss Marion Gordon went to Pine Manor last year and is registered at the University of Chicago to start her studies there in January after the debutante gayety is over.

Select Fifteen Instead of 13 Wampas Stars

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Chosen for beauty, ability, and youth, fifteen girls of the screen were announced tonight as "Wampas Baby Stars of 1933" by the motion picture industry's organization of publicity workers, the Wampas.

Selection of the fifteen young actresses instead of the customary thirteen was due to a triple tie at the election.

Another departure from custom is the plan to present the girls for the first time as a group at Los Angeles theaters instead of at a civic demonstration or at a Wampas frolic or ball.

One baby star was selected to represent each of the nine major studios and six others are free lances who gave outstanding performances in pictures of the last year.

Boots Mallory, New Orleans; blonde; Fox.

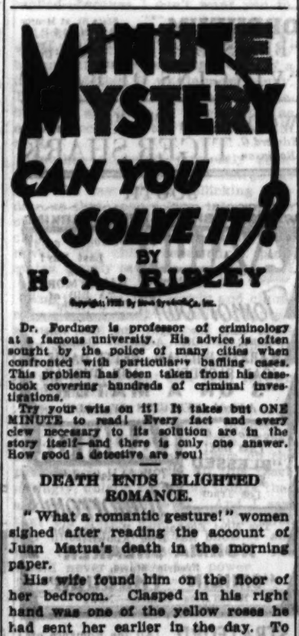
Young People's Party.

The Illinois Young People's league of the 15th ward will hold a charity ball at the Southtown ballroom, 6319 South Ashland avenue, on Dec. 16 it was announced yesterday by Miss Helen Silhanek, an employé in Mayor Cermak's office.



Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his case-book covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

DEATH ENDS BLIGHTED ROMANCE.

"What a romantic gesture!" women sighed after reading the account of Juan Matua's death in the morning paper.

His wife found him on the floor of her bedroom. Clasped in his right hand was one of the yellow roses he had sent her earlier in the day. To her friends, yellow roses and Maria Matua were synonymous.

Because of their social position, rumors of marital discord had been published in newspapers throughout the country. Many believed Matua's suicide was caused by the recent avowed intention of his wife to divorce him.

The police found Maria seated on the floor holding Juan's head in her lap, blood from the wound in his right temple, which had been instantly fatal, staining her yellow satin negligee. Dry eyed and staring, she repeated over and over the words of a note lying near the revolver at his feet. "You, alone, know why I have done this."

As Prof. Fordney prepared his notes on the case, Jean, his secretary, inquired, "Has Mrs. Matua offered any explanation of the note you found?"

"Not yet. Her physician forbids further questioning until tomorrow. Meanwhile Inspector Kelley is investigating some rather puzzling angles of the case. Although it was a bitterly cold day, neither Matua's hat nor overcoat have been found. Then no one seems to know exactly how he came to be in the house. He's been living at the Athletic club for three months."

"No doubt the public will be surprised to learn he was murdered?" concluded the professor.

ARE YOU?

Colin Campbell Wed; Grandson of Levi Leiter

Married at Tulsa Home of Bride.

Colin Leiter Campbell, 26 years old, son of the late Col. Colin Campbell of the British army and the late Mrs. Campbell, the former Nancy Leiter, was married at 5 p. m. Monday in Tulsa to Mrs. Elizabeth Cook Lynch, according to dispatches received here yesterday.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. Albert Cook of Tulsa. The ceremony took place in the home of the bride's parents. Only members of the bride's family were in attendance. Dr. Charles W. Kerr, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Tulsa and moderator of the Presbyterian church, read the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will spend their honeymoon in Havana. They will return to Tulsa to spend the Christmas holidays with Dr. and Mrs. Cook, according to their plans, and will depart shortly after the first of the year to make their home in Chicago.

Mr. Campbell has been residing in Chicago recently at the Leiter residence, 44 Banks street. A telephone call to the residence last night, inquiring for his sister, Audrey, who also makes her home here, brought the response, "There is nothing to be said." No verification of the marriage was obtained there.

Mr. Campbell is the grandson of the late Levi Z. Leiter, pioneer merchant prince of Chicago. He is the nephew of the first Lady Curzon of Kedleston, England, Mary Leiter, now deceased. He also is the nephew of the countess of Suffolk and Berks, the former Daisy Leiter, who lives in Malmesbury, Wiltshire, England.

The bride, who studied art in Europe, was visiting in Santa Fe, N. M., when the couple met there two months ago. Mr. Campbell is a member of the Chicago club and the Harvard-Yale-Princeton club, having been graduated from Harvard university.

Miss Sarah Butler, Educator's Daughter, Engaged to Britisher

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, and Mrs. Butler today announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, to Capt. Neville Lawrence of London, England. Miss Butler was graduated from Barnard college with highest honors in 1916. Shortly after leaving college she became a Republican district captain. For nearly ten years Miss Butler has been vice chairman of the New York Republican state committee.

Miss Butler's mother, who died in 1903, was Dr. Butler's first wife. She was Susanna Edwards Schuyler of Bergen Point, N. J.

Capt. Lawrence is the younger son of Sir Walter R. Lawrence, Bart., of London. He was educated at Wellington college and at Balliol college, Oxford. He served throughout the world war as an officer in the Coldstream Guards and was several times wounded in action. He is a partner in the firm of H. Evans Gordon & Co., bankers and brokers.

A Busy Day

Mrs. William J. Chalmers was busy yesterday morning greeting all the shoppers who attended the sale of toys made by the children of the Country Home for Convalescent Children at Prince Crossing.

The sale was held in a vacant shop at 700 North Michigan avenue, and by noon all the stock had been sold, to the delight of the board members who acted as saleswomen.

Mrs. Fairbank, who came to Chicago from Paris to present formally to society her daughter, Miss Jane Boyce, left yesterday afternoon for Champaign to give a lecture recital this evening at 7 o'clock at the University of Illinois. Mrs. Fairbank had planned to be back in Paris to spend Christmas with her husband and their little son, but she is so busy here that she thinks now she will not leave until after the first of the year.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IF the youngsters of the town are one-half as excited about the Old Time Yankee Circus that's comin' to town as the "grown ups" with whom we've talked about it are the Stadium will be sold out for the four performances—it will be given twice daily on Friday and Saturday of next week. Most of us oldsters are so pleased at the prospect of seeing a one ring circus again that we plan to be there for at least one performance.

A life which has become too complex always has been exemplified to me by the super-circuses with their five or seven rings, and although there must be "them as likes 'em," there are lots of simple people who will enjoy seeing a one ring circus again.

The women's division of the Salvation Army is presenting this circus for the benefit of the Emergency Welfare fund, which contributes to five great organized charities, the Salvation Army, the Catholic, the Jewish, and the United Charities and the Red Cross.

Mrs. William S. Monroe is general chairman of the large committee working on arrangements for the circus and Mrs. C. K. Corsant, president of the women's division of the Army, is co-chairman. Although the circus is under the "exclusive management of Corsant and Monroe," according to the posters, it is in no sense an amateur one, for twenty of the acts from "big time" circuses are to be on the program. The big circuses are in winter quarters now, which makes it possible for the charity circus to obtain the services of these top notchers in the big tent world.

Henry Monroe Helps Get Talent.

Henry S. Monroe, the William Monroes' son, numbers among his friends many headliners in the circus world, and he has been instrumental in helping the committee obtain many of the stars. Hi parties for the circus stars last summer at the country residence of his parents in Wayne, when the big circuses were in that part of the country, were among the most talked of affairs of the countryside, and all who had a chance to meet the bareback riders, animal trainers, and others whose lives are so different from most of ours were thrilled at the opportunity of seeing away from the sawdust ring these people who live in a world of their own and mingle very little with outsiders.

Tickets for the circus may be obtained at most of the State street department stores and from the circus office, 131 South Wabash avenue, or in the public schools after today, for members of the Parent-Teacher association are going to sell them in the school buildings. It is the first time since the world war that permission has been given to install tables and sell tickets in school buildings of this district.

There are to be special attractions at each performance and at the Saturday matinee Little Orphan Annie of W-G-N, loved by all youngsters, will appear.

Children's Home Sale Is Success.

The shop at 700 North Michigan avenue which had been donated by the Noble B. Judahs for the sale of toys made by children at the Country Home for Convalescent Children at Prince Crossing yesterday at noon looked as if it were the day before the sale instead of the day of the sale, for by that time practically everything had been sold and all that greeted this reportorial eye were huge packages ready to be picked up by chauffeurs.

"Mrs. Armour," "Mrs. Schweppe," "Mrs. Wrigley," "Mrs. Hurley," "Mrs. Reed" were some of the names written on the packages, indicating

A Job a Day.

Every little improvement we give our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

If you aren't particularly favored by having your sink under an outside window, you can avail yourself of the space above it and install a rack for the housing of sundry useful culinary tools. This is a handy place to keep them for vegetable preparation, and the easier tools are to reach, the less work there is to be done. Even duplicate tools should not always be considered an extravagance, since factories often install tools beside a worker though there are similar tools in other nearby places. And the little rack-over-the-sink is, like all good equipment, a step saver and a time salvager.

BARTER AND SAIL

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

SYNOPSIS.

Capt. Henry White sails his four-master ship, the Abigail White, in search of a ship filled with pearl oysters, sunk by a French captain before the world war in a lagoon in a South Sea island. Arlette Mordecai, the French captain's granddaughter, has brought him complete instructions for finding the ship. Arlette is accompanied by an English woman of title known as Ladybird. In his crew are Adam Eden, an unemployed engineer, Roberta Millbank and Peter Cavan. Roberta's father died after his bank failed and Peter was his trusted employé. Henry Shepard, backer of the venture, fills the boat with a cargo of his own choosing, including a lot of used cars and launches, and plans to stop at certain ports to trade cargoes. One owner of an unused car sends his French chauffeur, Raoul, along. Ladybird, who is a naval officer's daughter, is made mate. Benny, a cook, hires up for his keep. Four seafaring men Henry hired to load the cargo didn't appear to collect their wages before the boat sailed. They turn out to be bandits, who hide on the ship until it is well out to sea, then take charge. Roberta recognizes one of the men as wanted by the U. S. government for mail robbery. The ship's radio brings them a warning of four bank robbers at large and the captain knows they are his captors and that he and his party are doomed. Ladybird, at the wheel under guard, manages to give the ship a jibe and she is caught in a whirlpool.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

A DIVINATION.

A sailing vessel may change the wind's force from one side to the other of her in one of two ways. She may swing to meet the wind, look it in the eye like a weather vane, and still turning receive it with gradually increasing force as her sails fill.

On the other hand she may turn tail to the wind and then swing until its force comes suddenly and violently in full volume against her sails but from astern and on the other side. To get an idea of the difference in effect you may think of opening your umbrella facing a violent squall, or turning your back to it and letting the wind open it for you—when you are apt to need to buy a new one.

This last maneuver of "jibing" or "wearing round," to use a classic term, is often done purposefully to save bother when the wind is not too strong and to save time when it may be very strong and one is racing, or perhaps driving on to a lee shore. In both cases it requires knowledge, preparation and caution. To perform it suddenly in a fresh gale, huge cresting swell and no preliminary details, aboard a big sailing ship, requires for success practically but one factor—strong gear. And yet the latter might even prove the vessel's ruin were she to be light or too heavily laden. The very hanging on of everything might, if she were light, heave her down, capsize her. Or if she were too heavily burdened heave her down enough to get her swept and smashed and mangled by the combers battering her abeam.

In any case, and whatever happens, one may count always on a sudden violent heel when the full weight of the wind is shifted abruptly from one side of the ship to the other, and she is running off before it.

This was the factor on which Ladybird had counted for the success of her desperate plan. She had sailed in races on the Solent and North sea and channel, and she had made voyages in big sailing yachts. She did not know how so burdensome a vessel as the Abigail might act when jibed in what most sailors would call a gale, but in some ways more formidable than that because it was merely an increase in the force of the trade wind that had backed to north for a little while and thus laid down a new swell superimposed on the constant huge one.

This new swell can be likened to the thinner blade of a pair of scissors as it intersects the big blade at an acute angle. What it might do to the Abigail, Ladybird did not know. She did not greatly care, provided it changed the conditions aboard and immediately.

At the end of his wheel watch Capt. Hiram had with Peter been herded forward by Smith and one of the bandits to be ignominiously locked up. There was nothing to be done about that. What was even worse, recently the two of the crew constantly under lock and key were not confined in the big comfortable for'castle house but in about the worst part of the ship which was the chain locker.

Here they had not even the consolation of being together. A fore and aft bulkhead divided the port and starboard chain cables. These cells were worse than the Black Hole of Calcutta, because that one was at least stationery and these dark and pestilent from the filthy ooze with its sewage settling brought up from the bottom of harbors on the chain cable rotated and oscillated in vast parabolic figures.

But this night as they were going forward for internment until two of the others took their places, Capt. Hiram said:

"Think so?" said Capt. Smith.

"Yes, or get dismasted maybe. My gear is all solid but the shrouds; they've suffered from neglect."

"It would have to get a lot worse than this," said Capt. Smith.

"It's going to get worse. When the trade wind gets to backing on you over a couple of points then look out."

Smith was impressed. "What do you want to do about it?" he asked.

"Heave to. If she gets much harder, then if you like you can reef and get on your way again. Depends on what your time is worth."

Smith was sailor enough to know that even four-masters have to be reefed sometimes to lessen the strain on the separate masts if one is to be kept on her course. But he might not have done anything about it if Capt. Hiram had not added in a voice of hard indifference:

"Sometimes it comes quick."

It may have struck Smith that the chain locker in the fore peak was a poor place for the captain of a ship that knew his vessel and knew his weather in this part of the Atlantic on such a night. Perhaps it struck him also that his captives were not apt to start anything on a night like this.

He changed his mind and marched them into the forward house where he detailed a guard to watch them with orders that he shoot to kill at the first overt move. Another guard was watching Henery and old Benny in the galley. Benny was subject to call at all hours for hot coffee or food. These two older men did not seem dangerous to Smith, and Raoul, a "frog chauffeur" even less so. The third man was, however, keeping an eye on him in the after cabin, subject to call to relieve the wheel.

Capt. Smith went back to the wheel where Ladybird and Adam were having their hands full to steer. He did not like this thing of a woman at the wheel, not through any sense of chivalry but because steering was by this time a two man job, and strong men at that.

The ship's company was thus disposed of when Ladybird's high and, by this time, desperate spirit got from some source its reckless inspiration.

Capt. Smith had no warning of that. The first he knew about it was when she flung herself upon him with the frenzied strength of a mad woman who was also a trained athlete. Before he knew enough about it to realize just what was happening he knew nothing at all—nor for that matter did the courageous Ladybird who had launched her forlorn hope.

Capt. Hiram under guard knew more about it when it was in course of happening than did any soul aboard, except Adam who was doing it. Part of this knowledge was the result of long experience and the rest was divination. Like most watchful and observant shipmasters he was instantly aware of any change in the motion of his vessel and able to interpret its cause. This faculty becomes so highly developed even if asleep a subconsciousness had often warned him of a sudden alteration in his vessel's poise and equilibrium. This might come of a sudden shift of wind, or a careless lack of vigilance and attention to his job on the part of the wheelman.

GASOLINE ALLEY—IN THE SWEET BY AND BY THE OLIVER CLUB! THOSE KIDS YOU HAD HERE LAST NIGHT, WALT, WEREN'T IN THE ATTIC — THAT'S ABOUT THE ONLY PLACE.

IF I HAD READ 'EM "MURDER IN THE UPPER BERTH" MAYBE I COULD HAVE HELD MY AUDIENCE.
BUT IT WOULD HAVE BEEN GREAT WHEN I WAS A KID — TO HEAR SOMEBODY READ OLIVER TWIST, AND THEN HAVE A CANDY ROLL!
THIS PLACE HAS GOT MORE FINGA PRINTS THAN THE DETECATIVE BUREAU.
GEE, UNCLE WALT, WE HAD A SWELL TIME. WHEN DOES THE OLIVER CLUB MEET AGAIN.
WELL, I'D SAY ABOUT THE LAST OF JANUARY IN THE MIDDLE OF THE BALL PARK.

Museum Completes Habitat Groups of American Mammals

The Field museum hall of North and South American mammal habitat groups was completed yesterday with the addition of an exhibit group of A' kan caribou, shown amid a reproduction of a scene in their natural habitat in the Rainy Pass region not far from Mount McKinley. The caribou group is the 24th and last of the habitat groups representing the principal mammals of the two American continents.

"Completed at this pre-Christmas season the group has a special interest for children," Director Stephen C. Simms said yesterday, "as these animals are a variety of reindeer and may thus be associated with the Santa Claus legend."

that these ladies had been most generous in their purchasing, for all the packages were enormous.

About the only things left to be seen [they couldn't be purchased] were the articles of the little German village copied from a Dutch collection of antiques for Mrs. J. Ogden Armour and which she will use as a table center piece; a stunning hooked rug and a miniature farm set that would delight any child. The rug and the animals were sold in shares.

Mrs. William J. Chalmers, president of the board, estimated that between $600 and $800 would be realized by the sale. Mrs. Chalmers served a delicious buffet luncheon to the board members assisting her in the rear of the shop, among the assistants being Mrs. Ralph C. Brown, Mrs. Edward R. Ferriss, Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins, Miss Helen Wilkins, Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, Mrs. Walter Strong and Mrs. Dallas Phemister.

Among the shoppers were all the saleswomen and Mrs. Chauncey Keep, Mrs. Raymond Hurley, Mrs. Philip K. Wrigley, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mrs. George B. Dryden, Mrs. Ernest Graham, Mrs. Sewell Avery, Mrs. Warren M. Sallsbury, Mrs. Clarence Sills, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. William F. Peterson and Mrs. Albert A. Sprague.

Betty Edmonds to Make Debut.

The newest recruit to the ranks of debutantes is Miss Betty Edmonds, whose father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Edmonds, will present her at a tea at home, 670 Blackthorne road, Winnetka, on Jan. 2. Miss Edmonds comes home from Briarcliff on Dec. 20 and will return there on Jan. 9.

The date for Miss Peggy Carry's debut tea has been changed from Dec. 28 to the 21st, and instead of giving the tea at their residence, as they had planned, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Carry will give it at the Woman's Athletic club.

Miss Carry's aunt, Mrs. Edward F. Carry of the Lake Shore Drive hotel, will entertain at luncheon at the Casino on Tuesday, the 20th, for the debutante, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. James M. Carry [Mary Trigg Waller], will give a luncheon for her at the Carrys' Highland Park residence on Wednesday, the 28th. Miss Carry will arrive at home from Sweet Briar college in Virginia on the 18th.

The young women on whom most of the burden of supplying funds for Emerson house falls are planning a ball for the night of Tuesday, Dec. 27, in the Urban room of the Congress hotel. It is to be the first popular priced charity ball, so young Mrs. Press Hodgkins, who is publicity chairman for it, tells us, and the board hopes to clear a sizable sum for the settlement by the sale of hundreds of tickets, which are $1.50 each, or $3 a couple.

Resume Roller Skating Parties.

The young people and those not so young but still agile enough to enjoy roller skating and who skated at Great Lakes last year have received cards inviting them to attend the roller skating parties to be held in the drill hall at the Naval Training station at Great Lakes this year. They will be given for the benefit of the Navy Relief on Friday evenings.

You may think Mrs. George A. McKinlock is in Washington today addressing a national meeting of the American Red Cross, but we beg to report that a call to the Chicago office of the Red Cross yesterday revealed that she just couldn't make the train that was to take her not only to the meeting but also to a day or so of "gadding about" the national capital.

Her unflagging interest in the work here has already necessitated postponing the completion of the new house which the McKinlocks are building in Lake Bluff until some time in March. But she insists that she is going to Florida just as soon as possible—and she hopes that will be the middle of January.

Mrs. Potter d'Orsay Palmer arrived in town Tuesday night from a two months' visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Narcisse Martinez de Hoz, in Lausanne and Paris, bringing with her her sister, Miss Matilde Martinez de Hoz, who will spend several months in Chicago with the young Palmers.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Crane II. have been in New York since last Thursday and are planning to be back in Chicago Sunday. The Joseph E. Otises are returning this morning from a short stay in New York.

Mrs. George H. Campbell of Toronto has come to spend the holiday season with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Gordon Campbell, and to be present at the younger Mrs. Campbell's (Berta Ochsner) dance concert at the Goodman theater tomorrow night. Miss Ochsner will dance two groups to the accompaniment of the spoken word rather than music, one group to "Poems of the Orient," written by Eunice Tietgens, and the other to Liza Lehmann's "Cautionary Tales," read by Mrs. Marion Anderson of London.

The second Kinsolving musical morning of the season will take place this morning in the ballroom of the Blackstone hotel with the usual smart music lovers in attendance. Dusolina Giannini will be the artist. Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson, Mrs. Moise Dreyfus, Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, Mrs. Wentworth G. Field, and Mrs. Frederic W. Upham are among those who will entertain guests at the musical.

This morning at 11 the Woman's Athletic club is presenting to its members and their guests Dean Gordon J. Laing, who will speak on "What Everybody Reads." There will be luncheon following the program.

Tea for Silver Screen Ball

The women and men, mostly the former of course, who are serving on the executive committee and subcommittees for the Silver Screen ball are having so many gay tea parties at which to report the progress of their work that the work doesn't seem difficult at all, I'm sure. This afternoon Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick has invited the workers to tea at her residence, 209 Lake Shore drive, at 4:30 o'clock. The ball will be given on Friday night of next week at the Drake hotel by the Association of Arts and Industries.

Mrs. Moisant-Griffiths and her daughter, Miss Gloria Griffiths, have invited a few of their friends to what seems to be more of a cocktail party than a tea, judging from the cards that are out, at their home at 1500 Lake Shore drive today from five until seven. This is to be quite an interesting party, for they are going to show the portrait of Miss Griffiths that the famous artist, Beltran Masses, did in Paris this summer.

Last night Miss Griffiths gave a dinner at her home for Miss Jane Willett's bridal party. Miss Griffiths will be maid of honor for Miss Willett when she marries Dr. Samuel Gale Taylor III. Saturday.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Affleck, Mrs. Charles Davis, Mrs. Harold Pynchon, and Mrs. Victor Young are to pour at the tea the Chicago Drama league will give this afternoon in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel for Bruce Bairnsfather and the cast of "Springtime for Henry." Mr. Bairnsfather will talk at 3 o'clock on "My Playwriting Experiences" and "Laughing Through India" [stereopticon and cartoon illustrations] after which tea will be served.

The Drama Club of Evanston will have Dorothy Sand, character actress, as speaker at their meeting this afternoon at 2:30 in the Woman's club. Miss Sand has promised caricatures of Ethel Barrymore and Haidee Wright. The program will be followed by tea.

The seniors of the Faulkner school will give a fashion show and tea Saturday in the school gymnasium at 1376 East 48th street.

Church Group Hits War Test of Citizenship

Council Condemns Policy in Resolution.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 7. — [Special.]—The Federal Council of Churches of Christ, meeting in quadrennial sessions here, today passed a resolution condemning "willingness to bear arms in event of war" as a test of citizenship.

The resolution is a part of the council's message to the 26 constituent denominations and their 23,000,000 members. It thus becomes the official statement of position of the entire constituency. After a sweeping condemnation of war "as the most colossal and ruinous social sin that afflicts humanity," the message announces the new doctrine that "to support war is to deny the gospel we profess to believe."

This statement of doctrine was vigorously challenged by Walter W. Edge of Lancaster, Pa., of the Presbyterian delegation. He asserted it to be a slur against the "patriots who gave their lives on the fields of battle to protect their country." This was answered by the Rev. Dr. C. L. Seasholes of Dayton, O., who said the message was not retroactive but only condemned those who would fight in future wars.

The portion of the resolution, which was interpreted by a minority, largely composed of members of the Presbyterian delegation, as an attack on the decision of the Supreme court in the Macintosh naturalization case, follows:

"God alone is Lord of the conscience. We recommend such changes in the present laws so that citizenship should not be conditioned upon the willingness to bear arms, contrary to conscience, or to take part as a war combatant, in contradiction to moral convictions. We believe that to base citizenship upon such a test is not only unjust to the individual, but contrary to public welfare and in conflict with the idea of a nation into whose very structure the principle of political and religious liberty has been built."

The entire program for reorganization of the council was passed almost unanimously this morning except for the constitutional change permitting the council to administer certain activities of individual denominations.

Dr. Albert W. Beaven, president of Rochester Colgate Theological seminary, was elected president of the council today. Dr. Lewis S. Mudge, former moderator of the Presbyterian church, was elected vice president.

Deborah Boys' Club to Get Proceeds of Fete Opening Today

Entertainment ranging from a Punch and Judy show to taxi dancing will be included in the two day fête which the Deborah Woman's club is giving today and tomorrow at the Congress hotel to aid the Deborah Boys' club. Mrs. C. K. Corsant is chairman of the fête and Mrs. Joseph Wolf is co-chairman.

Several hundred members of the club will preside at the various booths, entertain dinner guests both nights, serve as cigaret girls during the evenings and act as the taxi dancers in the dance salon. The Deborah Boys' club orchestra will furnish the music and the Deborah Boys' glee club will serenade guests from the balcony during the evenings.

The club is maintained at 2541 West Division street under the supervision of the Young Men's Jewish Charities. Nine hundred underprivileged boys are kept off the streets at the club. The fête was arranged to raise funds so that the club will not have to close its doors this year. Mrs. Harry Cannann is president.

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

The neckline of this dress is finished in one of the youthful scarf effects so popular this season. The skirt is perfectly fitted, and the puffed sleeves help in creating the smart broadened shoulder effect. Satin crêpe in a wine red, with the neck scarf made of the reverse side of the crêpe, is chic.

The pattern, No. 3136, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years, and 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 4¾ yards of 39 inch material with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting, and ⅝ yard of 36 inch lining for the sleeves.

Child's Nurse Arbiter of His Small Destiny

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

One of the most difficult things in the world for people to use properly is power. A child is pretty absolutely in the power of the one who has charge of him, whether it is parent, relative, or nurse. And because of the possibilities for good and bad that are inherent in this last mentioned relationship mothers cannot be too careful in selecting the nurses for their children. This is particularly true when the child is small, for then he is more impressionable, docile, and tractable.

If a nurse is loving and understanding her power is seldom abused. Such nurses have made childhood rich and happy for countless children, with love and gratitude as their reward when those children grew up. Where nurses are not like that, where they are indifferent or unsympathetic, their power is apt to be misused.

I was sitting in the park one spring morning where the nurses and children take their daily outing and if I had ever needed evidence to make this point I had it then. An attractive little girl of 5 passed by with her French nurse. She was dancing and prancing along as a little child should on a lovely spring morning.

"Ne fait pas ça," said "Mademoiselle."

"But why not?" asked the little girl.

"Parce que je ne le veux pas," she replied—because I don't want you to.

Another nurse, pretty and young, walked along so obviously bored by her unsuitable job of taking care of a little child that it was almost funny. The little girl trailed a few feet behind her as obviously bored with the nurse's society as the nurse was with hers.

Another nursegirl purposely separated herself and her little charge far from the rest of the rollicking children so that, secure from interruption or the need of keeping an eye on the child, she could lose herself in a novel. The child, deprived of playmates, merely sat.

And then, walking slowly and chummily along, I saw two familiar figures, a nurse and her charge I had often seen before. Near by they stopped to look at the starling which was picking up the crumbs that had been thrown to the pigeons.

They watched the park attendant, talking animatedly as he pruned a tree. They picked up little stones and made a collection of them on the park bench. They did all this fascinatingly, quietly observing things that a very little child loves. And I saw that old nurse was quite unlettered and untaught, but that because she had the understanding heart she would never misuse her power.

THE STAGE

"The Left Bank," a comedy by Elmer Rice, author of "Street Scene" and "Counsellor-at-Law," will begin an engagement at the Harris theater Sunday night, Dec. 18. This play deals with expatriate Americans who are seeking to "live their own lives," with artistic gestures, in the Latin Quarter of Paris. It had a run of thirty-two weeks in New York last season, and many critics preferred it to the more successful "Counsellor-at-Law."

Horace Braham and Eleanor Phelps, of the original Broadway company, will have the leading rôles. Others in the cast will be King Calder, Ethel Wilson, Betty Colter, Armand Cortes, Adrienne Murray, Joan Meyer and Edward Downes.

"We the People" is the title of Elmer Rice's latest play, which will soon be placed in rehearsal under his management. It deals with typical phases of American city life during the period of the depression.

"Design for Living," the comedy by Noel Coward in which Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne will be starred with the author, is now in rehearsal. The first performance will be given in Cleveland, and a New York première is scheduled for Jan. 23. The company in support of the three stars will include Campbell Gullan, Gladys Hanson, Phyllis Connard, Ethel Russell, Alan Campbell, Ward Bishop, Leonard Loan, and Mac Stinnetta.

Mr. Coward has announced that he will never permit Chicago to get a glimpse of "Design for Living," in spite of the popularity of the Lunts in this city. Seven years ago he acted here in an inferior play of his own authorship called "The Vortex," and he is still shuddering over its total failure.

One of the best tricks a well planned menu can supply these days is novelty and modernism in the dessert course, and one of the simplest and smartest ways of being modern and different is by serving a refrigerator or icebox dessert to top off dinner, glorify lunch, or form the party delicacy.

While these desserts have a huge family of brothers, step-sisters, and nephews once removed, there are a few points common to all of them—and then a vast field for departure. These common denominators are three: 1. Refrigerator puddings and cakes (which are about the same) usually contain a dry, ready baked ingredient such as cookies, crackers, cake, or lady fingers, and a moist ingredient such as one of a great variety of custards, cream mixtures or gelatine combinations. 2. They are usually fairly rich, well sweetened. 3. As their name indicates, are chilled and set thoroughly in the refrigerator, though not in the freezing compartment.

One of the gayest things about many of these chilly, yet not frozen, desserts is that they can be made in ten minutes, sipped into the refrigerator hours before dinner, and then forgotten completely until the moment for serving arrives. For instance, name anything more completely simple yet more delectable than the following little cracker and apple combination which takes just five minutes to prepare and serves six generously:

APPLE REFRIGERATOR FLUFF.

Roll eighteen large size graham crackers to a medium fine crumb and fold into one and one-half cups of sweetened, flavored apple sauce. Turn the mixture into a pudding dish and let stand in the refrigerator to chill for about two and one-half hours. Serve in glass sherbet goblets topped with whipped cream.

Or a holiday dessert offers a new way of ringing in the gay little cranberry for color and goodness.

CRANBERRY REFRIGERATOR PUDDING.

1¼ cups water
¾ pound (3 cups) good red cranberries
½ cup chopped nuts
2-3 cup chopped dates
½ cup chopped raisins
Whole rind of orange, ground
1 cup sugar
Sponge cake
1 cup whipping cream

Bring the water to a boil, drop in the cranberries, and cook until they pop. Press through a fine sieve and to the pulp add the nuts, raisins, dates, and ground orange rind. Cook slowly five minutes, then add the sugar and when dissolved remove from the fire. Line a baking pan or casserole with thin sponge cake slices, spread with the cranberry mixture, add another layer of cake and more cranberries. Continue until both are used, adding a layer of cake last. Let stand in the refrigerator for six hours or until set and firm. Unmold and slice. Top each serving with a swirl of whipped cream.

Difference in Faith Obstacle to Happy Union

Children Apt to Increase Parents' Problems.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The question of religious difference in relation to successful marriage arises frequently. It's a question we like to avoid. And do avoid, as a general rule, shifting the responsibility to clerical shoulders and on to those of the young couple involved.

It is a serious problem, more serious than the light hearted young pair realize in their madly-in-love period. The fact that they question even at this time proves that they recognize in themselves a germ of discord in opposing faiths under one roof. With some couples, where religious training has not been deeply inculcated, and where, consequently, there is little observance of faith, the problem disposes of itself. But these are not the ones who inquire about the wisdom of marrying one of opposite faith.

It's where the Catholic religion, the Protestant, or the Jewish faith has been deeply instilled that the question does come up. And where each of the contracting pair wishes to continue in his and her own faith.

One thing is true: Couples are luckier who manage to fall in love and marry one of their own faith. At least, it eliminates one element of risk in marriage. And it contributes one form of amity that is really basic in its influence.

But love doesn't always operate that way. A Catholic, a Protestant, or a Jewish girl or boy will fall desperately in love with one of different faith. Neither wants to abandon the faith in which he or she has been brought up. And, of course, the real question evolves upon the future family. The pair themselves might manage happily enough—often do—once they iron out the difficulties of getting married under the circumstances of opposing faiths. But when youngsters enter the scene the problem takes on a new life.

Family influence often adds confusion. The man's family, the girl's family! What eventually happens is that one side wins. But, as I say, this is a problem for one's conscience, one's priest, minister, or rabbi to advise on.

Y. W. and Y.M.C.A. Group Will Present "Potboiler"

The Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. players will present "The Potboiler," a satire written by Miss Alice Gerstenberg, next Wednesday at the Y. M. C. A. branch at 1515 West Monroe street. Roland Alm, who also is a member of the cast, is a director of the play. Other members of the cast include Frank Carl, Fred Armano, Myrl Stott, Mary Frances South, H. Wallace Armstrong, and Eileen Florence Kelly.

No Matter What Your Age No Need Now to Have

Now Comb Away Gray This Easy Way

NO longer is it necessary to have gray hair no matter what your age. To allow gray hair to cheat you out of your job, or the love and happiness younger looking men and women enjoy is a fatal mistake that should not be permitted. Gray hair is risky. It screams "you're getting old." To end gray hair worries all you now have to do, is to comb your hair once a day, for several days, with a few drops of Kolor-Bak sprinkled on your comb. All the gray disappears like magic within a week or two. So perfect are the results and so gradual the change that users report their friends forget they ever had a gray hair and never know they have done a thing to it. Ending gray hair handicaps, now that you can get Kolor-Bak, the clean, colorless liquid, at any drug or department store, is inexpensive, quick, and easy.

Do Just One Simple Thing

Simply combing your hair with Kolor-Bak right at home, without any mess, without any stickiness, without any soiled linen, you'll find as pleasant and easy as using water. To end gray hair handicaps—to impart youthlike color again to ugly graying locks—to avoid heartaches, loss of positions and promotions—to look years younger and far more attractive, go to your nearest drug or department store today and get a bottle of the original and genuine, time-proven Kolor-Bak. Test Kolor-Bak under our positive guarantee that it must make you look ten years younger and far more attractive and appealing to others or your money back.

Free 50c box Shampoo

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Happened in on Sue Carol the other afternoon. Dixie Lee, formerly with Fox studios, now playing Mrs. Bing Crosby in private life, was there. Notice how often a brunette and a blonde team up as pals? Good foils for one another! Sue is as brunette as Dixie is blonde, though Dixie, like a lot of other blondes on the pictorial market at the moment, is not so blonde as she was. She's letting her hair go back to its natural ash blonde color.

Sue Carol offers a timely hint for the girl who decided she'd like to be a redhead and then changes her mind after she gets the Titian tint and her friends all tell her her choice was all wrong. If that red isn't becoming it's pretty bad, Sue admits finding out to her sorrow. But instead of waiting three or four months for the natural shade to return she had her henaed hair dyed her own natural brown color. In this way her own color worked its way back without the usual embarrassment of henna and brown streaks mixed together.

Sue wears her hair quite shingleish in the back, but cuts long enough top and sides to allow for white, soft, and slightly puffed out waves. Her head is an excellent shape for this type of coiffure.

Dixie says if she bobbed her hair like that her little Boston puppy would yowl worse than it does now. So she lets hers hang loosely, with ends curled.

Both girls dip their finger tips in the same ox-blood nail polish. A gay moment was introduced—for the two girls and female onlookers—when a consignment of hand made undies things arrived, monogrammed with first names. Nighties with puffed lace sleeves, high waistlines, sashes, decorous and adorable. Well, it's just too bad you can't buy them at the 5 and 10, for all girls should be permitted one gay lingerie fling at least once in a lifetime.

Sue Carol's silhouette points an accusing finger at those very young matrons who fear to have a baby in case they'd ruin their figures. It may be necessary to take extra care of the hair and teeth during the period of pregnancy, but with the medically directed exercise you get after the baby comes a young woman needn't have any alarm about her hip dimensions. One precaution Miss Carol took was to wear a specially constructed brassiere, even while sleeping.

GIVE YOUR STOMACH ONE HOUR'S HELP

That "lump" you feel an hour or so after eating, is a symptom of slow stomach. This very common condition can be remedied.

Instead of taking soda, or anything else you must take the rest of your life, try some diapepsin. Each tablet saves half an hour's digestion time. If your stomach is one hour slow in emptying, just take two tablets of diapepsin and all that gas, sourness, and distress after meals will be gone.

One box of Pape's Diapepsin will test your stomach and correct your digestion time. Then eat anything you like, and it will digest like crackers and milk! Keep on with diapepsin a few days, until the stomach is doing its work without need of help. When it slows down, take diapepsin again; it's good for the digestive system and can't hurt you.

Pape's Diapepsin may end all your "stomach trouble" and is certainly worth trying!

GREAT U. S. C. LINE PERILS NOTRE DAME ATTACK

CHICAGO TO SEE CUBS PLAY SOX APRIL 8 AND 9

Herman, Simmons to Make Debuts.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Dec. 7.—The Cubs and the White Sox will renew their ancient baseball feud in Chicago next April 8 and 9. On Saturday, April 8, the two teams will meet at Comiskey park and on the next day they will clash at Wrigley field. It will be the first time in history that the two Chicago major league clubs have hooked up in preseason combat.

Chicago south and north side partisans will not have to make their bets on the two Chicago games without advance guides. The Cubs and Sox will meet in two games at Wrigley field, Los Angeles, during the spring training season. The dates for the earlier games have not been decided.

Veeck, Comiskey Confer.

Announcement of the four spring games were made at the minor league meeting here today after a conference between President William Veeck of the National league champions and J. Louis Comiskey, owner of Chicago's American league entry. The two magnates went into a huddle here shortly after the arrival of Mr. Comiskey from Chicago. Mr. Veeck had arrived at the convention twenty-four hours earlier, but had withheld all discussion of the exhibition plan pending the conference between him and the Sox's big boss.

The two Chicago games will be of especial interest this year, baseball observers pointed out. It will give the Cub fans a chance to look at Babe Herman in Chicago regalia four days earlier than otherwise would have been possible, while the Sox fans will be given the opportunity to view Al Simmons, Mule Haas, Jimmy Dykes, et al., almost two weeks sooner than they would were they to await the Chicago American league opener.

Cubs Leave Feb. 20.

In addition to the announcement of the Chicago vs. Chicago series in California and Chicago, Mr. Veeck made it known that the first squad of Cubs—pitchers and catchers of all description—will leave Chicago for Catalina island on Feb. 20, arriving on Feb. 23, while the remainder of the team will push off Feb. 25, arriving on Feb. 28. Mr. Comiskey said the entire Sox squad would begin training at Pasadena, Cal., on March 1.

On March 4 and 5 the Cubs will meet the New York Giants at the Cubs' training base on Catalina island, the contests to be played in the nature of a memorial to the late William Wrigley Jr. No admission will be charged and plans for a suitable memorial service will be carried out, it is said.

Arrange Series with Giants.

The first Cub regular exhibition game of the spring, at which admission will be charged, will be with the Giants at Wrigley field, Los Angeles, on March 10. The team also will be pitted against each other on March 11 and 12. The date of the first Sox game has not been decided, but the Chicago American leaguers may get under way against Pittsburgh on the same week-end the Cubs meet the Giants. The Sox will come east with the Pirates, playing exhibitions in Texas and the south central states en route.

Oscar Reichow, representing the Pacific Coast league, is here trying to complete the coast schedule of the Sox, the Cubs, the Giants, the Pirates, the Los Angeles Angels, the San Francisco Seals and Missions, the Oakland Oaks, and the Hollywood Stars.

Mr. Reichow's schedule was upset by the announcement of the Giants that they will leave California March 24 for an extensive road tour. The withdrawal of Detroit from California also disrupted the tentative plans.

Play Blues Three Games.

The booking of the two games in Chicago will alter the custom of the Cubs to close their exhibition season against the Kansas City Blues. However, the Cubs will engage the K. C. outfit Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday before coming to Chicago.

It has been decided that the season will open on Wednesday, April 12, a day later than the usual Tuesday opener.

Propose New Schedule.

At the request of the Boston Red Sox the American league at New York next week will seek to get the National league to coöperate in the arranging of a schedule entirely different from the arrangement heretofore generally followed. President Will Harridge said today the American league would propose a plan whereby the eastern clubs will come west earlier than ever before, to be immediately followed back east by the western clubs. This would do away in a measure with the prolonged home and home sectional series before the intersectional series begin.

Inasmuch as the American league schedule must interlock with that of the National league, however, it will be necessary for the older circuit to coöperate before the American proposal can make any headway.

FORDHAM U. TO OFFER HANLEY COACHING JOB

But Northwestern Grid Chief Isn't Interested.

There was a boom yesterday in football news as applied to coaches. Dick Hanley of Northwestern was reported in line for the head coach job at Fordham university, and promptly denied it.

Two new candidates appeared for Pop Warner's recently vacated place at Stanford. They are Tad Jones, brother of Howard, and Hack Applequist of Sacramento, Cal., Junior college.

Jimmy Phelan, University of Washington coach, denied he was being considered as a successor to A. A. Stagg at the University of Chicago.

New York, Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Fordham university has chosen Richard E. (Dick) Hanley, coach of the Northwestern university football team, to succeed Maj. Frank W. Cavanaugh as head coach of its football team, it was reliably reported today. Unless an unforeseen hitch develops in arrangements the appointment is expected to be announced shortly after Jan. 1.

DICK HANLEY.

No announcement has yet come from Fordham on the subject, the only statement being Graduate Manager Jack Coffey's that "we will not be in a position to make any announcement until shortly after the first of the year."

One of Outstanding Coaches.

However, the present plans have Hanley as the new coach, and it is extremely unlikely that there will be any catch in the proceedings. That at least was the information which came today from two reliable sources.

He was graduated from Washington State college in 1920, having been a star member of the Washington State eleven and captain in his senior season of 1919. In 1916 he played against Brown in the first Rose Bowl game ever staged at Pasadena.

Prep Team Wins Title.

He entered coaching immediately after graduation, first directing the eleven of the Pendleton (Ore.) High school in 1920 and 1921, during which years his team won the state championship. From Pendleton he went to Haskell Indian school to coach the Indians from 1921 through 1926. Then, as a result of his teams' fine records, he was invited to become coach at Northwestern.

There, until this year, his Purple teams ranked in the forefront of Big Ten competition. Last season Northwestern tied Notre Dame and was undefeated during the regular season, but lost, 7-0, to Purdue in a post-season charity game. In 1930 Notre Dame was the only team to defeat Northwestern.

NO WORD—HANLEY

Coach Dick Hanley, questioned last night after reports had come from New York that Fordham university had chosen him as its 1933 football coach, said that he had not been in communication with the eastern school.

"I'm getting tired of having my name mentioned whenever there is a coaching vacancy," Hanley said. "Earlier in the week it was reported I was going to succeed Pop Warner at Stanford. Now it's Fordham.

"I haven't heard anything from Fordham. I am not interested in the coaching job there."

RENEW JONES' CONTRACT

SILVER FOOTBALL.

READERS frequently express curiosity how members of THE TRIBUNE'S board of award go about picking the Big Ten player of greatest value to his team from the ten nominated for that honor. The plan of voting, of course, is known. But how do the committeemen determine the qualities which merit the Silver Football in such a field of valuable players?

One of the not unusual methods in the past has been to pick the player whose absence from any eleven would have been the most serious loss. Therefore we present excerpts of one letter in explanation of a board member's vote. The name naturally is omitted because members of this board of award are assured a secret ballot. Here is the argument:

"We find ten fine boys candidates for this Silver Football, every one of them an honor to his eleven and an honor to football. You do not ask us to name the 'greatest' player, but the one of most value to his particular team.

"With me, that eliminates Cassels of Chicago, Keckich of Indiana, Laws of Iowa, Oen of Minnesota, Rentner of Northwestern, Hinchman of Ohio State, and Horstman of Purdue. All these boys were valuable, but their teams could have gotten along without them, not as well perhaps, but still they were not vital.

"Remaining are McGuire of Wisconsin, Newman of Michigan, and Berry of Illinois. Then the choice becomes difficult. Wisconsin and Illinois were the two conference elevens which did better than expected. Michigan, although champion, was picked in advance as possible, even probable, title holder. Wisconsin was put in the second flight and finished in third place. Illinois, on dope, would not win a game but did win two.

"Therefore, on the basis of what was accomplished, I place Mickey McGuire and Gil Berry of Wisconsin and Illinois, respectively, over Newman of Michigan in value. McGuire was the prime factor in beating Minnesota. Berry, however, not only in his own performances, which gave victory over Chicago and Indiana, but in his leadership, inspired the Illini to nearly all they accomplished.

"Newman was on a strong team which helped him to accomplish what he accomplished. McGuire was on a good average team. Berry was on a weak eleven just beginning to find itself at the end. My first choice therefore is Gil Berry and my second choice Mickey McGuire."

CARNERA WEIGHS A MERE 272 LBS., BUT WHAT OF IT?

Hasn't Levinsky Put On Five Pounds?

Primo Carnera will have a weight advantage of 73 pounds over King Levinsky when they meet in a 10 round contest at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night, it was indicated yesterday when both boxers completed their strenuous drill. Carnera weighed 272 pounds and King scaled 199. When they met last year Carnera weighed 272½ and King, 194.

Carnera boxed seven rounds yesterday, three with Les Kennedy, Los Angeles, and two each with Harold Scarney, Youngstown, O., and Jack Robinson, Chicago. He landed some hard punches on Kennedy and Robinson and had them wobbly. Primo eased up on Scarney and finished the workout in good condition.

King Cuts Drill.

Levinsky had to cut his sparring drill to four rounds, two with Tom Jones and one each with Jackie Williams and Ed Willis. Tommy Davenport, Little Rock, Ark., heavyweight, refused to spar with King, announcing that he was afraid to risk injury which might necessitate cancellation of his six round supporting match with Tex More. Levinsky roughed up Davenport considerably Tuesday. King dropped Jones twice and jarred Williams and Willis with an aggressive two fisted attack.

The customary division of opinions on the probable result of the match exists. Carnera is picked to win by a knockout. Levinsky is picked to win by knockout. Carnera will win on a decision. Levinsky will win by a decision.

Critics who have watched both men train say King will avenge the defeat scored by the giant Italian a year ago. They point to the aggressive, two fisted attack he has developed and the defensive, counter punching style Carnera uses as a basis for their opinion.

Levandowski Arrives.

Martin Levandowski, Grand Rapids, Mich., light heavyweight, arrived yesterday for his eight round semi-final match with Georgie Nichols, division champion. The weight has been set at 176 pounds, thus making the contest a non-title affair.

Levandowski will be making his third start in Chicago. He won an international light heavyweight title as an amateur at the Stadium in 1929. On his second appearance here he knocked out Nick Taft at the Coliseum two years ago. Martin has had 30 professional matches, winning all but four. He has boxed Maxie Rosenbloom and Owen Phelps. Levandowski had held Charley Belanger to a draw. In his last start, three weeks ago, he knocked out Joe Doktor.

JEFFERSON PARK PLANS FREE GATE TO FIGHT BOOKIES

New Orleans, La., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Elimination of admission charges for the remainder of Jefferson Park's winter race meeting appeared likely today as the management made a bid for attendance comparable to other years and opened a drive on competition offered by downtown establishments where race bets are laid.

Robert S. Eddy, general manager at the track, said the experiment was prompted by Jefferson Park's 16th birthday party last Monday, when the gates were thrown open to the public for the day and every inch of space was jammed, in contrast to the indifferent crowds which have passed through the turnstiles in the last two weeks. About 5,000 turned out for the opening program on Thanksgiving day, but since then the grandstand has not been filled, except for last Monday. Betting through the track's mutuel system has proportionately decreased.

Mickey Riley's 50 Yd. Drive Gets Birdie; It's a Hawk

Palm Springs, Cal., Dec. 7.—(AP)—It was in fact a birdie that Mickey Riley, the Olympic diving champion, accomplished in a 50 yard drive in a golf game here today. Riley drove into the branches of a tree and a desert hawk with a four foot wing spread fell out. The ball had broken its neck.

FIELD GOAL THREAT AGAINST NOTRE DAME

Olin Dutra's 70 Wins Medal at San Francisco

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Drives that split every fairway and deft putting gave Olin Dutra of Santa Monica, Cal., National Professional Golfers association 1932 champion, a subpar 70 and medal honors for the first 18 hole qualifying round of the San Francisco national open match play tournament today.

The 6 foot 200 pound Spaniard shaded par figures by a single stroke to show the way over the tricky Lakeside course to some 175 entrants. He was out in 34, with a birdie 3 on the sixth, and came home in 36, even par for the incoming stretch.

Thomson and Sheppard Get 72.

Only Dutra was able to match the par test of the course. Two strokes behind him were Jimmy Thomson of Colorado Springs and Charley Sheppard of Oakland, northern California open title holder.

While most of the better known touring professionals were able to land in the ranks of the 64 qualifiers, Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill., remained in the running only after a second nine comeback that saw him equal par 36 for a total of 77. He had a disastrous first nine with a 41, three putting four greens.

Tied at 74 strokes were Mortie Dutra of Long Beach, Cal.; Willie Hunter of Los Angeles, Joe Frank of Milwaukee, and Bud Ward, young amateur from Olympia, Wash.

James Thomson, Colorado Springs, Colo.	72
Al Espinosa, Akron, O.	73

Babe Didrikson's Fate Is Left Up to Southern A. A. U.

The suspension of Mildred [Babe] Didrikson, world's greatest girl athlete, will be lifted if the southern association of the Amateur Athletic union investigates and clears her of the charges that she permitted the use of her name and picture in an advertisement. This was announced yesterday by J. Lyman Bingham, assistant to Avery Brundage, president of the A. A. U.

"If the Dallas committee clears her of the charge we can reinstate her immediately," Bingham said.

LEAVES FOR DALLAS.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Lawrence Di Benedetta, A. A. U. official, will leave here tonight for Dallas, Tex., where he will investigate the case of Mildred Babe Didrikson, star in the women's events of the Olympic games, who was suspended by the Amateur Athletic union last Monday.

Miss Didrikson was alleged to have indorsed an automobile. She denied the charges and invited A. A. U. officials to investigate.

TACKLES BROWN AND SMITH HEAD COAST DEFENSE

But Can They Stop Melinkovich?

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 7.—On the theory that 100,000 Americans can't be wrong, Los Angeles is looking forward to Saturday's game between Notre Dame and Southern California as the superlative in 1932 football.

Though Notre Dame has been beaten and hardly will be in line for the national championship even should it defeat the all-conquering Trojans, the battle between the two great intersectional rivals will draw a capacity crowd to Olympic stadium. It takes an event of unusual appeal to attract 100,000 at $4.40 a seat in this red ink era.

Anything Can Happen.

Since the inauguration of the series the Notre Dame game has been Los Angeles' one big football orgy. Even the home state rivalries with Stanford and California have failed to dim its importance. There generally is a touch of the spectacular and bizarre to these meetings between Southern California and Notre Dame which finds eager receptivity among the natives of the Pacific coast. It is one of those games in which you are advised to toss aside the dope sheet.

You don't have to go any farther back than the last two years to prove that anything can happen. Consider the 1930 game. Weakened by the loss of Savoldi and Mullins, regular full backs, and physically frayed from terrific battles with Northwestern and the Army, Notre Dame was given no chance to turn back Southern California's coast champions. The score—27 to 0 for Notre Dame—was a fitting climax to the coaching career of the late Knute Rockne.

Last Year's Game Greatest.

Nobody has forgotten last year's 16 to 14 victory for the Trojans at South Bend. Coast writers refer to that game as the greatest of all time.

"I hope we have another just like it Saturday," said Coach Howard Jones this afternoon. "That kind of game is good for football. Incidentally they are good for Southern California; much better than the 1930 Notre Dame score.

"Candidly, I look for another close contest," Jones stated. "Aubrey Devine, who scouted the South Bend boys in their last few games, says they are as good as last year with the exception of left half back, where they miss Schwartz, of course. You don't find fellows like Schwartz very often. He had a way of carrying on when he didn't seem to have a chance.

Both Lines Strong.

"Notre Dame is much stronger at full back this year," Jones went on. "Melinkovich is a dangerous ball carrier. So is Banas. Along the line it is practically the same combination we faced last year."

"What about Southern California's line," we inquired. "Isn't it made up of the best material you have had in years?"

"Yes, we have no excuse for not having a great line," the Trojan boss explained. "Our tackles, Brown and Smith, are about as good as you will find anywhere. Rosenberg is a strong guard and our ends, Sparling and Palmer, ought to hold their own. We miss Williamson at center and Baker at the other guard."

Defense for Everything.

Asked what he was stressing on defense this week Jones replied:

"You have to stress everything when you are getting ready for Notre Dame. If you place special emphasis on forward pass defense they'll murder you with running plays. If you prepare particularly for their running attack they'll swamp you with passes. Too many teams have made the mistake of trying to devise ways of stopping this or that before meeting Notre Dame. We will be set as far as possible for anything they have to offer."

The only weakness, if it can be called that, on the Trojan team is at full back, where Gus Shaver performed so effectively last season. Jones tried to make a full back out of Dick Barber, the broad jump star, but he lacked the driving power required for that position. He has been alternating Clark and Getz in recent games. Clark also plays left half back.

It Is Homecoming Week.

This is homecoming week at Southern California. Huge banners and placards welcoming the alumni and the Notre Dame team decorate the campus. There is no external manifestation of the bitter rivalry that will develop on the floor of Olympic stadium Saturday afternoon.

As Coach Jones put it today, "I wish somebody would make us mad. At least until after the game!"

Notre Dame Drills Before 5,000 Fans

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—"The way the boys are now we'll be doing well if we hold 'em to three touchdowns, but if some of these kids lose the flu bugs in this Arizona sun and I can get them out long enough to show 'em how that Trojan stuff looks, we'll give 'em a ball game."

This statement, which has a quaintly familiar sound, was broadcast by Hunk Anderson, Notre Dame's football coach, after watching his squad in its only public workout this morning.

According to Anderson all the players who were out in suits—and that means everybody but Ray Brancheau—don't feel as well as they look. Melinkovich, Sheeketski and several others are almost well, however. Murphy, quarter back, is improving but Brancheau, who was taken from the train to the hotel in an ambulance is in a serious condition and Anderson says there is very little chance that he will play.

Fans Pay at Drill.

The only public workout in which the team will engage took place this morning in the University of Arizona stadium and, for the benefit of several orphanages, 5,000 spectators paid 25c admission. A new all time record of some kind was set when Jess Harper, Notre Dame director of athletics, had to pay to see his team practice. Newspaper reporters also paid to cover the drill.

The teams lined up for dummy scrimmage with Brancheau the only regular missing from his position. His place at right half back was taken by Tobin, a rugged red head speed merchant. Laurie Vejar, Hollywood youngster, alternated at quarter back with Murphy.

Anderson used the workout merely as a muscle stretcher. The third stringers were sent to one corner under Marchy Schwartz, last year's half back, and Ike Voedisch to rehearse the intricate merry-go-round huddle and shift used by the Trojans.

Krause Passes Some.

The players showed considerable enthusiasm in the workout. Jackwhich got away long punts consistently. All the backs got more work than the linemen. Ed Krause, varsity tackle, attracted much attention with his long forward passing. None of the players was limping or otherwise showed any signs of wear and tear from the Army game.

Effects of the heat, coupled with the long train ride, were noticeable upon the players. The final two practice sessions will be held tomorrow. Like this afternoon's drill, they are to be secret.

WEST VIRGINIA TO PLAY BADGER ELEVEN IN 1933

Morgantown, W. Va., Dec. 7.—(AP)—West Virginia university will play an Armistice day football game with the University of Wisconsin at Madison in 1933, Director of Athletics H. A. Stansbury announced tonight. The contest will be the first Mountaineer meeting with a Big Ten opponent in ten years.

Washington and Lee, Duquesne, Pitt, Fordham, Temple, and Wisconsin have been placed on the West Virginia schedule, Stansbury said, and other contests are pending.

GILBERT RIDES 3 WINNERS AT NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, La., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Johnny Gilbert scored a triple at Jefferson Park here today and now is five ahead of Hank Mills, who had ridden the most winners of any jockey in the country up to the beginning of this meeting. The score now is 187 for Gilbert and 182 for Mills. Each had five mounts today.

Gilbert got home first with Buck Hero, Camp Boss, and Ricciardo, but had no mount in the scheduled feature, which fell to the 3 to 5 shot, Col. Hatfield, bearing the colors of M. B. Cohen. Jockey C. Meyer was the rider of this winner and had a half length to spare at the end of the six furlongs.

Paul T. Takes Place.

Paul T., one of two racers coupled as the O'Connell & Rector entry, gained the place, eight lengths before Aurebon. The order of finish after that was Modesto, Doris B., stablemate to Paul T.; Eisenbereg, and Odd Star. Col. Hatfield carried top weight of 118 pounds and finished in 1:15 over a sloppy track.

There was a delay at the start when Modesto unseated Jockey F. C. Smith several times and Eisenberg could not be lined up. The break was not bad when it came, with Odd Star taking the lead. Aurebon was quick to offer contention, while Col. Hatfield was rated third. The favorite seemed partial to the footing and was going along easily while the two in front were setting a good pace. Odd Star was the first to crack and dropped back swiftly. Aurebon held on better, but was no match for Col. Hatfield, which came down the middle of the track in the firmer footing to win in a drive but going away. Paul T. came from last place to end with a rush.

Mills and Gilbert clashed in three races, the first encounter being in the curtain raiser when Gilbert won with Buck Hero at $11.80 for $2.

Gilbert Takes Lead.

In the second and third races Gilbert and Mills had mounts, but the best either could do was a third place, which Mills gained in the second event. In the fourth and fifth races Mills had mounts while Gilbert had none. However, he could not pick up on his rival and managed only a third place in the fifth race. That ended Mills' riding for the day.

Gilbert had mounts in the sixth and seventh races and won with both. Camp Boss was a well played second choice and won by two lengths over Altmark, the favorite.

In the nightcap Ricciardo, at $15.60 for $2, was Gilbert's horse. This thoroughbred also won by two lengths. Meknachee landed the place and Duelist was third.

GREENLEAF WINS SECOND MATCH IN BILLIARD MEET

New York, Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Ralph Greenleaf, world's champion pocket billiard player, scored his second victory in the title tournament tonight when he defeated Walter Franklin of Kansas City, 125 to 53, in nine innings.

He completed his triumph with an unfinished run of 28 after having set a new high run record for the current competition of 67 in the second inning.

Erwin Rudolph of Cleveland gave Young James Mills, San Jose, Cal., his second setback of the tourney, 125 to 75, in eight innings, with a high run of 53. Andrew Ponzi of Philadelphia followed with an even more brilliant victory over Frank Taberski, six time champion, winning, 125 to 40, in only four innings. He also tied Rudolph's high run.

It marked the second defeat for Taberski also. He was previously beaten by Pasquale Natalie, while Mills was Greenleaf's victim on the opening night.

MARYLAND RACE SEASON WILL OPEN APRIL 15

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Maryland's 1933 horse racing season will open on April 15 at Havre de Grace and close at Bowie on Nov. 30.

Twenty-five days were alloted to each of the four large tracks in the schedule arranged today by track officials. The dates must have the approval of the Maryland racing commission.

The 39 day spring meets were arranged at Havre de Grace from April 15 to 29; Pimlico from May 1 to 17. Bowie from May 18 to 30. In the fall the meets will be held at Havre de Grace from Sept. 18 to 30; Laurel from Oct. 3 to 31; Pimlico, from Nov. 1 to 11, and Bowie, from Nov. 15 to 30.

Each track will have two of its racing days set aside as "welfare days," from which the proceeds will be given to charity.

KAMPFER SUBS FOR COLEMAN ON MAT CARD

Hans Kampfer has been substituted for Able Coleman on Doc Krone's wrestling card next Monday night at the Rainbo fronton, Clark street at Lawrence avenue. He will meet John Katan in the semi-windup of a show which features Jim Clinkstock, Indian master of the scissors, and Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame football player.

Kampfer recently went an hour and 20 minutes with Jim McMillen. Katan wrestled Savoldi here two weeks ago in a bout marred by rough tactics.

Gary Wins, 54 to 27, from American College

Waterfowl Season Closes in State Dec. 15

BY BOB BECKER.

There will be just one more week of goose hunting in the wheat fields and on the sand bars near Cairo, Ill., where this season sportsmen are finding one of the largest concentrations of Canadian geese seen in that territory in several years. According to the 1932 federal regulations it will be illegal to shoot any waterfowl in Illinois after next Thursday night, Dec. 15. The law reads:

"The open season in Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Ohio, West Virginia, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arizona, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, and New York is . . . Oct. 15 to Dec. 15." Southern states which did not start their waterfowl season until Nov. 16 may continue to hunt waterfowl until Jan. 15, thus getting two months as do the northern states.

Here are the southern states which opened late and will have duck and goose hunting until Jan. 15: Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, and Maryland.

Plenty of Birds Near Cairo.

Sportsmen who desire to try their luck against the wild geese in the Cairo-Miller City country in the southern part of the state will find plenty of birds down there during this last week of the season. Moonlight nights now on the schedule of the December calendar, however, may interfere somewhat with the hunting. The same holds true for duck hunting. This does not mean that it is impossible to get a good bag of birds on days following moonlight nights. There usually are some waterfowl moving.

It is a known fact that when the weather is extremely pleasant and the nights bright and clear the birds will feed at night and not move around much during the day. A spell of stormy weather may come at any time, however, to provide a string of ideal shooting days. In the wild goose hunting game it is almost impossible to figure anything by rule since the birds seem to take pleasure in upsetting all calculations. When you figure they should fly the birds sit tight. During hours when you least expect a visit from honkers a small flock may drop in for a visit and catch you flat footed.

Use a 12 Gauge Gun.

Sportsmen who are going after wild geese should use 12 gauge guns for these big birds. It requires plenty of shot pellets to down a husky honker. On our recent trip to the goose country we used a 12 gauge gun shooting shells with 3½ drams of powder and 1⅛ ounces of No. 2 shot. In these shells we counted 96 shot pellets. There are 245 to 272 No. 6 shot pellets in an average shell used for duck hunting. Although this 12 gauge goose shell make a good pattern on geese, imagine our surprise when we cut open an extra long range 10 gauge shell using 4 drams of powder and found 197 no. 2 shot in it. The gun which took these shells was a 10 pound 14 ounce double barrel weapon, a regular cannon that reached sky high for birds.

BAER PROMISES TO BATTLE MAX, SAYS DEMPSEY

New York, Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Jack Dempsey, touring with a vaudeville act, said today he had the consent of Max Baer, California heavyweight, to meet Max Schmeling, former world's champion, at Soldiers' field, Chicago, or one of the baseball parks in New York.

"I may have to run out to San Francisco to straighten out Baer's managerial difficulties, but I have his consent all right, along with assurances that Schmeling will fight for me," he said. "I anticipate no trouble leasing one of the New York ball parks, but Soldiers' field, Chicago, may be the place during the World's Fair.

SHAMROCKS TO PLAY SOUTH BEND TEAM SATURDAY

The Shamrock professional football team will play the South Bend Hoosiers Saturday night at the 124th Field artillery armory, 5200 Cottage Grove avenue. After winning five straight on the south side's indoor gridiron, the Shamrocks were held to a scoreless tie by Cicero last week. Bernie Witucki, a former Notre Dame player, coaches the visitors and has assembled a squad that averages 190 pounds.

PLAN BOWLING TOURNEY.

De Paul Meets Elmhurst in Basket Opener

The game will give Coach Jim Kelly his first opportunity to study the reaction of his squad to the new rules. Workouts of the team have convinced him that the revised code has done much to speed up actual play.

Coach Kelly has not definitely decided on a regular lineup yet, but it is probable that the starters against Elmhurst will include Jim Gorsky and Phil Krause at the forwards, El Weston at center, and Capt. Tony Lauritis and Jim Doody, guards.

Another quintet which will see its share of action will include Bob Sand and Martie Linsky at forwards, Pete Barskis at center, Bill Shay and either Harry Redfield or Whitey Patzold, guards.

Army Denies Notre Dame Break Again

New York, Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Maj. Philip Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at West Point, today again denied emphatically recurring reports that Army and Notre Dame had broken off athletic relations and would not play their annual football game next year and in 1934.

"There is absolutely no truth to the report," Maj. Fleming said.

When asked if any negotiations had been made to arrange a game in 1934 he said:

"Yes, the game has been arranged and will be played before the Navy contest late in November."

"Has Notre Dame made any move to break athletic relations with Army?" he was asked.

"None that I know of. We have received no intimation that Notre Dame contemplates severing relations."

The reports of a pending break between the two football rivals followed the Army-Notre Dame game here Nov. 26 when it was rumored West Point authorities resented certain "rough" tactics on the part of the Irish. During the game several Army players were injured, but they recovered in time for the Army to throw its full strength against Navy a week later.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 7.—Play was not unsportsmanlike, nor was it unnecessarily rough in the Notre Dame-Army football game, James Masker, referee of the game, said today.

Masker recalled only two penalties for unnecessary roughness, both on Notre Dame.

"Army undoubtedly took a lot of punishment," he explained. "Notre Dame's blocking and the running of Melinkovich were some of the hardest I've seen. You can expect to have one or two penalties of this kind in any game. Two aren't unusual by any means."

Everett, Roper Matched for Bout Dec. 16

Buck Everett, Gary, Ind., heavyweight, and Jack Roper of Chicago signed yesterday to meet in the 10 round windup of the boxing show at the Rainbo Fronton Dec. 16. There is much interest in the contest, as both men have been winning consistently in recent months. Everett whipped Dick Daniels and Roper beat Seal Harris in recent starts.

Forty-two entries have been received for the novice amateur boxing tournament tonight at the Belle Plaine Athletic club, 3943 Lincoln avenue. In the event two-thirds of the boys report to weigh in and for physical examination there will be at least 14 bouts. Ardmore, Lions, Marigold, and West Side athletic clubs have entered teams. The matches will be supervised by the Central A. A. U.

The Arcade gymnasium, 323 West Madison street, will be moved to 116 Madison, Kid [Howard] Carr, proprietor, announced last night. The Arcade has been at its present site for several years. It is the third time Kid Howard will have moved in 25 years as a gymnasium proprietor.

An amateur show for charity will be presented at the Community Recreation center, 4711 West Madison street, tomorrow night. Jim Fontana and Elnar Hedquist will meet in the windup. Seven other matches will complete the card.

Five contests at four rounds each will support the Primo Carnera exhibition at La Salle, Ill., next Wednesday. Young Geno and Sammy Morales are to meet. Laddie Tonelli, amateur lightweight star, will make his first professional start in another contest. He will face Jerry Kucera of Chicago. Other bouts will bring together Buddy Kernes and Johnny Reba, and Vince Perina and Billy Knowles.

ARMOUR FIVE BEATS MAROONS IN TEST, 27-23

Members of the University of Chicago basketball team were tested last night for the scheduled opening game with Lake Forest Saturday at the Maroon fieldhouse. Coach Nels Norgren sent the squad against Armour Tech's quintet, which was held by the first team, but which broke loose against the Maroon reserves to score a 27 to 23 victory.

Pflum, regular Armour Tech guard, led the attack, scoring five baskets and one free throw. Pflum sank three of his goals in the last half. Keith Parsons, veteran Maroon center, remained in the game long enough to score two baskets and one free throw. The lineup:

17 Game Schedule Is Drawn Up for Loyola Quintet

Loyola university athletic officials yesterday announced a 17 game schedule for the 1932-'33 basketball team. Two games are still under consideration. Loyola opens its 10th season under the direction of Coach Leonard A. Sachs next Wednesday night at Loyola gym with the Davis and Elkins team of Elkins, W. Va.

Two games with international opponents, two with intersectional foes and 13 with representative teams from eight states appear on this year's schedule. The University of Western Ontario, champion of Canada, comes to Loyola Dec. 17, while the FAL team, amateur champion of Mexico, plays here Jan. 25.

Intersectional games will be played with Davis and Elkins and Centenary college of Shreveport, La. Other games at home include Franklin college, Michigan State Normal of Ypsilanti, Mich., and Western State Teachers of Kalamazoo, Mich. Michigan Normal and Western State were the only two teams to defeat Loyola last year.

Loyola will meet the University of Wisconsin, its first Big Ten foe since Purdue snapped its winning streak of 24 consecutive victories in 1930, at Madison on Feb. 3. The schedule:

Dec. 14, Davis and Elkins college here; Dec. 17, University of Western Ontario here; Dec. 21, St. Ambrose college here; Jan. 2, Centenary college here; Jan. 6, College of the City of Detroit, at Detroit; Jan. 7, St. John's university at Toledo, O.; Jan. 9, Michigan State Normal at Ypsilanti; Jan. 14, Western State Teachers here; Jan. 21, Western State Teachers at Kalamazoo; Jan. 25, FAL of Mexico City here; Jan. 28, Franklin college here; Feb. 3, University of Wisconsin at Madison; Feb. 10, Illinois Wesleyan at Bloomington; Feb. 11, St. Ambrose college at Davenport; Feb. 18, College of the City of Detroit, here; Feb. 25, Monmouth college here; March 4, Illinois Wesleyan here.

NORTH CENTRAL AND ARMOUR MEET SATURDAY

North Central beat Armour, 27 to 18, last year, but only one regular, Capt. Rudy Massier, is available from that squad. He will be out of the first few games because of injuries, and Coach Bieber will have to use a completely new lineup, composed largely of last year's reserves. Shoop, Block, Shiffler, Berry, and Dillon are likely starters. Drendel, Yuknis, Young, and Spiegler are freshmen who may see service.

On Dec. 12 North Central will hold its annual football banquet at which Dr. Phillip Kreuscher, '05, and now consulting physician to the White Sox, will speak. The North Central basket ball schedule:

Dec. 10—Armour Tech at Naperville.
Dec. 31—North Dakota State at Naperville.
Jan. 6—Armour Tech at Chicago.
Jan. 13—Elmhurst College at Naperville.
Jan. 14—Lake Forest at Lake Forest.
Jan. 21—Wheaton College at Wheaton.
Jan. 30—De Paul University at Naperville.
Feb. 4—James Millikin at Naperville.
Feb. 10—James Millikin at Decatur.
Feb. 11—De Kalb Teachers at Naperville.
Feb. 17—Elmhurst College at Elmhurst.
Feb. 18—Wheaton College at Naperville.
Feb. 24—Lake Forest at Naperville.

St. Patrick, 15; De La Salle, 13.
Crane Tech, 21; St. Mel, 18.

High school basketball teams in the Chicago district continued preparations yesterday for league races which will start next week. Several games are slated for today, while the heaviest schedule thus far this season will be played tomorrow and Saturday.

Austin and Lane Tech served notice yesterday they will be heard from in the Chicago Public High School league lightweight campaign by remaining undefeated in three games. Austin, led by Thompson, right forward, defeated Schurz, 14 to 13, while Lane Tech triumphed over Tuley, 27 to 16.

Hyde Park Wins Third Game.

Bowen and Hyde Park were victors in another pair of lightweight contests. Hyde Park scored its third triumph in four games by defeating De Paul, 23 to 19, and Bowen handed the champion Phillips squad a 21 to 15 setback. It was Phillips' second defeat.

Davidson and Button led the Hyde Park attack against De Paul, the former scoring three baskets and Button collecting two goals and one free throw. Kerns and Arundel starred for De Paul, each scoring two baskets.

Tilden Heavies Win, 23 to 15.

Calumet's heavyweights suffered their third defeat, losing to Tilden Tech, 23 to 15. Leading Tilden to its second victory were Avelis and Hurley. Avelis contributed two baskets.

Fenger, making its first appearance, defeated the Phillips heavyweights, 33 to 31. In another heavyweight game Austin achieved its first victory by triumphing over Schurz, 21 to 14.

St. Patrick scored a double victory over the De La Salle quintets, the heavyweights winning, 27 to 24, while the lightweights triumphed, 15 to 13. St. Mel's squads lost to Crane Tech, the lights, 21 to 18, and the heavies, 24 to 20. Lineups:

LENZEN SHOOTS 825 AS DE BARRYS WIN TWO GAMES

Jake Lenzen, member of the De Barry Insurance bowling team, last night scored the highest total for a three game series for this season when he shot 825 in the De Barry-Green Rivers classic bowling league match at the Harry Kaad alleys. The De Barrys won two games. Lenzen had games of 267, 279, and 279. The scores:

Pla-Mors Defeat Flyers, 2 to 1, to Take League Head

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 7.—(AP)—The Kansas City Pla-Mors went into the lead in the American Hockey league tonight by defeating the St. Louis Flyers in a thrilling overtime contest 2 to 1. The Pla-Mors tied the score with one minute to go to make overtime play necessary.

A. A. Adopts Playoff Series for Pennant

Columbus, O., Dec. 7.—(AP)—A day filled with activity—in fact, so full that the main meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues lasted only 20 minutes—marked the gathering of minor league magnates, managers, and players today.

The day saw a revolutionary move on the part of the American association in ratifying a plan for a playoff series to decide the pennant; Tulsa and Oklahoma City move from the Western to the Texas league by consent of both groups; Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner, rules against Sam Colacurcio, owner of the Jersey City club, in his scrap with the Brooklyn club, and three class A leagues—Texas, Western, and Southern association—adopt a $4,250 salary limit for each club.

International Favors Plan.

Announcement of the plan left other minor league officials nonplussed, but club owners of the International league soon recovered their poise and met to consider a similar move. They announced they would vote on adoption of the plan tomorrow afternoon. It was indicated they would favor the move.

The new plan calls for a geographical division of the league into eastern and western groups and, at the end of the season, for leaders in each division to meet in a seven game series to decide the pennant. The plan makes it possible for a team finishing fifth in the general averages to win the pennant in the championship series.

Under the plan the association season will end on Sept. 10. The winner of the seven game series which will follow will meet the International league champion in the annual little world series.

Five Clubs Would Get Share.

American association officials also adopted a plan similar to the bonus. In the past only the pennant winner has shared in the little series gate receipts. Under the new plan five clubs would come in for a cut of an accumulated pool.

Next season five cents will be taken by the league from each admission, as against three cents in previous years. The extra two cents will go to the players' pool, from which each player on the pennant winning team will received $800 if the series is lost and $1,000 if it is won. The players on the second place club will be guaranteed $600; third place, $400; fourth place, $200, and fifth place players, $100 each.

Should the total receipts in the pool, plus the receipts from the little world series, fall short in a bad season, the difference would be made up by club owners. A fund of $40,000 would be needed to finance the player bonus plan.

Charles Nash Re-elected Daily Fee Golf Head

Charles Nash of Vernon was reelected president of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association at its annual meeting yesterday at the Bismarck hotel. Thirty-eight daily fee courses were represented at the meeting, the features of which were the division of member courses into classes A and B and the stabilization of fees. Other officers for the 1933 season include Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley, vice president; Bill Langford, Mid-City, secretary, and James Loye, Golfmoor, treasurer.

Spencer Coals Win from Lincoln Turner Girls, 32-5

The Spencer Coals girls' basketball team last night scored its tenth consecutive victory by defeating the Lincoln Turner girls, 32 to 5, at the Irving Park Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. Lillian Rozhan and Cassie Martin starred for the Spencers, the former scoring 11 points, while Miss Martin contributed 9. The Spencers will play Chicago Heights tonight on the latter's court.

Haberski Defeats Spata in Charity Boxing Show

Fordham to Offer Hanley Coaching Job

of Southern California, has signed a new five year contract, President Rufus Von Kleinsmid announced today. Jones' present contract has another year to run.

Under Jones' direction Southern California has won 72 games, lost ten and tied two for an average of .878 in eight seasons. Jones' teams have won or tied for the Pacific coast conference championship five times in the last six years, and twice were acclaimed national champions.

Jones' salary under the new contract was not announced but was described by Jones as being "very satisfactory." His present contract calls for $12,500 a year.

NEVERS IS SILENT

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Ernie Nevers, back field coach at Stanford university, declined to make a statement when told of reports that he was mentioned as Glenn [Pop] Warner's successor as head football coach at Stanford. Nevers arrived here today to play with the Memphis Tigers, who will meet the Chicago Cardinals in a professional football game Sunday.

"It is just as much news to me as anybody else," Nevers commented on Warner's resignation. "I was in hopes that Pop would remain with Stanford for a few more years at least."

PHELAN MAKES DENIAL

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Jimmy Phelan, former Notre Dame football player, whose contract as University of Washington football coach expires next summer, denied reports that he is being considered as A. A. Stagg's successor at the University of Chicago.

"Possibly some of my friends back in Chicago have linked my name with those in consideration for the coaching job, but I have heard nothing official," he said.

Phelan will leave here within the next few days to attend the National Football association meeting in New York and plans to stop in Chicago to visit friends.

TWO NEW CANDIDATES

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 7.—(AP)—The names of Tad Jones and Hack Applequist were added today to the growing list of possible candidates for the football coaching berth at Stanford to succeed Glenn S. [Pop] Warner, who resigned to coach at Temple university.

Meanwhile on the Stanford campus a boom to install C. E. [Tiny] Thornhill and Ernie Nevers as head coaches, the former on the line and the latter as backfield coach, continued. Thornhill and Nevers were assistant coaches.

Packers Have Edge on Bears in Statistics

Comparative scores are misleading and statistics cannot be relied upon to definitely establish superiority in football, but mathematical facts regarding the Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers, who meet at Wrigley field Sunday afternoon in a National league game, revealed the Packers have been more successful on both offense and defense.

The Packers have played 13 games and scored 154 points to opponents' 54, while the Bears, in 12 games, have scored 142 points to 44 by opponents.

Packers Gain Well.

Green Bay has gained 2,610 yards while the Bears have rolled up 2,543, but opponents have collected only 1,894 yards against Green Bay while the Bears yielded a much bigger total of 2,410 yards. In the two games between the two teams, the Bears had the edge in the early season scoreless tie at Green Bay and the Packers had an advantage in their 2 to 0 victory at Wrigley field.

Two weeks ago the Bears battled Portsmouth to a 7 to 7 tie and had the best of the going. Last Sunday the Packers took a 19 to 0 trimming from the same Spartan team. Earlier in the season the Packers beat the Spartans, 15 to 10, while the Bears and Portsmouth battled to a 13 to 13 tie here.

The Packers defeated the New York Giants, 13 to 0, in their first meeting, while the Bears ran over the easterners, 28 to 8. In the second contest the Giants whipped the Wisconsin team, 6 to 0. The Bears were victorious, 6 to 0, in their second meeting with the New York eleven.

Bears Second in Passing.

The Bears are second to the Giants in effective passing play, having completed 60 out of 149 forward passes. The Packers are third in this respect with 44 completed passes out of 155 attempts, a much less effective record than that of the Bears, yet the Green Bay team has utilized its passes to a greater degree as a scoring weapon.

The season's records for the Bears and Packers follows:

Marquette Five, Tall and Tough, Is Next N. U. Foe

Northwestern's basketball team will receive its second test of the season Saturday night against the Marquette quintet at Patten gymnasium. The Hilltoppers opened their season Tuesday with a 45 to 19 victory over Whitewater Teachers.

The Wildcats will not have the height advantage over Marquette that they enjoyed against Bradley Monday night when they scored an easy 44 to 19 win. The Marquette players average well over 6 feet in height, which will place them about on a par with Northwestern.

Four of the players in Marquette's starting lineup are veterans. Heading the list is Eugene Ronzani, guard and co-captain. He was also captain and full back of the football team. Ronzani is 6 feet tall and weighs 200 pounds. Francis Zummach, the other guard, shares the captaincy.

The only sophomore in the starting lineup is Ray Morstadt of Waukegan, who led his teammates in scoring against Whitewater. He accounted for 8 field goals and 3 free throws. William Mangan, sophomore center, who may get the call to start against the Wildcats, is one of the tallest players in college basketball, being 6 feet 6 inches tall. He prepped at Lane Tech in Chicago.

Coach Dutch Lonborg derived but little information on his squad in the Bradley encounter. Twelve were used and all seemed to turn in creditable performances. Capt. Joe Reiff, forward, and Elmer Johnson, center, the two regulars from last year, showed that they are ready. Don Brewer and Chet Perry were the other leading forward candidates, while Culver, Moonshower, Kawal, and Kunkel were leading performers among the guards.

Iowa State and Iowa to Play Nov. 4

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Football teams of the University of Iowa and Iowa State college, rivals in bygone days, will meet again after a lapse of 13 years, Dr. E. H. Lauer, Hawkeye athletic director, announced today.

Lauer said a game had been tentatively scheduled for Iowa City Nov. 4 next year as a part of a two year home and home agreement. Lauer and Thomas W. Metcalfe, Iowa State director, began negotiations at the Western conference meeting in Chicago last week. The game was given final approval by the Iowa State athletic board today.

Resumption of football relations between the two schools has been agitated as a partial solution to the financial problem confronting both institutions. It is expected the game will draw a larger gate than any Big Ten contest.

After 1915 rivalry between the schools became so bitter that the heads of the institutions canceled all relations in 1930 "because of ill feeling in the student bodies and throughout the state." Iowa won the final game, 14 to 10.

Two Maroons Tie in Hockey Scoring Race

MONTREAL, Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Montreal Maroon forwards continue to dominate the point making in the National Hockey league, coincident with the team's three victories in the last week.

Figures issued today from the offices of President Frank Calder and including the week-end matches showed Lawrence Northcott, left winger of the Maroons, and Paul Haynes, center, deadlocked for total points leadership. Each has 12 points, Northcott with nine goals and three assists, Haynes with four goals and eight assists. Northcott's nine goal total gives him a lead over all other snipers in the league in point of actual scoring.

Brydson, Weiland Tie.

Glenn Brydson, another of the club's recent developments, and Ralph [Cooney] Weiland, Ottawa center, are tied for third position with ten points. The Maroon dominance among the goal getters is further emphasized by the fact that Lionel Conacher and Dave Trottier are close behind with nine and eight points, respectively. Thus of the first six in the division, five are Maroons.

Boston Bruins' forwards are in front in the American section, Martin Barry and Harry Oliver being on even terms for the lead with nine points. Of the first nine in the division, all but one are either from Boston or the Rangers.

Shore Leads Graham.

BLACKHAWKS MEET DETROIT SEXTET TONIGHT

Wiseman, Buswell Among Invaders.

The Blackhawks will battle the Detroit Red Wings at the Stadium tonight. The first meeting of the two teams is significant in more than one way. First, the Red Wings are controlled by James Norris, Chicago sportsman, and also of interest to Chicago hockey fans will be the first appearance in other than a Shamrock uniform of Eddie [Pee Wee] Wiseman and Walter Buswell of last season's Chicago Shamrocks. Wiseman led the American league in scoring last season.

Manager Jack Adams, because of the almost wholesale withdrawals occasioned by the return of Ottawa to the National Hockey league, was under the necessity before the start of the season of gathering almost half a hockey team. Ottawa recalled four of last season's team—Connell, Kilrea, Cox, and Smith, and during the training season Adams was confronted with the task of molding a team around eight of last season's Red Wings—Aurie, Goodfellow, Lewis, Young, Sorrell, Carson, Cooper, and Noble.

Keep Three American Leaguers.

Some twenty-nine players were in the squad Adams had to pick from at the Red Wings' training camp. Over half were from the American league and most of them former Chicago Shamrocks who became the Red Wings' property because of James Norris' newly acquired interest in the Detroit team. After the weeding out process was over, only three of the American league recruits made the big league. Aside from Wiseman and Buswell, Gus Marker of last season's Tulsa Oilers was retained.

Roach Takes Goal Job.

The big void in front of the nets caused by Ice Man Connell's return to Ottawa was amply taken care of with the purchase of the highly experienced John Ross Roach from the Rangers, and the defense part of the Red Wings was rounded out to the satisfaction of Manager Adams when Reg Noble, who was the league's most persistent holdout, signed on the dotted line ten days ago. Noble's defense mates are Doug Young, Walter Buswell, and Stewart Evans, who with Goldsworthy is a graduate of the Detroit Olympics. It is Evans' first season in the big league.

The teams have met once before this season, the game going to the Red Wings by a 3 to 1 score at Detroit.

Coach Iverson found a battered crew at the Stadium yesterday and the results of the two games with the Rangers and the Senators were painfully evident. Paul Thompson nursed a sore left foot, which may hamper him somewhat if the going gets rough in tonight's game. Roger Jenkins will carry a heavily bandaged forehead, and both Ripley and Gardiner have black eyes. Nearly all of the rest of the team are carrying minor cuts and bruises. Johnny Gottselig, still at the hospital, is progressing favorably and may see service in Sunday night's game against the Montreal Maroons.

Gardiner	Goal	Roach
Abel	Defense	Young
Keating, Americans	Defense	Noble
Cook	Center	Goodfellow
Jenkins	Right wing	Wiseman

New York, N. Y.—Bubbling over with the infectious cheer that has made her Radio's First Lady, Ruth Etting confessed today that she was "madly in love with the new Dodge Six," of which she was given a special pre-showing.

"It's perfectly stunning. But it is so hard to describe. It's so different, so youthful, so sporty. When you see it all you can do is stand and stare. It has the brand of good looks that just hold you speechless," said the famed singer of popular ballads through the Columbia Broadcasting System's network.

"Folks will go wild over this car when they see it. It's the answer to a motorist's prayer: a car that has a gorgeous appearance, but underneath it has a sturdy performance so dependable that you can bank on it."

Automobile circles were a-buzz today with reports that the Dodge organization has sprung a big surprise on the industry and the public by creating a new Dodge Six whose quality and low price will mark it as the outstanding value for the coming year.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 7.—Bond prices scored the largest average gain in almost a month in a spirited rally today. Railroad issues shares the spotlight with the foreign list in the improvement.

The rise was attributed to a large extent to yesterday's stock market improvement and its moderate extension today, and to a rally today in sterling.

Gains ranged from one to three points in such rail bonds as B. & O. 4½s, due 1933 and 1950; Burlington 5s, Erie refunding and improvement 5s; New York Central 4½s; Texas and Pacific 5s, and others.

Coincides With Sterling Gain.

The improvement in foreign bonds coincided with a rally in sterling. It is reported that there is active speculation in foreign issues, much of it arising in this market. In addition, there is good investment buying from abroad in such issues as the French government bonds.

Foreign bonds to show improvement included British government 5½s, Germans, Australians, Argentines and virtually all other groups.

United States government securities showed general improvement, reflecting the favorable terms of the new December offerings. The maturing 3¼ per cent notes were quoted at a premium of around 8-32 of a point, compared with a high of 21-32.

Canadian Rail Bonds Up.

Bonds of the Canadian railway systems rallied up to 3 points chiefly reflecting the improvement in sterling exchange.

Other domestic securities to gain included Armour & Co. 5½s, American and Foreign Power 5s, B.-M.-T. 6s, Paramount Publix 5½s, Portland General Electric 4½s and others.

Bonds of International Telephone rallied upon today's report that Spain has dropped the plan to seize the company's telephone properties in that country.

Electric Auto-Lite.

Will you kindly give me information regarding Electric Auto-Lite as an investment?—E. D.

Electric Auto-Lite company is the largest independent manufacturer of starting, lighting, and ignition equipment for automobiles. It also manufactures lamps, tie rods, and other equipment used in automobiles. Some diversification is achieved through the manufacture of electric clocks, flash lights, etc.

The bulk of its business is sales of products to manufacturers as original equipment. Principal customers are Ford, Hudson, Nash, Willys-Overland, Auburn, and Studebaker. The life of a storage battery is about two or three years. Replacement sales in this field have built up a backlog of stable business.

Property account increased from $4,036,000 at the end of 1927 to $11,304,000 on Dec. 31, 1931. This expansion was mostly by acquisition of going concerns.

Reflecting decreased automobile production, net income in the first nine months of 1932 was $1,459,000, or $1.39 per common share, against net of $3,741,000, or $3.94 per common share, for the corresponding 1931 period.

Net for 1931 was $3,914,000, or $4.03 per common share, against net of $5,043,000 [before $2,978,000 reserves for decrease in market value of investments], or $5.32 per common share, for 1930. Net for 1929 was $10,514,000, against $7,779,000 for 1928.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $6,669,000 and current liabilities were $1,488,000. Cash and marketable securities [at market] alone were $1,923,000. Working capital was $5,180,000, against $6,235,000 the year before.

The company has no funded debt. There are outstanding 41,927 shares of 7 per cent cumulative preferred [par $100] and 897,509 shares of no par common. The common has paid 30 cents a quarter since July 1, 1932. It had previously paid $1 a quarter.

Rigid control of expenses and replacement sales of batteries have enabled the company to report comparatively satisfactory results. Increased activity in the automobile industry should result in increased profits.

The preferred is rather high grade. The common is medium grade.

United States Steel.

Please let me know by return mail what the book value of United States Steel common was on or about Jan. 1, 1927, and what it was at the end of last year.—L. M.

On Dec. 31, 1926, book value of United States Steel corporation common stock was $285.33 per share. On Dec. 31, 1931, it was $199.08 per share on a larger number of shares.

COOLIDGE OPENS INQUIRY INTO RAILROAD ILLS

Truck Leader Tells of Competition.

New York, Dec. 7.—Diagnosis of the knotty problem of coördinating the nation's various forms of commercial transportation—rail, air, truck, bus, and inland waterways—was begun today by the national transportation committee which is seeking to formulate a remedy to satisfy the several conflicting units.

The committee, which is headed by former President Calvin Coolidge, heard the viewpoints of representatives of the Lake Carriers' association, the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, the Railroad Security Owners' association, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, and the National Aeronautic association. Delegates from other interested industries and groups will follow.

Today's hearings were the first of a three day presentation. The railroad industry, which has the largest single stake of all in the matter, judged by capital investment, has its inning tomorrow.

Truck Leaders Tell Story.

A. J. Brosseau, representing the nation's truck and automobile manufacturers, served as the spearhead for that industry which, while conceding that present restrictions on railroad operation may be too severe, stoutly insisted that relaxation of these restrictions should not be at the cost of the motor industry.

"Whatever regulation is imposed should, in the public interest, promote the sound development of highway transport and not repress or strangulate it," he insisted. He defended both the truck and the motor bus, stating that in many respects they could not be considered competitors of the railroads because they served a more varied and entirely different service.

"Would the railroads, if overnight they were given all the freight carried by the trucks, be prosperous?"

Possible Rail Gain One Per Cent.

The truck manufacturer answered by saying that the "traffic carried by the privately owned truck—35 per cent of all trucks—cannot be legislated back to the railroads. We have left the common and contract carrier—15 per cent of all trucks. Fifteen per cent of 6 per cent is less than 1 per cent of the nation's total traffic movement." He had previously stated, only 6 per cent was carried by trucks.

Brosseau said that propaganda designed to fasten heavier tax costs upon trucks had been increasing rapidly. He said he knew of some railroad men who today were devoting more time to the discussion of the matter than "they were to railroad operation."

Chairman Coolidge, with Alexander Legge, former Governor Alfred E. Smith, Hugh Johnston serving as a substitute for Bernard M. Baruch with whom he is associated, and Howell seated around him, stayed in session all day.

Predict Seaway to Hurt Rails.

Capt. J. S. Wood, president, and L. C. Sabin, vice president of the Lake Carriers' association, predicted that the St. Lawrence waterways project would disrupt the railroads further.

Henry Bruere, president of the Bowery Savings bank, said the savings banks were not concerned over the safety of their investments in the railroads—their receipts of interest on railroad bonds had been more than earned in 1931 and under present subnormal conditions, he asserted, the savings banks' investments would continue safe.

"As bondholders," he said, "we are not worried, but we came here with the hope of contributing some idea to the stabilization of the carriers."

The banker said that regulation of the railroads was necessary to protect the railroads themselves. He urged railroad consolidation as a vital necessity, stating that present barriers in the way were comprised not only "of the question of finance, but human nature."

Banks Hold Rail Bonds.

The banker said the savings banks did not buy railroad bonds—and then only first mortgage bonds—until the end of the last century. Since then, assured of close government watchfulness over the carriers, they had increased their investments from $823,000,000 in 1912 to $1,000,000,000 in 1922 and $1,700,000,000 in 1932.

Legge raised the question of railroad wages, as contrasted with wages paid in other transportation industries, while Milton W. Harrison, president of the Security Owners' association, was offering the viewpoint of investors.

"In 1931," said Harrison, "average annual wages paid by the waterways was $863. This industry was not regulated. In 1931 the average, railroad wage was $1,664. They were under close regulation."

Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticutt, whose committee included Amelia Earhart Putnam, spoke for the aviation industry, stating that it was in no essential sense a competitor of the railroads. He opposed placing this industry under interstate commerce commission supervision.

Start Up Sawmills to Supply General Motors

Trout Creek, Mich., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Sawmills here and at Ewen next week will begin day and night operation to provide lumber for the General Motors corporation, it was announced today by J. A. Weidman Jr., president of the Weidman Lumber company. Weidman estimated that work would be provided for about 1,000. All of the timber is in Ontonagon county, and Weidman said that only men living in Ontonagon county will be employed.

Rail Labor Group Rejects Coolidge Bid

The Railway Labor Executives' association, which began shaping its strategy yesterday for a wage conference next week, rejected an invitation of the national transportation committee, headed by Calvin Coolidge, to appear at the hearings now being conducted in New York. In a telegram to Bernard M. Baruch, vice chairman of the transportation committee, the railway labor leaders expressed the belief that congress should investigate the railway industry.

The Coolidge committee, it was charged by the labor executives, is representative of special interests which are railway bondholders and cannot investigate such problems as wages, unemployment, working conditions, and the standard of living of railroad workers with impartiality.

Represents Special Groups.

"Our investigation develops the fact that your committee has been appointed and is being financed by a special bondholding interest," said the telegram. "While the committee is nonpartisan in a strictly political sense, in that it includes leaders of our principal political parties, it is representative of a specific group with a direct interest in the policies to be adopted in the railway industry.

"So far as we understand the matters which your committee proposes to investigate, they are subjects which come properly within the purview of existing governmental agencies.

"Since the railway situation is far from ideal, we believe an investigation by authority of the United States congress should be made. No useful purpose would be served by our presentation to your committee of matters properly to be submitted to other and authoritative bodies."

The telegram was sent by A. F. Whitney, chairman of the association, after a conference with the 21 executives of the railway unions.

Count Union Vote Today.

Whether the 1,500 general chairmen of the unions will have authority to negotiate with the railway spokesmen on the wage question will be known today when the votes of the unions are formally counted. Mr. Whitney said there was little doubt of failure to receive authorization.

The 10 per cent reduction in the basic pay of railroad workers, accepted last Jan. 31 after a conference here, was for one year only, and the general chairmen, representing 1,750,000 railroad employés, have asked authority to confer on extending the reduced schedules, as requested by the railroads.

The labor executives will confer among themselves during the remainder of the week and by Monday the 1,500 general chairmen are expected to arrive. The conference with the railroads' committee of managers will then begin.

OUTPUT OF STEEL IN WEEK DROP TO 16% OF CAPACITY

Operations in the steel industry receded further last week to 16 per cent of capacity. The decline was accompanied by a shrinkage in the volume of new business and shipping orders which was seen as a harbinger for further curtailment in operations during the next two weeks.

Iron Age in its weekly review points out that in states such as Ohio some plants will practically cease operations late this month because of the year end tax on inventories. A possible offset to this contraction is hoped for, however, in the plan of other concerns to increase operations in order that employés may receive fatter Christmas pay envelopes.

The tin plate division continues the most active branch in the industry, with estimated requirements for next year about 15 per cent ahead of 1932 consumption.

Foreign competition in other steel products is said to be lessening. This is a result of the increase in Continental prices.

Production of Automobiles Shows Gain in November

Production of automobiles in the United States and Canada for November totaled 61,216 cars and trucks, compared with 51,857 in October and 70,114 in November, 1931, according to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Central Life of Chicago Gets $22,648 Tax Refund

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Refund of $22,648 to the Central Life Insurance company, Chicago, for overassessment of income tax and interest from 1924 to 1927 inclusive was announced by the internal revenue bureau today.

CAR LOADINGS SHOW MARKED IMPROVEMENT

Prospects for a favorable report on car loadings for the last week were improved yesterday with the issuance of statements by a number of important individual carriers, all of which reflected improvement in traffic from the previous holiday period. The Pennsylvania, the New York Central, the Missouri Pacific, the Frisco, the Wabash, the M., K. & T., and others all reported for the last week larger loadings than in the preceding seven day period.

The Pennsylvania reported that freight cars handled in the week ended Dec. 3 totaled 80,439, against 74,915 in the previous week. The New York Central reported loadings of 84,802 cars for the week, compared with 78,936 cars in the week ended Nov. 26.

Loadings reported by St. Louis Terminal for last week totaled 25,830 cars, compared with 24,086 in the preceding week. Other reports, with comparisons, included: Missouri Pacific, 19,891, against 18,721; St. Louis San Francisco, 12,477, against 11,346; Wabash, 10,943, against 10,188; Missouri, Kansas, Texas, 7,129, against 6,628.

REPORT ASSAILS INSURANCE CO. HOLDING FIRMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 7.—Condemnation of interlocking directorates and of control of life insurance companies by holding companies was made a part of the report presented today at the December session of the national convention of insurance commissioners in the Hotel Pennsylvania by a committee appointed at the October session in Dallas to map a program to end the practice.

The committee's report, presented by Garfield W. Brown of Minnesota, chairman, was only a partial one, and requested further time for study so that a more definite program of legislation or supervisory action might be worked out as a means of ending the evil.

Texas Reduces Daily Oil Flow by 59,880 Barrels

Austin, Tex., Dec. 7.—(AP)—The state railroad commission today revised allowables of Texas oil fields to cut an aggregate of 59,880 barrels daily from the permissible output, effective Saturday. The new aggregate total of Texas fields was fixed at 789,745 barrels daily, against 849,625 barrels daily under the old schedule. The east Texas field allowable was reduced from 325,000 to 310,000 barrels daily.

Middle West Utilities Unit Votes Preferred Dividend

Directors of the West Texas Utilities company have declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the $6 cumulative preferred stock of the company, payable Jan. 1, 1933, to stockholders of record at the close of business Dec. 15, 1932. The company is a unit of the Middle West Utilities system.

Rival Trains Are Pulled by One Engine

One of the means by which railroads are curtailing expenses to offset lower revenues was revealed yesterday when it was learned that two crack trains of two rival systems are being drawn by one locomotive.

This measure of economy has been inaugurated by the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific in conjunction with the Burlington. The Great Northern has the Empire Builder and the Northern Pacific the North Coast limited. Both trains run between Chicago and Seattle, using the Burlington tracks between Chicago and St. Paul.

In more prosperous days both trains left Chicago as distinct units. Now both are pulled by the same engine, although they maintain their different times of departure. It works this way:

The North Coast Limited pulls out of the Union station at 10:30 on schedule, but instead of leaving the station directly it is backed up into the front of the Empire Builder. This operation, together with coupling and testing air brakes, consumes fifteen minutes. And the Empire Builder is scheduled to depart at 10:45 p. m. So both trains leave the station at the same time.

At St. Paul there is a Y operation into the station. The Empire Builder is cut out on the first leg of the Y and the North Coast Limited backs into the station on schedule. The Great Northern engine which carries the train west backs down on the Y and is hooked up. It completes the Y by backing into the St. Paul station on the heels of the Northern Pacific train.

Trains Kept Separate.

An interesting part of the operation is that, although pulled by one engine between here and St. Paul, the two trains are kept separate and the passengers are unaware that the two widely known rival trains to the northwest are "going together."

On the trip from Seattle to Chicago the operation is reversed at St. Paul. The Empire Builder runs out ahead of the North Coast Limited and then backs up to pull the latter out. If either train is 25 minutes late they are operated as separate trains and if there are more than 13 cars each train is run separately.

Loop Bank Directors Meet Today for Dividend Action

Directors of two largest downtown banks, the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company and the First National bank, will meet today for action on the quarterly dividends. Continental is now on an $8 annual basis and First National is on a $12 basis.

This is the largest shipment of yellow metal from France since May of 1931. During the last year France has taken a large volume of gold from this country, but, with recent weakness of the French franc against the American dollar, foreign exchange quarters are now inclined to predict a return flow of substantial proportions.

The same steamer also brought 155 boxes, or approximately $5,000,000, in gold from England. The S. S. President Polk brought $525,000 in gold from India, consigned to the National City bank, and the S. S. Scythia, $250,000 from England, consigned to the French-American Banking corporation.

The British pound today rose more than 4 cents from yesterday's close. After active fluctuations, both up and down during the forenoon, it rose to $3.24¾ in the afternoon, as compared with an opening price of $3.23.

The French franc held steady at .0390⅝ bid and offers at 7-16, or virtually unchanged from last night and still at the gold import point.

CHEERFUL DAYS PROVE DARK ONES FOR ELECTRICITY

The weather in Chicago last week reversed itself to produce a number of pleasant sunny days. In consequence the output of electricity in the Chicago district made a poor showing for the week ending Dec. 3 in comparison with the like week last year.

The Commonwealth Edison company yesterday reported that the output for last week was 93,418,000 kilowatt hours as compared with 106,552,000 for the same week in 1931—a decrease of 12.3 per cent.

Despite the improved weather, however, last week's showing was reported as being no poorer than was that of all last summer. Preliminary figures for November make a better comparison with last year than do the results of any month since February.

For the country as a whole the output of electricity increased last week, although the gain was much smaller than occurred in comparable periods of the preceding three years.

The National Electric Light association reported that the total kilowatt hour output was 1,510,337,000 as compared with 1,475,268,000 kilowatt hours during the week ending Nov. 26. The percentage of decrease from 1931 was 9.6 against a decline of 7.8 in the preceding week.

STRICTER RULES FOR AUDITS OF STOCKS LIKELY

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Closer scrutiny by stock exchanges of the affairs of corporations seeking to list securities and stricter rules governing the qualifications of auditors are prophesied as the result of recent disclosures of certain cases of corruption and falsification of financial statements.

That the mere presence in the rules of security exchanges of regulations requiring corporations to file audited financial reports yearly is not sufficient insurance against such falsification is the opinion expressed by various bankers, brokers, and investment dealers. Cases cited are the stocks of H. O. Stone & Co. and the Insull Investment companies, both of which were listed on the Chicago Stock exchange.

Exchange Officials Wary.

Stock exchange officials are wary of commenting on prospects of changes in listing requirements or in the manner in which corporations are required to prepare their statements. They protest that despite recent revelations of abuses, the supervision furnished by the stock exchanges has been more effective and thorough than that of the state security commissioners.

Corporations applying for listing on the Chicago exchange must furnish, in the words of the exchange, a "certificate of a firm of certified public accountants, without substantial qualification, satisfactory to the committee, made pursuant to audit, establishing the correctness of the foregoing financial statements and the financial conditions and results from operation shown thereby."

Committee Checks Auditors.

The listing committee is usually made up of the most influential members of the exchange. Each application is examined by the committee before it is submitted to the board of governors. Investigation of the auditors who certify the accounts of the companies applying for listing is part of the committee's duties.

It is this latter function of the committee which is gaining importance. Of the corporations with securities listed on the Chicago exchange it is estimated that approximately 33 per cent employ outside auditors to certify their accounts.

How far it will be practicable for exchanges to go in checking the appraisals of engineers and the methods of auditors is a difficult problem. Obviously unless the present system is radically changed it would be impossible for an exchange to check each appraisal and audit that is furnished.

Bill to Repeal Home Loan Act Starts Storm

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—Senator William E. Borah [Rad. Rep., Idaho] today introduced a bill calling for repeal of the home loan bank act. Its arrival in the legislative hopper was the signal for a storm of senatorial protest aimed at the failure of the home loan bank system to begin the mortgage credit operations by which congress intended to provide relief to the debt burdened home owner.

SENATOR WILLIAM E. BORAH.

Nearly a half dozen senators joined in the protest with varying degrees of bitterness. Senator Borah, in introducing the measure, described the home loan bank system as "wholly inadequate," and while other senators felt it had not yet had a fair trial. All who spoke expressed exasperation that the board of directors had not yet put the banks to functioning.

Borah Explains Stand.

"The manner in which the act has been administered, the rules which have been adopted, convince me that the law either must be repealed or amended, and amendment would be difficult," said Senator Borah. "I feel certain that we are going to build up a tremendous institution at great expense to the government without actual benefit to the home owner. In my opinion the act has proven and is proving wholly unsatisfactory."

Senator Royal S. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.] disagreed with the Idaho radical to the extent that he preferred to give the home loan bank system a longer trial. Its failure thus far Senator Copeland said, was due to its board of directors.

Chairman Franklin W. Fort, according to Mr. Copeland, devoted his time to political activities rather than the affairs of his chairmanship, while two other members of the board, he said, are "national bankers who represent a viewpoint which find loans of this type obnoxious."

Home Owner Not Helped.

Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] blamed not the board of directors but the home loan bank act itself for ineffectiveness.

"There is not a chance in a million," he asserted, "to make any loan under the existing law to the home owner whose mortgage is in default, and there is nothing in the act which permits the accomplishment of that very desirable thing."

Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] defended Mr. Fort's ability with the declaration that no man was capable of "conducting the affairs of this innocuous institution."

According to Senator Glass, the senate in passing the home loan bank act last session at the insistence of President Hoover, had believed that home financing institutions were eager to subscribe to the stock of a federal home mortgage credit system. Such, he declared, was not the case.

BANK BLOCKING INSULL PLANS, SAY RECEIVERS

Sale in N. Y. to Hurt Investors.

Edward N. Hurley and Charles A. McCulloch, receivers for the Middle West Utilities company, last night charged that the tactics of the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company of New York is preventing them from carrying through a reorganization program for the eastern properties of the big Insull holding company.

The charge came on the heels of the announcement of the New York bank that it would no longer be bound by the standstill agreement existing among the banking creditors of the eastern properties and would auction off the collateral it holds on Dec. 16.

Such an action, the receivers assert, would affect thousands of investors who have already lost heavily in the properties.

Calls Collateral Sufficient.

"In view of the fact that the Central Hanover has valuable collateral substantially in excess of the amount of the loan, and the fact that the proposed action affects thousands of poor people who have lost millions," the receivers declare, "this becomes a public matter and we can not understand why Mr. Davison and his directors feel justified in taking action against these unfortunate investors."

Davison is George W. Davison, president of the Central Hanover.

The bank has collateral loans of $5,789,917 to the National Public Service corporation principal unit of Middle West's eastern holding company, the National Electric Power company. The various security holders' committees, the New York bank creditors, and the Middle West receivers have been negotiating for several months in working out a reorganization plan for the eastern properties. Middle West's stake in the eastern properties amounts to $40,000,000.

Receivers Seek R. F. C. Loan.

The receivers have been negotiating with officials of the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a $21,000,000 loan through which they proposed to retire all the bank loans and bring the eastern properties under one management with the Irving Trust company as receiver. At the present time the two eastern units are both in bankruptcy and their affairs are being administered by the various banking creditors.

The Central Hanover's proposed collateral sale would upset the plan to raise the loan and unify the properties, the receivers assert in their statement.

"Middle West Utilities have 40 million dollars invested in the National Electric Power group," the statement continues. "We believed that, after the $21,000,000 loan was paid and in coöperation with the reorganization committee, our interests would be materially strengthened. This prompted

STOCKS FINISH HIGHER DESPITE PROFIT TAKING

BY FRED HARVEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 7.—Such events as the administration's economy recommendations to congress, a sharp rise in sterling, strength in wheat and bonds, and firmness in cotton served to keep speculative sentiment to the bulls' liking again today.

The rally, which got under way late yesterday afternoon, carried over well into the morning and provided momentum enough to support prices around their previous closing levels right through to the finish in spite of an undertow of profit taking which developed in the afternoon. Numerous trading favorites throughout the list were able to retain 1 to 2 points of their earlier gains. The turnover was the largest in nearly a month, amounting to around 1,200,000 shares.

Rail Shares Are Feature.

Railroad shares put on about the most impressive group performance of the lot. Their popularity was due, in part, to indications given by a number of roads that car loadings have recovered from their holiday setback, by talk of legislation favorable to the carrier cause by the present congress, and by the outlook for further expense reduction through a further reduction of wages or, at any rate, by retention of the present reduced rates.

At their peaks the leaders were a point or more above their highs of yesterday, but the late afternoon realizing cut the section down along with the rest of the market. Final prices, however, were no worse than mixed and many issues succeeded in retaining substantial fractions of their earlier advances.

Utilities Held in Check.

A drop of some 2 points in American Water Works following the announcement that its dividend rate had been split in half held back the utilities. American Telephone suffered a net loss of a half point and Consolidated Gas, Electric Power and Light and other trading favorites of the division wound up behind modest minus signs. International Telephone looked up a bit on revised news regarding the government move to confiscate the holdings of its subsidiary in Spain.

The oils got a mild boost from advices of a further forced reduction in crude petroleum output in the southwest. Fractional gains were the rule for the group leaders. Houston Oil scored a gain of an even point.

The coppers were called upon to withstand a bit of a shock in the news that the price of the metal had sold down to a new low of 5 cents a pound.

Case Gains a Little.

News of a decline in steel operations, combined with profit taking on the score of yesterday's advance, served to hold the old market bellwether, United States Steel, in check. Case Threshing Machine got a lift from the strength in wheat, and Columbia Carbon attracted attention by a runup of some 2 points, not all of which it was able to hold.

Penick & Ford was the target of considerable selling on news that it had lost its patent suit against Corn Products Refining company. The issue showed a loss of 3 points on the closing sale of the day.

Commission houses reported a growing tendency to caution as the day wore on, many regarding the rally of yesterday as sufficient measure of the boost given by congress, with business in its present state.

STRICTER AUDITS IN LISTED STOCKS ARE PREDICTED

Unless a system is devised whereby the exchange shall require that auditors qualify under its rules, protection against dishonest certifications and inadequate examinations will depend largely on the caliber of the auditors employed.

Paul H. Davis, president of the Chicago Stock exchange, said yesterday that the exchange contemplates no changes in its present rules governing listings and financial statements.

"The exchange has strict rules governing these matters," he declared. "The listing committee has always exercised diligence in examining applications and will continue to do everything possible to protect the investing public."

Example of Abuse.

In the trial of the officials of H. O. Stone Co. it was brought out that an official of the company had prepared an audit which was merely certified by an accountant employed by the company. Protection against abuses growing out of such methods must rest largely with the qualifications required of accountants.

In many instances where abuses have been revealed the auditors have accepted the appraisals and valuations furnished by the officials of the company. This is not an uncommon practice.

In the case of the Insull investment companies the auditors explicitly stated in their letter of certification that the "values carried for investments are as determined by the board of directors."

Laws Fail to Stop Fraud.

Passage of a law requiring an independent audit by certified public accountants of the books of all corporations applying for listing on exchanges may have a beneficial effect, but it can hardly furnish a crook-proof insurance, in the opinion of investment bankers.

Stocks listed by exchanges are automatically qualified under the blue sky act. The abuses are by no means confined to the companies which qualify in this manner, however. Companies which have been qualified by the state commission have been guilty of gross abuses. Security lawyers familiar with the method of qualifying under securities state that listing on exchanges is more exacting than qualifying directly to the state officials.

CENTRAL PUBLIC SERVICE CORP. RECEIVER NAMED

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Receivership proceedings against the Central Public Service corporation were advanced today when an order was signed in the United States District court appointing Iredell W. Iglehart, Baltimore financier, receiver for the assets of the company. The order was a result of a petition filed by Morris Bromet and others. At the request of the same petitioners on Dec. 1 an order was signed giving the corporation until Dec. 14 to show cause why it should not be adjudicated a bankrupt.

BANK BLOCKING INSULL PROGRAM, SAY RECEIVERS

Sale of Collateral in N. Y. Will Hurt Investors.

Receivers McCulloch and Hurley then point out that they were instrumental in the filing of a consolidated income account with the federal Internal revenue department for income tax accrued in 1931 that resulted in a saving of $587,000 for National Electric Power. This saving was equivalent to approximately one-half of the total interest due on the $21,000,000 loan, they assert.

"The receivers feel," they continue, "that they have been successful in managing the fifty operating properties in the Middle West group by paying off $5,000,000 of their floating debt, which leaves only two companies with loans of consequence. It was this policy that we were going to put in force in the National Electric Power group after paying off the $21,000,000 of bank loans, rather than continue the present method of having each of the five New York banks manage the particular companies they control through the collateral they hold as security for loans."

Middle West Board Meets.

The board first directors' meeting of Middle West Utilities company since the board was reorganized to include operating heads of subsidiary companies was held yesterday. The authorized number of directors was increased to fifteen and three new ones were elected. They are:

Price Campbell, president West Texas Utilities company; A. Lieberman, president Southwestern Gas and Electric company; John E. Barber, president Central and Southwest Utilities company. Mr. Barber and A. W. Moore were elected vice presidents of Middle West and N. P. Zech was elected controller.

Emphasize Economy Need.

Meeting in conjunction with the directors, executives of the operating companies in the Middle West system held a conference at which they formed their plans for the coming year and emphasized the need for even further reductions in operating costs. The executives agreed upon an economy program of joint purchasing contracts and restriction of capital expenditures, except in cases where profitable new business may be obtained.

The receivers also announced that insurance policies, based on length of service, will be given to employes of subsidiaries on Dec. 24, as in former years.

INSULL QUIZ IN EAST

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric company, and twelve New York bankers were ordered today to submit to an examination before Referee in Bankruptcy John E. Joyce, acting as special master in connection with Insull utilities litigation in Illinois.

They are to be examined, at a time specified by Joyce, as to "acts, conduct, and property of the bankrupt," the Insull Utilities Investments, Inc.

Men—North—Northwest.

WE WILL SIGN UP A FEW ADDITIONAL MEN IMMEDIATELY AT OUR CHICAGO BRANCH, WHO WILL UNDERTAKE A FIVE-YEAR PROGRAM OF EARNINGS AS SET FORTH HEREIN, WITH ADDITIONAL CASH PROFITS IN SAVINGS FOR THE FIVE-YEAR PERIOD OF $11,600.

This program of earnings and savings is something entirely new; it is a definite and practical plan for the man who wishes to cover the overhead expenses of himself and his family each week and save a substantial additional profit. It is to such men we offer this opportunity. We prefer married men with established homes they must maintain. This is a permanent arrangement and we are not looking for the man who is not money-minded about his future and about getting ahead in an honest, industrious manner.

You cannot make money here unless you earn it. But if you are capable of understanding and following instructions and if you are one who likes to practice to gain skill and judgment in what he does, and if you are a worker, willing to pay a working price for success, then we recommend that you come in Thursday for an interview. It costs nothing to try. The training is free. We will furnish full equipment with no deposit required. There is no expense.

We require men to be of good reputation, active and alert. This is a straightforward offer of sincere interest to worthy men who are in need of good, substantial positions. We have tried to state the facts and requirements clearly. Please do not apply for these positions unless you feel you can meet the requirements. Applicants will be personally interviewed. Apply Thursday, 2 p. m. No other time. Room 205, 1360 Sherman-av., Evanston.

8 Thousand Can't Be Wrong!

8,000 happy members of the oldest and largest organization of its kind say "If you can't earn a darn good living with WATKINS, it will be your own fault!" This verdict is bound to stand as long as people keep house and have to eat.

Due to expansion program we will add a few men, over 25 and able to furnish A1 references, in Chicago and suburbs. No exp. necc. as we prefer to train our own men. Apply 810 W. 76th-st. 2d door west of Halsted-st., between 9:30 and 4.

LEGAL NOTICES.

PUBLIC NOTICE.
NOTICE OF PROPOSED CHANGE IN RATES.

To Patrons of the Illinois Bell Telephone Company:

The Illinois Bell Telephone Company hereby gives notice to the public that it has filed with the Illinois Commerce Commission of Illinois a General Local Exchange Tariff applicable to all exchanges of this Company in the State of Illinois, which will replace certain of the present rates and regulations governing the furnishing of Telephone Service in its Local Exchanges. Tariffs and reduce the rate for additional Master Stations on one of its wiring plans. These changes involve no increases in rates for local exchange telephone service.

A copy of the proposed schedule may be inspected by any interested party at any business office of this Company.

All parties interested in this proceeding may obtain information as to time and place of hearing upon this matter by addressing the Secretary of the Illinois Commerce Commission at Springfield, Illinois.
